Gibson Vows Firm Course

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

VANCOUVER — Echoing the unsuccessful battle cries of his predecessors over the past 12 years, Gordon Gibson took the helm Sunday and promised to steer the Liberal Party on a steady course through the storms of political extremism in B.C.

The new Liberal leader is a spirited and skillful speaker and the party faithful responded to his election speech at the convention here this weekend with a wave of optimism and solidarity.

The Liberal party is alive and well in B.C., he said

The Liberal party will continue to be a moderate alternative for that large percentage of British Columbians who don't want the political hatreds and extremes of the NDP and the Social Credit

Liberals are not just pragmatists, he said. 'Liberalism is something that means something."

But the words are now familiar fare at B.C. Liberal conventions.

The litany began in 1953, just a year after the Liberal coalition government crumbled in the face of a Social Credit landslide, and Arthur Laing took over the party leadership

"Our party is not dead," said Laing. "It is full of life and vitality. Liberalism is a way of life."

Ray Perrault took over in 1958 and promised Liberals would remain true to their principles and not enter any coalition. Pat McGeer, in 1968 said the Liberals were about to find their way out of the wilderness, and David Anderson, elected leader just 3½ years ago, pledged that the party could soon be victorious if it stuck to its principles of moderation.

All the leaders have been able to do with their brave words so far is keep the party alive.

But the 450 voting delegates at the convention here were heartened to hear Gibson say

Victoria resident Dave Cutler undoubtedly will break the Canadian Football League record for field goals this season, but he failed to do it Sunday. Even in failure, however, Cutler turned out to be the hero. When his kick went wide, it fell in for a single point with 14 seconds left to give Edmonton Eskimos a come-from-behind 37-36 victory over Calgary Stampeders. Page 12.

MARSALA, Sicily (AP) — A Carthaginian warship which sank off Sicily more than 2,000 years ago carried two bagloads of hashish, possibly to be used to heighten the morale of sailors in fierce wars against the North African city's archrival, Rome. 12 Nations Call Back Ambassadors to Spain

MADRID (AP) — Thousands of workers in Spain's northern Basque provinces began a 48-hour strike today to protest the execution of two Basque nationalists and three other terrorists convicted of killing policemen.

The death sentences, carried out at dawn Saturday despite appeals for mercy from leaders around the world, touched off violent demonstrations in Western Europe and prompted 12 nations to recall their ambassadors to Spain as a sign of displeasure with the regime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

The Spanish government in turn began recalling its envoys from European capitals.

Mexican President Luis Echeverria called for Spain's expulsion from the United Nations, and his government ordered all connections between Mexico and Spain broken. All flights between Mexico and Spain by Iberia, the Spanish airline, and Aeromexico were cancelled. Spain's official government representative, the correspondent of the Spanish news agency EFE and the representative of the Spanish tourism office were ordered out of the country, and the offices of all Mexican enterprises operating in Spain were ordered closed.

Reaction in Spain spread immediately through the Basque provinces of Alava, Guipuzcoa and Vizcaya. An estimated 30,000 persons stopped work Saturday when they learned of the executions. On Sunday civil guardsmen opened fire on a crowd of 2,000 persons in Algorta, a guerrilla stronghold on the northern coast, as the crowd poured through the streets shouting "Murderers, we will avenge our dead!"" Six persons were reported wounded and scores were arrested.

The protests reflected widespread opposition to the death penalty, but many were shocked by what philosopher-writer Jean-Paul Sartre described as a lack of due process of law during the trials of the five by military tribunals operating under emergency procedures.

Riot police in Madrid dispersed 1,500 young demonstrators who attempted Sunday to turn a mass into a requiem service for the five. Several persons were detained, but there was no violence.

From Scandinavia to Greece, thousands demonstrated against the Franco re-

WEARING SHACKLES and traditional stripped uniforms, these five Drumheller Corrections Institute prisoners, members of an in-prison Jaycees group, trudged 88 miles from the prison to Calgary during the weekend to raise money for the Alberta Children's Hospital in Calgary. It took them about 50 hours. The shackles and uniforms have been outlawed in Canadian prisons and the walkers had to get special permission from the solicitor-general to wear the garb on the highway. The shackles, made by other prisoners, were lighter than the traditional leg irons. The prisoners were unguarded on their trek. It won't be known for about two weeks how much the walk actually brought in.

Canada Wins Fight For Fishing Treaty

MONTREAL (CP) — Faced with a determined stand by the host nation, the 17-member International Commission for the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries agreed Sunday to accept a Canadian proposal for a 40-per-cent reduction in foreign fishing of groundfish stocks off the Atlantic Coast.

The Canadian proposal, first put forward at the last ICNAF conference at Edinburgh in June, called for a 40-per-cent reduction in foreign fishing in offshore areas stretching from the northern tip of Labrador, around Newfoundland and Nova Scotia and including areas off the coast of New Brunswick.

The vote was hailed as a victory for Canadian Fishermen by a jubilant Romeo LeBlanc, fisheries minister.

Canada also succeeded in convincing ICNAF members to accept more stringent catch limits on endangered species of fish and to grant Canadian fishermen a higher percentage of total catch allotments.

LeBlanc said the agreement, to take effect next year, should provide badly-needed relief for fishermen in the Atlantic provinces who have been faced with steadily-declining stocks.

The 40-per-cent reduction will be brought about in part by reducing the number of days foreign fleets will be permitted to fish off the Canadian Atlantic Coast each year. The 40-per-cent figure is an average as some zones will have larger reductions than others.

The reductions would apply to all ICNAF members except Canada and the United States, whose coasts are involved, and France, which controls the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon off the south Newfoundland coast.

Groundfish stocks include cod, haddock, plaice and redfish.

United Way Kicks Off

United Way kicked off its canvassing of local businesses today with the introduction of a new lapel pin to be worn by all volunteer workers during their canvassing rounds.

The three-figure lapel pin represents the "people helping people" approach to meeting community needs, said campaign chairman Eric Dowell.

"It also symbolizes the three-way relationship between the United Way volunteers, the agency volunteers and the voluntary support by donors in the community," he said.

The goal for this year's over-all campaign is $750,000, approximately 11 per cent more than was raised last year.

Residential canvassing begins Oct. 15.

All monies collected will be allocated to 24 agencies serving more than 25,000 people.

The campaign is still in need of volunteer canvassers and interested persons can call 385-6708.

DISMAY OVER OIL BOOST

Times News Services

Both rich and poor countries expressed dismay today over the 10-per-cent increase in oil prices agreed to Saturday by the world oil cartel.

In Toronto Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie said the rise will mean "steady upward pressure" for higher retail oil prices in Canada.

Gillespie, named to the energy portfolio last week by Prime Minister Trudeau, said in an interview there would not be an immediate increase in the price of gasoline but he could not say how long that would last.

"There are only two ways to cope with this," he said. "Either growing subsidies from the Consolidated Revenue fund . . . or the price of oil will have to inch upward."

Gillespie, calling the increase "bad news all around" for Canada said he could not estimate immediately how much it will cost Canadian taxpayers to increase the subsidy on imported oil.

"I'm meeting with my officials today to go over all aspects of the situation," he said.

Gillespie said the export tax on oil which Canada exports to the United States will have to be raised to offset the added cost of imported oil.

It would be up to the National Energy Board to set the amount.

Meanwhile, the British pound slumped to a new low, attributed largely to the price increase. The United States dollar strengthened.

Amir Jamal, Tanzania's minister of commerce and industry, said in Dar es Salaam that oil-trading countries were "apparently turning their backs on the developing countries.

He said the increase agreed upon in Vienna by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will cost Tanzania an extra $10 million in foreign exchange annually.

"For the least developed countries, petroleum products are not luxuries, they are necessities," he added.

Gunmen Seek Plane from U.K.

LONDON (UPI) — Three gunmen, demanded a plane and safe conduct out of Britain today as the price for sparing the lives of seven Italian employees taken as hostages during a botched robbery attempt at a London restaurant. One high-ranking police official said, however, "There will be no deals."

"I was told by the hostages they have made this demand," Italian consul general Mario Manca told newsmen after talking to the hostages through the locked door of the small storeroom where they are being held for a second day.

But assistant police commissioner Wilfred Gibson said "They have been told there will be no deals."

The gunmen, said to include two West Indians and a Nigerian, have held the hostages at the Spaghetti House restaurant in Knightsbridge since early Sunday.

An eighth hostage, Alfredo Olivelli, was released to show "good faith."

Mrs. Mary Olivelli, his wife, said her husband described the store room prison, measuring only 9 by 13 feet as "a hell hole."

"He said the stench is indescribable and the heat overpowering," she added.

During the morning police passed coffee, cigarettes and a portable chemical toilet into the storeroom.

There are no sanitary facilities in the room and their air conditioning was switched off in hope the heat would force the bandits out.

Mrs. Olivelli said her husband also told her the robbers wore knitted helmets covering most of their faces and that they told the hostages they belonged to the "Black Liberation Front."

But London police and spokesmen for Black community groups said they knew of no such organization.

Senior police officers said there are no political imolications. It was just an armed robbery that went wrong because police arrived on the scene too quickly, they added.

Man Dynamites Himself

CAMPBELL RIVER — A man threatening to blow himself up with dynamite carried out his threat as a policeman tried to intervene Sunday night.

RCMP were called to 1970 16th Ave. shortly before the blast at 7:45 and a constable was approaching the house when the explosion went off, levelling the building and shattering neighbors' windows. The policeman's arms were cut by flying debris, but there were no other injuries.

Sgt. Ed Ackerman said the explosion was heard up to five miles away.

"We're still going through the ruins trying to pick up pieces of the guy and securing the rubble to make sure no one gets in as there could be more dynamite buried there," he said.

The dead man was alone in the house. He is believed to have been a powderman at Western Mines, Buttle Lake.

A demolition team from CFB Comox was making a search of the ruins in case there are other explosives.

Police withheld the man's name pending next of kin notification.

NEWS BRIEFS

Knifed to Death

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 65-year-old man was found stabbed to death in his home Sunday night after an anonymous phone caller informed police about the incident. The man, whose name was not released, had been stabbed nine times and his naked body was found sprawled across a bed, police said. The house had not been ransacked and police said robbery was apparently not involved.

4 Years in Swindle

NAGOYA, Japan (Reuter) — A 38-year-old woman who mimicked former premier Kakuei Tanaka to swindle five persons out of more than $1 million was sentenced today to four years in prison. The woman phoned the five saying Tanaka needed political donations.

Plumber's Wife Wins Olympic Biggie

HULL, Que. (CP)—Mrs. Jacqueline St. Cyr, a 40-year-old housewife, has won $1 million in the Olympic Lottery.

"I plan to buy a new house, take a trip to Florida, and buy gifts for my husband," she said today.

Her husband Leo is a plumber.

Mrs. St. Cyr said she jumped up with joy as the numbers flashed on the television screen.

Her two youngest children were laughing and crying with joy.

She said she intends to share some of the money with her children Andre, 22, Jocelyne, 18, and Richard, 16.

She said she had three tickets, gifts from her husband. The tickets were bought in Montreal.

Three tickets bearing the number 1235174 in series A, B and C were drawn Sunday night for three $1-million winners.

Lottery officials said late Sunday they believe they know the general whereabouts of several major winners.

Two of the three tickets bearing the number 1484382 worth $500,000 each were said to have been sold in Vancouver and Moncton, N.B. One $100,000 ticket was believed to be in Winnipeg.

A total of 12 seven-digit numbers were selected at random by a Manitoba government computer Sunday night to determine the winners of the lottery from among the nearly 7.5 million tickets sold. Each number represents three winning tickets, one in each of three series of tickets.

Other winning numbers and the amounts won are:

$200,000—2782441 and 2073287
$100,000—1953815; 2547758; and 2949225;
$50,000—3250409; 3261122; 1199662; and 3310131

A host of smaller prizes will be paid to holders of tickets with the final three, four or five digits identical to those of the 12 numbers selected.

The 864 tickets with five matching digits won $1,000 each and 81,000 with three matching digits will return $100 each.

In Vancouver Chiang Chen-teng, 45, an out-of-work plywood plant worker, said he would use the $50,000 he won to pay off debts and would send some of it to his parents in Taiwan.

He immigrated to Canada seven years ago and has three children — aged 20, 18 and 12.

Statement Coming On Time Future

By MICHAEL LAVOIE

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is determined to proceed with measures to strip Time and Reader's Digest of special tax privileges but soon will issue a statement clarifying what the two magazines must do to continue operating in Canada, Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner said today.

He dismissed as speculation claims by the Canadian Periodical Publishers' Association Sunday that the government intends to dilute content requirements to allow Time Inc. of New York to continue publishing a Canadian edition of its weekly news magazine.

"My position hasn't changed one jot," Mr. Faulkner told a news conference. "Time will have to conform to the law or go."

He told reporters the government intends to stick to its Jan. 1 deadline for abolishing a 10-year-old tax law permitting advertisers in Canadian editions of Time, Reader's Digest and a number of smaller foreign-owned publications to claim income tax deductions for their advertising costs.

The change, which has been held up by opposition in the Commons since last April, also will affect Canadian advertisers on border United States television stations.

Mr. Faulkner said he will meet the opposition parties to seek an agreement to give the tax legislation second reading in the Commons and send it to committee where the foreign publishers and broadcasters can be heard.

But first, newly-appointed Revenue Minister Jack Cullen is expected to issue a statement clarifying what steps the magazines must take to become Canadian and qualify for the advertiser tax deductions, he said.

He dismissed claims by the Periodical Publishers' Association that the government will change key provisions in income tax regulations to let Time continue publishing its 550,000 circulation domestic edition.

"I haven't been part of any such plans," he said. "It is speculation."

SPAIN'S CRITICS GROWING

gime and the 82-year-old dictator's refusal to commute the death sentences of the five as he had those of six other convicted police killers Friday night.

In the northern Portuguese city of Porto, police and soldiers fired into the air Sunday night in an attempt to disperse 1,000 leftists who marched on the Spanish consulate and burned its furniture in the street. They shouted "Franco murderer" and "Death to Fascism."

The Spanish Embassy in Lisbon was sacked and burned Saturday.

Sixty policemen were injured during a riot at the Spanish consulate in Geneva. The Spanish Embassy in The Hague was heavily damaged by fire. A bomb broke windows at the Spanish ambassador's residence in Ankara, Turkey.

The European Economic Community condemned the executions. Swedish Premier Olof Palme called the Spanish leaders "satanic murderers".

Spanish opposition leaders said the nation faces two alternatives as long as Franco remains in power: continued violence or a military coup. One leading Socialist said the "only hope" he sees for defusing the situation is for Franco to step down in favor of his designated heir, Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon.

"But this just does not look likely," he said. "We need a conspiracy. The pieces are there but we have to connect them. We have to convince the army that the continuation of the regime is extremely harmful to Spain."

In Lisbon Premier Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo ordered troops to occupy all Portuguese radio and televison stations to prevent media exploitation of such events as protests against the executions in Spain.

The statement said the occupation was a temporary measure aimed at guaranteeing broadcasting of news that is not manipulated and serves the country and the revolution.

Mail Strike Threat Fading

VANCOUVE R(CP) — Union leader Peter Whittaker said Sunday that Vancouver postal workers may not strike on local issues as earlier threatened.

He said the local workers, who threatened to walk out regardless of whether there is a national settlement, have been negotiating with local management and talks are going "fairly well."

Whittaker, local president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said that if negotiations continue to go the way they have been "I don't think we'll need to carry out the strike after all."

But he emphasized this applies only to local issues, and that the workers would still strike if an agreement is not reached nationally.

A federal conciliation board has until Oct. 3 to finish its report on national postal negotiations, and the union can legally strike seven days after the findings have been handed down.

GIBSON . . . A steady course

'Get Involved' Call for Grits

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Patrick Graham of Vancouver was elected president of the British Columbia Liberal Party Sunday.

The previous president, Doreen Braverman of Vancouver, announnced in the spring that she would not seek re-election at the party's annual convention, which began Friday.

"You should all get involve in politics," Braverman told delegates at the conclusion of the convention, "nothing I've ever done can compare with politics."

Amid laughter from the delegates, and with her husband at her side, she amended that to "compared to the PTA or things like that."

In other convention business, a suggestion which would double the size of every government in Canada was referred back for study. The resolution, which never reached the floor, arose from a meeting of the B.C. Liberal Women's Commission.

Delegates there decided that there should be equal representation for women in government; however, they worded the resolution in such a way that they seemed to be promoting double representation for every riding or area.

After the logistical problems were pointed out, commission members decided to endorse the idea of equal representation, but re-draft the section calling for a woman for every man, and a man for every woman — in government.

The possibility of more flexible school years and a return of corporal punishment were among two resolutions on education considered by delegates.

They rejected a suggestion that a Liberal provincial government would study methods by which school programming would be made more flexible to allow vacations and long weekends to fit in with vacation times of parents and with the shorter work week variations.

They deferred to the next convention a statement that the party is in favor of the return of corporal punishment to schools but approved allowing principals be given the option to administer corporal punishment unless parental consent has been denied in writing.

GIBSON OPTIMISTIC AT THE HELM

the words again and indeed he said them with style and vigor.

Gibson was the only nominee for leader but he still went through the ritual of election with a large contingent of sign bearers, two nominating speeches, a triumphant march down the convention floor and huge banner, quickly hung behind him as he took the podium.

"Tell them both you've had enough," said the banner and that was Gibson's theme.

After 20 years, the electorate told the Socreds they had had enough, he said, and after just three years of the NDP they're now willing to tell them the same thing.

The first priority is to defeat the NDP government and the most fertile area to pick up votes is from the NDP itself, said Gibson.

It's the same strategy Anderson offered and Gibson agreed later there are no great differences between he and Anderson who resigned this month in the face of a draft-Gibson movement.

But Gibson has a more easy-going style, he's more personable in a crowd situation and he's more acceptable to business and industry. He's considered more to the right than Anderson and his background is in business.

Gibson is 38, and the son of millionaire lumberman and former MLA Gordon Gibson Sr. He studied at Harvard University, UBC and London School of Economics and set up a pre-fab housing company.

In the year and a half he has served in the legislature as MLA for North Vancouver-Capilano, Gibson has become a forceful debator and the most vocal opponent of the NDP's mining legislation.

As executive assistant to Prime Minister Trudeau before returning to B.C., Gibson built up the strong federal ties which Anderson lacked and which will undoubtedly strengthen his position.

The look and the tone of the delegates this weekend was more rightwing than four months ago at the Richmond meeting and a waspish mood at the start of the convention was noticeable enough to prompt a reprimand from Skeena MP Iona Campagnolo.

"I thought we had liberals in this party . . . now it seems like we've got a bunch of red neck Tories," she said.

One party official saw Campagnolo's remark playing a significant role in mellowing the tone of the convention and insuring the delegates didn't stray into the convenience of reaction.

But despite a slight turning to the right with the departure of Anderson, Gibson said the Liberals will pick up their main support from the 39 per cent of voters who threw their support to the NDP in 1972.

He said he won't spend much time criticizing the Socreds, except for their role in polarizing B.C.'s politics, because, he says, Bill Bennett is "fading."

"Bennett's already played out his cards. Barrett hasn't even shown them yet," he said.

While outside observers predict both Gibson and Anderson may have a tough fight even to hold their own seats, the new leader says confidently his party will "at least" hold the balance of power next time around.

On the platform, just as the convention came to a close, he decided to go the whole hog and told the delegates if Barrett waits a year for the next election the Liberals will form the government."

Whether the delegates believed it or not, they clapped and cheered and went home feeling much better than when they arrived.

The hint of bitterness and uncertainty which surfaced at the start of the convention was forgotten in the jubilation over a new leader although in private conversation may of the delegates clearly did not understand who Anderson was dumped, why the party is doing badly and why three MLAs deserted the cause during the spring.

Pat McGeer, Garde Gardom and Allan Williams were not mentioned on the podium during the weekend and Gibson said in an interview he is not planning any special effort to try to bring the defectors back, although he is in constant touch with them.

The key problem the three are having in trying to decide whether to join the Socreds, said Gibson, is their commitment to bring in the transferable ballot.

The Socreds and the NDP will never bring in the preferential ballot, said the new leader, because both parties are counting on a polarization between left and right to win them seats.

A transferable ballot, which allows voters to indicate their second and third choices, insures that the winning candidate will have at least 50 per cent of the vote and therefore gives him a majority and a concensus behind him, said Gibson.

Mediator Named

Provincial government mediator Charles Stewart has been appointed to try to assist Victoria Press Ltd., publishers of the Victoria Times and Daily Colonist, reach a contract settlement with the five unions representing its employees.

Victoria Press general manager Jack Melville said he was notified of the appointment this morning, and he expects Stewart will shortly contact both sides to arrange suitable times for a meeting.

The company informed the unions Sept. 19 of its intention to call for the services of a mediation officer.

It said management and unions had both made serious proposals in good faith, and expressed the hope that the intervention of a mediation officer might help the parties reach a settlement which would allow the continuation of both newspapers.

NO MOVEMENT IN IWA TALKS

Woodworkers and management went into their third day of mediation talks today at the legislative buildings with no hint of movement from either side.

Discussion was to resume at 1 p.m. after the companies through Forest Industrial Relatiosn Ltd. considered at the weekend a position put forward by International Woodworkers of America.

IWA spokesmen did not disclose details of the proposal, made independently of the two pulp unions which dissociated themselves from proceedings earlier last week.

A company spokesman said he expected today's situation to continue for a day or two with no dramatic change. He said the sides had begun to consider specific areas rather than speaking in generalities.

Diggers Fail to Find Hoffa

DETROIT (AP) — A man who said he helped bury the body of James Hoffa provided information that led to an unsuccessful weekend search of a nearby field for the missing former Teamsters boss, a Senate subcommittee investigator said.

Investigator William Gallinaro, who tipped local authorities that Hoffa's body might be found in the field, said his information came from an unidentified informant who was not involved in the labor leader's disappearance but who has underworld contacts.

Gallinaro said his informant believes the man who said he helped bury Hoffa is being held by "the mob" until he provides exact directions to the body's location.

There is no evidence that Hoffa has been slain, but some associates have said they believe he was murdered because he was on the verge of being freed from parole restrictions which prohibited him from taking part in Teamsters activities.

Some investigators believe "the mob" may be providing information to take pressure off underworld figures being questioned in connection with the disappearance.

A federal grand jury in Detroit has subpoenaed and taken testimony from several reputed mob figures but has produced no new information in the case, sources say.

Acting on information from Gallinaro, Michigan Attorney-General Frank Kelley organized a search of a 29-acre field in Waterford Township about 20 miles northwest of Detroit but found no trace of Hoffa.

Hoffa was last heard from when he telephoned his wife on July 30 and told her he was waiting at the Red Fox Restaurant to meet Anthony Tony Jack Giacalone, described in testimony before a Senate committee as a syndicate figure in the Detroit area.

Montreal Transit Rolling

MONTREAL (CP) — Bus and subway service began rolling today for the first time in 11 days as striking transit workers returned to their jobs under the threat of fines and decertification of their union.

Rush-hour traffic assumed more manageable proportions as people who used their cars to get to work during the strike took public transit once more.

About 2,150 cashiers, clerks, garage and maintenance workers employed by the Montreal Urban Community Transit Commission walked out Sept. 18, to support contract demands.

Maintenance workers voted 406 to 213 Sunday to obey a back-to-work law enacted at a special session of the Quebec national assembly.

However a union official said the men were dissatisfied with the legislated settlement and may use "guerilla tactics"

Gas Tank Bombs Found In Extortion Plot

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pipe bombs set with time-delay fuses have been discovered in under-ground storage tanks at three Pittsburgh gasoline stations in what the FBI says was part of a multi-million-dollar extortion plot against major oil companies.

Federal and local authorities dug out the explosives late Saturday and early Sunday after evacuating nearby residents. None of the bombs exploded. Authorites would not say what led them to the devices.

During the weekend, Paul Douglass Methven, 32, of Virginia Beach, Va., and Larry Shaffer, 34, of Chicago, were arrested and are being held in Chicago and Norfolk, Va., in lieu of $250,000 bail each in connection with threats against Gulf Oil Corp., which has its headquarters here.

Authorities said payment demands were made to Gulf in two letters received Sept. 20, threatening that bombs already set would be detonated if $6.5 million was not paid. Identical letters were received by six other oil companies.

The FBI in Washington said Saturday that three surface bombs exploded in other parts of the United States, causing minor damage, and that four others were found undetonated.

Police said the pipe bombs found in Pittsburgh contained a shotgun shell and a firing pin designed to fire after a safety catch was eaten away by acid. They estimated it would have taken three to four weeks for the bombs to have gone off.

After spending 68 years becoming one of Europe's great cars, Lancia comes to Canada. Unknown.

Chances are, you've never heard of a Lancia. We don't like to admit it, but we can understand it. Not too many Lancias have ever been to Canada.

But in Europe, our name is a household word. Lancia was acclaimed decades before Mr. Maserati, Mr. Lamborghini and Dr. Porsche ever put their first cars on the street. (We've been making Lancias since 1906). And the races between Ferraris and Lancias have become legend.

As a matter of fact, cars might be nothing like they are today if it weren't for Lancia. It was the first car in the world with a V-type engine (1919), the first car with an independent suspension (1922), the first car with a unitary construction (1922).

So much for what Lancia was. Let us tell you something about what it is.

The car we're introducing to Canada is called the Lancia Beta. It's a highly refined touring car in the original tradition.

In performance, the Beta is nothing short of extraordinary. It is remarkably responsive through each of its 5 forward gears. And it corners like it's racing forebears.

The car is meticulously finished. The doors, the trunk, all the seams fit. The paint is burnished to a level you simply don't see on mass-produced vehicles. The interior is sumptuous.

For all its enormous speed and exceptional handling, the Beta is not the least bit nervous or tempermental. It doesn't have to be tuned every other day. It doesn't require a mechanic as a permanent houseguest. In short, it doesn't demand much more from you than the car you now own.

The Beta comes in two body styles: a Coupe and a 4-door Saloon.

Having read this far, no doubt you must assume that to buy either you'd have to pay an arm and a leg. This is very far from true. The fact is, both Lancia models cost far less than you'd ever expect to pay for cars of this type.

Which means they certainly won't be unknown long.

Cabinet Shuffle

The country's new finance minister is, according to The Canadian Press, "the blunt-talking lawyer who, as minister of energy, guided the federal government through the country's greatest fuel crisis . . ."

A flattering description of 43-year-old Donald Macdonald. But a more accurate word picture of his role as energy minister might be: "the man who hung on for dear life as Canada's energy policy went through several readjustments and upheavals."

That is if you subscribe to the theory that Canada does have an energy policy, if the collection of expedient compromises and day-to-day decisions forced upon the Trudeau government can be called a national policy.

We'll suspend judgment of his suitability as finance minister, but a small but significant indication that his boss doesn't have confidence unbounding in the reluctant Macdonald's financial wizardry appears in Pierre Trudeau's announcement of a 10-member cabinet economic committee "to give leadership in the economy . . . to show action and take initiative." Giving it that old collegial try, so to speak.

Something of the same sort was tried earlier, when the prime minister's office quietly assembled a forum of economists — like the U.S. presidential scheme of things, with its Council of Economic Advisers — to provide alternatives to the usual finance department advice. But former finance minister John Turner took it, rightly, as a vote of non-confidence in his own and his department's capability, and forced the council to be disbanded.

Whether a committee of cabinet ministers can succeed where a strong-willed and powerful cabinet minister like Turner failed to bring the Canadian economy under control seems doubtful, but we're willing to wait and see what Trudeau means by his Friday statement on self-restraint among Canadians in pay and price demands:

"We want to do it in a co-operative and voluntary fashion and we are determined to seek positive results, and it will be the aim of the team to obtain these results."

Among his other cabinet changes, the prime minister has nodded in the direction of the discouraged and disappointing British Columbia Liberals by appointing Ron Basford to the justice portfolio — no small honor, considering that previous justice ministers of the past decade include Turner and Trudeau himself.

Moving Otto Lang out of the job and into transport is another good choice, and the jovial persuader Don Jamieson should make a good minister of industry, trade and commerce — essentially a quasi-ambassadorial job. Heaven knows, with our current trade balance, Canada needs somebody who can push our exports with vigor.

Relieving Jean Marchand of the onerous duties associated with being transport minister, but still leaving him a member of cabinet without portfolio, is a kind move on Trudeau's part. Several months of complete rest is probably what he needs to shake his hypertension condition and rebuild his formidable political skills.

Long Distance Swim

One Way Out

The shortage of land to build houses on is often cited as one of the main contributing causes of Canada's housing crisis. It's always seemed specious reasoning in a country as huge and as sparesely-settled as Canada. Now there's some hard evidence to refute the myth.

A study by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. — prepared a year ago but strangely still unpublished — apparently demolishes the idea that the problem is a scarcity of land, as housebuilders and developers claim frequently.

Some evidence that the situation is not too different here in B.C. in the sea of mountains where there is supposedly a shortage of good land upon which to build is the example of Prince George, cited by Vancouver Sun columnist Paul St. Pierre in a series of articles on the housing crisis.

For two decades, Prince George municipality has worked actively to ensure adequate supplies of building lots.

Once already, when the province imposed the agricultural land freeze three years ago, Prince George moved quickly to bring the price of lots down by dumping more land on the market. The price of a fully-serviced lot there is just $7,500 (compared to $25,000 in Gordon Head) — and Prince George is a city which has seen a continuing influx of people in recent years. But you don't hear Prince George politicians weep about the need to restrict population growth, as Mayor Art Phillips of Vancouver does whenever prodded about the city's poor housing record.

There's no shortage of land to build on in the Vancouver area — or in the capital region either. As St. Pierre points, out there's enough land in the vicinity of Vancouver to house everyone in Canada in a single-family dwelling.

More municipalities could profitably follow Prince George's example, instead of allowing artificial shortages of building lots to develop as a result of near-sighted and timid policies.

Generous Response

Through your columns, I would like to express the sincere appreciation of the university community to the citizens of Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Saanich, North Saanich, Central Saanich, Sidney, Sooke, Colwood and Langford, for their generous response in meeting the critical need for accommodation for students coming to attend the University of Victoria at the beginning of September. As a result of this response from many concered members of these communities, we were successful in placing most of the students who were looking for a place to live.

The newspapers, radio and television stations played an important role in carrying the message of these needs to the communities and I wish to thank them also for their efforts on our behalf.—Shirley Baker, Manager, Housing and Conference Services, University of Victoria.

Obey or Resign

Much has been said regarding the death penalty in Canada and the B.C. Police Commission has tried to change the attitude of the solicitor-general towards the criminal. What the public really means is that priority should be given to ridding our land of killers, for these persons cannot be rehabilitated and should be disposed of by hanging or electric chair or firing squad which ever is convenient and not kept in our institutions at public expense.

One wonders if the solicitor-general has ever witnessed the scene of a brutal murder or if he has merely read a report of the case:

It seems to me that if the solicitor-general is not able to do his duty he should resign and a man who will see that justice should take his place, for this is not a matter of one man's opinion. This is the law and the cabinet must obey it, for they made it so, passed it, and to their shame have broken it many times.

Crime is increasing and will double in intensity unless we act now.—P. W. de P. Taylor, Sooke.

Support Police

The Victoria police deserve the support of the unions and the public to obtain their contract.

Certainly $16,000 does not compensate for the dangerous job they are doing. When we see men driving alone in cars after midnight, we shudder to think what may happen to them. With the tourist trade and the migrant criminals massing here, their work load is much heavier in ratio to other municipalities. It is a sad day for Victoria when we are losing some of our best police to other jobs.

The police force above all other departments in this city should be given precedence. They should have first class sensitive equipment, good cars, more manpower and a good salary. — Anne V. Sherbrook, 1919 Davie Street.

On Sewage

For the past several weeks I have been intending to sit down and write to you and have only just now arrived at the "fruition of my resolve."

My subject is sewage and has to do with a recent write-up on John White's back-yard system which was followed up with an editorial and letter to the editor by John.

In short, I wish to thank you and your staff for what I consider to be one of the first really honest attempts to give the story as the originator intended. To accompany this with an editorial of a supportive nature was astounding.

Perhaps I have seen too many days when, in my opinion, the press appeared to be under the power of the previous director of the metropolitan board of health. As I see it, such articles as yours would have been outright heresy. The needs of the community are changing, a look at the problems and attempted solutions in the Okanagan are witness to that. So perhaps the sentiments of people like Lloyd Smith and John White are seen in a more kindly light.

Your articles have done much to renew my faith in the editorial staff. The ecology freaks are not crazy altogether, any more than are all those in the "establishment." Articles which take an honest look at the honest efforts of those who do care are most welcome. They are appreciated even more when the subject person is not making waves for profit but is simply, honestly, interested in our spaceship earth.— Dick Faulks, 196 Werra Road.

MAURICE WESTERN

Two Classes of Immigrants?

OTTAWA — The debate on immigration, which began last February with publication of the green paper, has recently taken a rather disturbing turn. As reported by senior immigration officials, the federal and provincial governments have been discussing some sort of contract arrangement, complete with sanctions, binding newcomers to work in designated areas.

For Manpower planners, the attractions of such a scheme are obvious. For some provinces the idea may also have political appeal. Quebec, to cite the most obvious example, has been pressing, under successive governments, for greater control of immigration policy. It has always been difficult to see how her dedemands could be accommodated without interference with the traditional freedom of migration in this country.

While not ruling out such arrangements Robert Andras, the federal manpower minister, drew attention to an important objection in comments last week:

"Such suggestions," he said, "are not easy to reconcile with the important principle that, once we have accepted someone as a suitable permanent member of Canada's population, he should have essentially the same rights that Canadians enjoy, including the right of freedom of movement."

Obviously, there is no right of immigration. Canada, like other receiving countries, has always prescribed rules of admittance, which have varied radically over the years. Some would argue that it is not unfair to prospective immigrants to attach a price to a privilege.

Racketeers Profit

Let them work their way to the full citizenship rights enjoyed by others by serving for stated terms in designated areas. At least they will not be bound to particular employers as some have been, and may still be, through indentured contract arrangements worked out by racketeers.

Surely, however, there are some severe practical difficulties. Another principle strongly upheld in Canada, endorsed by all parties and by most groups submitting briefs on immigration, is that we ought not to practise discrimination.

This is the great merit claimed for the points system. While it may in practice, as critics maintain, favor people from the advanced countries, it is at least not overtly discriminatory. How is this principle to be reconciled with schemes now under consideration?

We live in a period of rapid, sometimes unexpected change. It is not possible to state with assurance what skills will be in greatest demand at this time next year. But of this we can be confident — some will be in greater demand than others. If there are specific shortages, as there usually are, some industries will be adversely affected and Manpower and Immigration will not only be ready but very eager to welcome applicants with the required qualifications. It may, indeed, be much to our advantage to persuade them that they should come here instead of moving to Australia.

Let us suppose that the potential immigrant is a specialist in some branch of medicine or a person with impressive qualifications in a high-technology industry. One can imagine many similar cases. Will he be told by field officers that he is acceptable only if he signs a paper binding himself in advance (on pain of penalties) to work, say, for two years in Yellowknife or Trois Rivieres? Or will such a requirement be waived for the most practical of reasons?

Step Back

There will be other cases involving writers, for example in which it will matter very little to Manpower where the newcomer settles because the demand for his services is not localized.

If the department is guided by common (and not bureaucratic) sense, such applicants will be admitted — unfettered by contracts. But in that event we will have in our midst two classes of landed immigrants—the preferred who enjoy the freedom of movement and the run-of-the-mill who are required to live like persons on parole.

The preferred, admittedly, will be few in numbers, compared to the second-class. This will not alter the fact of discrimination, government imposed. From this standpoint, we will have taken a step back, for at present immigrants (once accepted by increasingly slow processes) are not only accorded the common rights in the very important matter of movement; they are also treated alike by government.

Andras, it seems to me, is very wise to counsel caution. The committee should explore very carefully the implications of area designation. Certainly, it ought not to be influenced by the fact that contract arrangements have been discussed in federal-provincial meetings. A thoroughly repulsive idea does not become more acceptable merely because it appeals to certain bureaucrats at both senior and junior levels.

HAROLD GREER

An Unhealthy Trend in Government

TORONTO — One of the recurring features of the Sept. 18 Ontario election was the unusually large number of constituencies where provincial issues were unimportant and the only question to be decided was which candidate would best represent the riding.

In riding after riding, one found voters and campiagn workers indifferent to the larger issues and content simply to elect a "good constituency man" — or woman, as the sex might be. This appeared to mean a member who would be a kind of ombudsman for the riding—one who would receive and process constituents' complaints against the bureaucracy of government (any level of government) and who would see that the riding got the public services it needs.

Every election of course, contains a significant number of such strictly local contests but my impression is that they are a lot more common than they used to be, both provincially and federally.

The complexity of modern government, the lack of major philosophical differences between the Liberal and Conservative parties, the disparities in the pace of economic and social change which make it awkward for the political parties to say the same thing to all people, have encouraged a trend to "constituency elections" which, while understandable, is altogether unhealthy.

Bad Legislators

It is unhealthy because it produces lousy parliaments. In deciding which candidate will best "look after" a riding, the question of whether he or she will also make a good parliamentarian, or a good legislator, becomes either secondary or non-existent. Indeed, one gets the impression that many if not most voters are simply not conscious of electing legislators, even though the winner will be a member of a legislature. Legislating is something that "government" does and government and well, one government is as bad as another.

It is therefore hardly surprising that the parliaments produced by such elections are what they are—overloaded with members who spend as little time as possible in parliamentary activity, who have little to contribute except their votes when the division bell rings and who feel their real place is in their offices looking after constituency problems of which they have many.

The great trouble with this, of course, is that lousy parliaments lead to "strong"—that is, remote, autocratic and insensitive—governments. In theory at least, parliamentary democracy prevents autocratic government by giving the executive branch enough power to govern while insisting it be "responsible" to the legislative branch. But the theory can be easily vitiated in practice.

In practical terms, "responsible" government means being constantly subjected to parliamentary questions, debate inspection and alternatives, with the ultimate weapon—the power to vote the government money—resting with parliament.

If most parliamentarians are content to be simply good constituency men, then the parliamentary checks and balances against autocratic government either go unused or become mere formalities. A vicious spiral is set up, with "good constituency" members producing weak parliaments and weak parliaments leading to the production at election time of still more good constituency members.

The process has long been at work in this province, according to the Ontario commission on the legislature. In its fourth report, obviously rushed into print to serve hopefully as a bible for the newly elected legislature, the commission (that's Conservative Dalton Camp, NDPer Douglas Fisher and Liberal Farquhar Oliver) declared:

"The practices of the legislature . . . would seem to us to have been shaped over long years by a powerful, rarely-expressed myth that the present role, ahead of any others, for the Ontario legislature is to let the government govern. That is the prime purpose of the ministry and the administration is to provide services and facilities to the citizens of Ontario, and to report on this to the legislature on occasion for approval.

"There isn't much place in this myth for the parliamentary and democratic ideals of participation, confrontation, examination and discussion of policy and policy alternatives in the legislature, on any basis of equality in importance with the theme of the government governing."

Needs Radical Reform

One of the major reasons for the development of the myth, the commission suggests, is the "constituency syndrome" — the "inversion" of the member's role from one of legislator and scrutinizer of government spending to one of looking after his caseload of constituents' needs and complaints.

To describe the problem, however, is one thing. To cure it is another. My own impression is that no cure is realistic unless it involves some fairly radical transfer of power from the executive to the legislative branch of government, so that governments cannot in law thumb their noses at their parliaments whenever it suits them. But the Camp commission's approach is much more modest and amounts to creating situations where it would be merely more awkward to engage in nose-thumbing.

Thus the Ontario legislature has ample rights now to question the government. The rub is that the government doesn't have to answer, and in practice it answers only what it feels, politically, it has to.

One could change parliament law to require that a minister who does not answer a proper question within a reasonable length of time is automatically in contempt of parliament and must resign. But the Camp commission would merely increase, by various devices, the political pressure on a minister to answer.

Similarly, only ministers have the right now to introduce legislation involving the expenditure of public money, a condition of parliamentary life which rather severely restricts the relevancy of any legislation a private member might wish to put forward.

Admittedly it would take a constitutional amendment to give non-government members the power to introduce "money bills" but the Camp commission doesn't even discuss it.

Instead it suggests they make more use of the power they now have to introduce motions — which are not prohibited if they call for the expenditure of public money. But somehow it isn't quite the same thing. Such motions, even if adopted by the legislature, aren't binding on the government.

LONDON — Picadilly fashions among army recruits are frowned down by the war office. Turned-up trousers with low shoes, rakishly-cut uniforms and other affectations must go. A new set of dress regulations has been put into effect which puts these reforms into practice. Low shoes are forbidden except in the Highland regiments. The jockey style of army caps with a shapeless crown and an exaggerated brim is forbidden. Only in the trenches is it permissible to remove the wire frame.

Portuguese Bluebloods Leaving Home

By MARVINE HOWE
New York Times Service

ESTORIL — Portugal's Golden Triangle stretches 22 miles from this luxury beach resort to the fashionable fishing village of Cascais and the lush green mountain spa of Sintra.

Before the Second World War and since, the Golden Triangle has been a haven where Europe's uncrowned royalty, unseated aristocrats and the well-to-do retired have taken refuge. But now it is losing its lustre. The royal hunts, extravagant balls and lavish banquets have gone with the Portuguese revolution.

The outcast nobility who have no place else to go are staying despite the upheaval that began in April, 1974, but the lives they are leading are now modest.

Other bluebloods are leaving Portugal for a variety of reasons: currency controls, seizures of property, the chaotic school system.

"They have nothing to stay for," said a Portuguese aristocrat, who is thinking about going to Brazil. "There's no social life left in Portugal, no more special facilities and above all no more respect for anyone."

Don Juan de Borbon y Battenberg, claimant to the Spanish throne, lives here on a hill in the flowering Villa Giralda and maintains that he will stay until the situation changes in Spain.

Don Juan, whose title is Count of Barcelona, is the son of the last reigning monarch, King Alfonso XIII, who died in exile in Rome in 1941. The claimant set up his court in exile here in what was formerly the Estoril Golf Club in 1946 "to be near my people in case they need me."

For years he quietly presided over his shadow court until Generalissimo Francisco Franco officially named his son, Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, as successor to the throne.

The father is still pressing his claim, and because of that he is increasingly criticized among the habitues of the Golden Triangle.

Prince Henri de Bourbon-Orleans, the Count of Paris, who is married to a member of the Portuguese royal family, still owns the Quinta do Anjinho, the Estate of the Small, near Sintra, but he and his family have paid fewer visits lately.

Former King Umberto II of Italy, who has been living in Cascais since 1946, when Italy became a republic, insists that he has no intention of leaving Portugal, but he has been travelling abroad a good deal, and when he is here he leads a retiring life.

Umberto's sister, Giovanna, the former Queen of Bulgaria, tells friends she intends to stay in Portugal and make the best of things. Her son, former King Simeon of Bulgaria, lives in Spain and comes over for visits with his children.

"Giovanna was always active with local charities and is trying to keep it up, but there's not much to be done in the way of welfare work or benefit bazaars these days," a close friend said.

Just before Easter the League for Unity and Revolutionary Action, an extreme leftist group, occupied the Cascais poor house, the Queen's favorite charity, alleging that the old people were receiving inhumane treatment.

"Giovanna was used to such things in Bulgaria and so knows how to talk to the bearded radicals," her friend said. "She took over the usual fruits and sweets for Easter and told the revolutionaries that what they had done was a good thing if they were going to help the old people."

The former Queen's only complaint was that after the revolutionaries occupied the Cascais country club they took its yellow damask chairs to the poor house. "It was not practical," she told her friend. "The old folks needed something that could be washed."

Magda Lupescu, who married the late King Carol of Romania in 1947 after he left the throne, still lives in Estoril and is known as Princess Elena. Even before the Portuguese revolution she led a quiet life and is now almost never seen.

The revolution has affected Portugal's national royalty more than the rest. Although the country has been a republic since 1910, the late dictator, Premier Antonio Salazar, always pampered the royal family, the Braganças, and many people believed he was a monarchist at heart.

The Portuguese pretender, Dom Durante Nuno, who is 67 and ailing, never really aspired to the throne, but his oldest son, Durante-Joao, Prince of Beira, was groomed for the job.

After the left-wing military takeover, Duratinho, as the prince is known to friends of the family, was advised to leave the country and is said to be in France. It was rumored that he had been implicated in a right-wing military plot.

"The basic trouble is that people are scared of a Communist takeover here, particularly those of us who saw Hungary, Romania and Czechoslovakia go," said a member of the dwindling Austrian aristocracy who preferred not to give her name.

She has lived here for 25 years and said she would hang on because she hoped the situation would change. "If the country turns Communist I'll go back to Austria, of course," she added.

Many wealthy foreigners and Portuguese are using small cars and disguising themselves in shabby blue-jeans because they are afraid of any kind of show nowadays, she said.

"The quality of life has deteriorated so," she said. "Most people have lost a lot, and those who haven't are afraid to show they've still got money."

HARVEST OF REVOLUTION: WORKERS SHARING POWER

ALVERCA, Portugal — On the office bulletin board at Provimi, a feed mill in this industrial suburb of Lisbon, management has posted a proposed schedule of working hours.

"We ask the workers' opinion on the following winter hours," the notice says, advising that a copy is going to the Workers' Commission.

This is the new style in post-revolutionary Portugal. A feudal, hierarchal factory system in which a boss was a feared and frequently arbitrary ruler is over. Power in the plant is now shared between managers and the elected commissions of workers. The men in coveralls have a say with the men in business suits over the conduct of their working day.

"Life is now more secure," says Carlos Alberto Coelho da Costa, 37, a quiet and dignified electrician who has been at Provimi since the sparkling white plant opened five years ago.

"The management can't fire us without a good cause," Da Costa explained. "Many times this happened in the past. One man was purged for kicking a cap. Now, they can't punish without the permission of the Workers' Commission."

Da Costa and the other six commission members can meet once a week with Gerrit Van Beest, the Dutch director general or top manager of the plant.

"In the beginning," Van Beest said with a grin, "it was a little hard," and he pointed to his grey hairs to make the point. "But we are getting used to it."

Van Beest, 44, came here in January 1974, a few months before the coup that struck down the old government. Would he like to return to the old ways?

"No. Something had to be done. Things in the old regime were not correct. They were extremely wrong."

Provimi, whose 175 workers turn out feed for cows, hogs, chickens and rabbits, is a wholly owned subsidiary of the Central Soya Co., a Fort Wayne, Ind., giant in the feed business.

It is clearly a good place to work. Wages average about $4,000 a year, 15 or 20 percent above the average for factory workers. The town is dominated by a tall white silo, and the mill, with its sweetish smell, is clean and orderly.

But it was not always so. There are 14 unions here, some with only one member, and they could not or would not service grievances.

"The union was an instrument on which the boss could play music," said Joao Martins Correia, 55, a truck driver. So the workers, inspired by the rhetoric of the April revolution, chose their commission and its fills the vacuum left by the unions.

The new commission presented Van Beest with 50 demands — some of them "crazy things," he recalled — covering everything from higher pay and shorter hours to a bigger washroom and free work shoes.

A nine-day sit-in in the summer of 1974 got the negotiations going, and a slowdown then spurred their conclusion. When it was all over, the commission won a 15 per cent pay hike, a narrowing of differentials, a cut in weekly hours from 48 to 45, the new shoes and the bigger washroom. They got a pressure cooker in the company cafeteria, but Van Beest convinced them that overhauling and air-conditioning the kitchen would cost too much.

In all, his wage and other costs jumped $400,000 a year, no small item for a plant with sales of $23 million.

But the push and shove had cleared the air and established a new routine. Productivity or output per man fell 40 per cent after the strike. Now it has risen 25 per cent and is still climbing. The Workers' Commission has asked Van Beest for only two meetings in the last three months.

No one at Provimi pretends that everything runs without a hitch. Foremen are so intimidated by the change that they are reluctant to give orders. Not one worker has been disciplined; "None need it," Da Costa insisted.

There have been four men fired, all at the instance of the commission. Two were charter members of the first Workers' Commission and used their new-found authority to promote themselves into higher-paying jobs. The other two were henchmen. "Power went to their heads," Da Costa said solemnly.

But this is clearly a healthier workplace. Before the revolution the cafeteria and bar were segregated, with separate sections for management and workers. Now they eat and drink together. For the first time last year there was one and not two separate Christmas parties.

Power of Positive Press

By RUSSELL BAKER

Belatedly, journalism is taking former President Nixon's advice to dwell on what is good about America and the result is a spate of print from places where life is good.

Reporters and commentators, illustrating the power of positive seeking, have uncovered five or six medium-sized U.S. cities where government is not in ruin and citizen relationships are downright human.

Others have discovered prairie towns where hardly anyone is feeling murderous. Remnants of the antique village life have been discovered thriving and enthusiastically reported upon to orchestrate the swelling theme that yes, yes, there is still stability, peace and decency in American life.

This tendency to emphasize the unbarbarous is still slight, but there is a flood effect in journalism which often turns today's trickle into tomorrow's torrent. Already one feels the subtle compulsion to roam the rural byways — to "get out into the country," as the scolds always say, "and get back in touch with the real America."

It would be pleasant to do so. I know the places to go for the kind of news that warms the tired spirit. There is Brunswick, Maine, clean as a Dutch kitchen and stiff with 19th century dignity under those great old elms. I would dwell heavily on those elms and omit mention of the place in their shadow which has the fullest collection of pornographic literature north of 42nd Street. It is, after all, a college town.

I would go to Red Oak, Iowa, in the corn-harvest season and see those rosy, strong, white American youngsters in their band uniforms or to Williamsburg, Va., and dwell on the tourists at quiet grips with their moving 18th century tradition.

I would drive up the Snake River and into the billowing gold wheat fields of eastern Oregon and down the Columbia River and buy cherries at roadside stands. Then I would drive down the Oregon shoreline and eat small oysters in a restaurant overlooking the Pacific and stop at Little River, Calif. I would describe the deer that come down the meadow and stand outside your window peering in, and not depress anyone by mentioning the mountainsides ravaged by timber-cutting.

Things are wonderful, indeed, if you know where to look — and look without questioning. But the fact is that this wonderful America is not the America most Americans now inhabit. Most of us live in cities or their overflow.

Most of the bad news from America comes from the cities, because most of them are very bad news indeed, and because most people live in or around them, this means that most news is unpleasant. The cities poison not only their own air and human relationships within them, but also the larger communities around them.

In highly urbanized states like Massachusetts and New York, the decay of the cities spreads into the entire state, placing heavy financial drains on state budgets which plague taxpayers far from the scene, heighten sectional animosities and guarantee short lifespans for governors.

Getting the federal government to recognize that the problem of cities is the nation's problem — after all, cities are where the nation lives — is almost impossible, and for good reason.

The great bulk of the money Washington takes out of the cities is necessary to sustain the country's immense war machine.

Not surprisingly, Washington prefers to issue press releases declaring the urban problem solved and blaming local governments for not knowing how to manage money.

Yet the core of the urban problem is the competition between cities and suburbs for the limited tax money left over after Washington has plucked the goose.

OLD AGENCIES NEVER DIE...

"Congress has a genius for creating new departments, agencies, boards, commissions and bureaus, but it almost never abolishes them." — U.S. Senator William Proxmire.

By GEOFFREY STEVENS

OTTAWA — Just because a good idea has its origin south of the border is no reason why Canadians should not embrace it, eagerly and gratefully. For the past couple of years, Senator Proxmire, a Democrat from Wisconsin, has been waging war on waste in government by prodding the U.S. Congress to abolish agencies which have either outlived their purpose or did not have much purpose to begin with.

In 1974, he introduced a bill to abolish 17 agencies; nine were eventually eliminated. This summer, he introduced a new bill to get rid of the remaining eight, plus five additional ones he had stumbled across. Senator Proxmire estimated elimination of the 13 would save U.S. taxpayers a handsome $700-million a year. Some of his victims: the Selective Service System (which is still costing $48-million a year even though the move to a volunteer army has ended the draft); the "dirty tricks" department of the Central Intelligence Agency; the President's Council of Physical Fitness and Sports; and something called the Renegotiation Board.

Is it possible that there might be in Canada a few, or a few dozen, federal agencies that are, shall we say, redundant? Perhaps. Of course, to give credit where credit is due, the government did decide recently to do away with the Halifax Relief Commission established to assist the victims of the Halifax Explosion of 1917.

A glance through the government telephone directory and the 1975-76 "blue book" of spending estimates turns up a number of potentially worthy candidates for extinction. Why not start by abolishing the entire Department of Veterans' Affairs? There is no reason — aside from political ones — why DVA could not be incorporated in the Department of Health and Welfare. This would by no means save the full $684-million Veterans' Affairs is spending this year, but it would eliminate a good many of the 433 DVA employees.

Let's not allow ourselves to be sidetracked by the Senate of Canada (saving through liquidation, $8-million) and press on instead to smaller targets. What does the Advisory Bureau for Computing do? Or the Canada Institute for Scientific and Technical Information? Do taxpayers really need to spend $18,000 on the Army Benevolent Fund or $1.9-million on the Bureau of Pension Advocates?

The Bureau of Intellectual Property may have its defenders, but what about the Office of the Custodian (formerly the Custodian of Enemy Property which enemy?)? The Office of the Custodian (located in the Department of Supply and Services) should not, perish the thought, be confused with the Foreign Claims Commission, whatever it is, which belongs to External Affairs.

Can anyone make an unassailable case for retention of the Canadian Government Specifications Board, the Canadian Permanent Committee on Geographical Names (it recommends names for mountains and so on), the Civil Service Mutual Benefit Society, or the Textile and Clothing Board?

The Commonwealth War Graves Commission is undoubtedly a noble institution. Is it worth $900,000? Do we need it and the National Battlefields Commission ($790,000)? Do we really need both a Pension Appeals Board and a Pension Review Board (the latter alone costs $343,000 to keep in business)? How about the War Veterans Allowance Board (operating expenses, exclusive of grants, $724,000)? The Yukon Public Service Staff Relations Board (known to its chums as good old YPSSRB)? The Standards Council of Canada ($2.2-million)? The Program to Enhance Productivity (PEP)? The Pharmaceutical Industry Development Advisory Committee? The Machinery and Equipment Advisory Board? Is there any valid reason why the taxpayers of Canada should maintain 17 bureaucrats, at an annual cost of $484,000, to organize federal-provincial conferences? If there isn't, let's do away with the Canadian Intergovernmental Conference Secretariat.

Senator Proxmire is quite right, of course, when he says it is one thing to create a bureaucracy and quite another thing to get rid of it. Perhaps an alternative would be to sweep all the obscure federal agencies into a new department. We could call it Miscellaneous Canada.

Police Still Demand Curbs on Prostitutes

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia police commission would want an alternate form of control before going along with the decriminalization of prostitution, according to chairman John Hogarth.

Decriminalization of prostitution was one of the chief recommendations in a report to the commission by Monique Layton, a graduate student at the University of B.C.

She also recommended abandoning jail terms for the first offence of soliciting and establishment of half-way houses for women who have engaged in prostitution.

After five months of investigating, Layton, 45, and mother of five, said many prostitutes were teenaged girls and that many boys as young as 12 were offering their services for $10 in a city steam bath.

Hogarth said some changes in laws pertaining to prostitution are the responsibility of federal and provincial governments, but that copies of Layton's report would be distributed to affected police forces and government departments.

He said the commission wants a further extensive meeting with Layton to discuss her report and recommendations by November.

Three other reports received dealth with the relationship between the police and East Indians, municipal police management in B.C. and one dealing with police in relation to the prevention of juvenile delinquency.

Deborah Nilson of the Vancouver Women's Publishing Project said that if prostitution became a legal business, pimps would be transferred into managers or government bureaucrats would be transferred into pimps.

Gloria Greenfield of the Vancouver Women's Bookstore said that if prostitution was legalized, "it would just be another government-controlled thing, with more government bureaucrats running the show."

PICKETS DOWN AT ELKFORD

ELKFORD (CP) — A Cominco spokesman says picket lines at the company's fording coal operations 18 miles north of here ended Saturday after an order by the British Columbia Labor Relations Board.

The line was set up to protest suspension of 62 workers who themselves had walked off their jobs earlier in the week to protest firing of a truck driver.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Justice Minister Ron Basford announced Sunday approval of seven loans totalling $18.2 million for the first phase of Vancouver's False Creek development. The largest loan is $6.9 million to a co-operative building society to build an apartment complex.

VERNON (CP) — About 80 members of the Pressmen's Union and the International Typographical Union met Sunday and decided the latest offer from Thomson B.C. Newspapers Ltd., was unacceptable.

Mediation talks adjourned Thursday after a day-and-a-half because no progress was being made.

Derailment Slows Puffer

SQUAMISH (CP) — The Royal Hudson's return trip to North Vancouver was delayed 90 minutes Sunday when a split switch at the British Columbia Railway yard here caused a minor derailment.

A B.C. Rail spokesman said cause of the split switch was under investigation and there appeared to be no damage as a result of the mishap. Only one of the train's cars was derailed.

No injuries were reported. The Royal Hudson is to resume its normal excursion run Wednesday.

LOGGING STUDIED ON STEEP SLOPES

How can you log steep mountainsides economically without damaging the ecology of the area?

The answer to this question is being sought by both industry and the B.C. Forest Service and initially the Kootenay region has become the testing ground.

Members of a specially formed steep slope committee have now completed a report on their first year of research and studies. Their work centred on the southern interior of the province where a large percentage of harvestable timber is found on steep mountainsides.

In its recommendations the committee conceded that "some years of concentrated effort" will be needed to introduce cable logging on a large scale to the southern interior, and that harvesting and replanting costs be considered as a major factor in planning logging operations. It was also emphasized the Forest Service must present firm and clear objectives and restraints which in turn will enable industry to design and employ suitable equipment, and plan their operations.

A significent section of the study involved trails with skyline logging in which harvested logs from steep slopes could be delivered by overhead cables to assembly points in the valleys.

Taking a leading role in this aspect of the study is Hans Waelti, of the Forest Service's technical services division. On of the main objectives, he says, is to find practical and economical ways of harvesting timber on the steep slopes without causing damage and subsequent erosion to the land.

Quebec Break Platform

QUEBEC (CP) — Independence for Quebec will have to be a priority if the Parti Quebecois ever wins a provincial election, the PQ whip in the national assembly says.

Marcel Leger, member for the Montreal riding of Lafontaine, said in a recent interview, that he would resign should the PQ not take steps to negotiate with Ottawa for separation immediatly upon assuming power.

Other PQ members said last week that their priorities were to replace the current Liberal goverment of Premier Robert Bourassa.

Leger ponted out that the PQ, with six seats in the legislature, originally obtained support because of its separatist-oriented platform.

It is not unrealistic to assume the PQ will take power soon, Leger said, because of growing disenchantment with Bourassa's government, which holds 98 of 110 national assembly seats.

The PQ whip said various scandals within the current government account for the increasing unhappiness among the Quebec electorate.

DROWNING RULED ACCIDENT

The drowning of a Polish trawler cook Sept. 9 off the coast of Vancouver Island was accidental, coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said Friday after conducting an inquiry.

Wladyslaw Labunski, 39, of Gydnia, Poland, fell from a rope and wood ladder on the 2,650-ton trawler Sirius.

Labunski had used the ladder to swing over to Sirius' mother ship and when swinging back an hour later, the ladder had tightened with the ship's drift.

Labunski slipped off and missed the safety nets.

Adoption Flop Laid to Publicity

REGINA (CP) — The Michigan couple who became embroiled this summer in a controversial Saskatchewan adoption case believe their adoption of three Prince Albert children would have succeeded, "had we been left alone."

Instead, they said in an interview in the Regina Leader-Post, that they and the three children became the focus of an international controversy and the target for what they described as harassment by the news media.

The case aroused protests from various Saskatchewan groups who contended that Mr. and Mrs. Marcien Doucette of Prince Albert, who looked after the children for eight years as foster parents, should have been allowed to adopt them.

There were also arguments that the children would lose their Indian heritage and should not have been sent out of the country. The children now have been returned to Saskatchewan and are in a new foster home awaiting a permanent home.

The Michigan couple, Mr. and Mrs. William Todd of Ann Arbor, said they would still like to adopt the three children but have been told that now it is virtually impossible. They at first sought a temporary separation to give the children time to think about their future and to allow themselves time to recuperate.

The three — Harold, 9, Eileen, 10, and Geraldine, 11 — stayed with the Todds for 10 weeks.

During that time, Mrs. Todd said she lost 12 pounds and had to watch nervously for reporters — "Just the fear of not knowing when the next group was going to pull up in front of your house and catch the kids out in the yard and start asking them all kinds of questions."

"It was a very, very horrible time."

Wife Takes All

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — An Oklahoma divorce law that takes effect Wednesday gives a wife all of a couple's property, even hubby's socks and pipe.

"I sure as heck didn't mean to give all my cows to my wife" in the unlikely event of a divorce, said Sate Sen. John Young, a country lawyer who started the idea.

He said he just wanted a woman to have the right to regain her maiden name after a divorce. He said the intent was to make Oklahoma's divorce law in accord with the equal rights amendment "where everybody starts even in a divorce court."

Young's 250-word measure was passed without close scrutiny in the closing hours of the 1975 legislature. The give-away to the ladies was on the front page.

"When a divorce shall be granted, the wife shall be restored to her maiden or former name if she so desires, and also to all the property, lands, tenements, hereditaments owned by either party before marriage or acquired by either party in their own right after such marriage, and not previously disposed of," the bill states.

Boren signed the bill June 12, but no one discovered what it really said until September.

Busy Start for Fall

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Fall officially arrived Sept. 22 and close in its wake Victoria's entertainment season for 1975-76 started with a rush of events.

Victoria Art Gallery, Open Space, UVic's MacLaurin Auditorium and McPherson Playhouse hosted out-of-town as well as resident artists in seven events on four consecutive days.

Victoria Mucical Art Society opening at McPherson Playhouse, Sunday, did not go according to plan unfortunately, as one of the two sopranos — Marilyn Wuis — who was to have shared the program had been stricken with 'flu.

However mezzo Elizabeth Taylor stepped in at the last moment and contributed a lovely suite of songs by Anton Dvorak, which she performed with authority and style, displaying a voice which, while not powerful, is warm and smooth in production and well used as an interpretive instrument.

The fine partnership of Jeanne Wood at the piano was all the more admirable considering that she had seen the music little more than 24 hours beforehand.

The foreshortened program was sustained principally by Adele Lewis who, with Grace Timp as her superbly artistic accompanist, provided three groups of songs and an aria.

Ms. Lewis's fine natural soprano has never sounded better than it did on this occasion. She rose easily to the demands, both technical and interpretive, of the songs she had programmed.

A lovely lilting Bizet group, some charming Schubert, the early English of Arne and drama of Pagliacci (The Ballatella) revealed richness with power, flexibility, artistic control and skill in projecting images and creating moods.

It was a recital that deserved far more attention than it got from Victoria's musical community and certainly should be repeated as originally planned when Ms. Wuis has recovered.

Even if satisfactory from one point of view, it is ironic that a full house should have been on hand for Opening Night on Broadway at the McPherson, Saturday.

Ironic because the imported show's quality was well below a standard our resident artists can easily produce.

In the anthology of Broadway show music, which in itself was enjoyable and well arranged to give a chronological review of succeeding decades in American musical theatre, Ronald Rogers came off well as having a fine baritone voice and a pleasing personality to match.

But the other half of the singing team, soprano Jan McArt, has an edgy voice, metallic in quality though flexible.

Vancouver Pro Duncan Winner

DUNCAN — Fred Cotton of Vancouver fired a three-under-par 69 Saturday to win the 18-hole Village Green Open at the Cowichan Golf and Country Club.

Cotton beat Doug Reid of Vancouver by two strokes to win first money of $300.

Al MacLeod, who plays out of both Cowichan and Victoria Gorge Vale, was the low amateur with a 71. He finished a stroke ahead of Frank Bayuk of Campbell River while Jim Girard of Victoria was next at 73. Cec Ferguson, Marty Richards and Alex Forward tied at 74 and Gordie Rands shot a 75.

Vancouver veteran Bob Cox and Victoria's Mike Parker tied for third among the pros, each with 72, while host pro Bill Wakeham and Bryan Carbery of Victoria deadlocked at 73. Cowichan assistant pro Neil Murray followed with a 76.

Low net honors went to Tony Pisto of Courtenay, one of three at 67. Andy Baraniuk of Cowichan and D. Spence were second and third, respectively.

UNDER-18 B.C. SIDE LOSES FINAL

BURNABY — Ontario seored a 3-2 victory over the B.C. under-18 soccer team coached by Brian Hughes of Victoria in one of two Canadian soceer championship finals here Saturday.

The under-18 side also included Gord Reading, Peter Zachary, Mike Hardy and Gordie Horth, all of Victoria. Both B.C. goals came on second-half penalty kicks by Graham Carlson after Ontario had run up a 3-0 lead.

In the other final, the B.C. under-16 team downed Quebec 9-3. David McCullach, Doug Robinson and Kirby Graham each scored twice for the winners with Sam Saundh, Dan Lenarduzzi and Randy Ragan counting once each.

ORR AGAIN EYES SAINTS

BOSTON (AP) — Defenceman Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins left hospital Saturday after knee surgery and said talks over a new contract with the National Hockey League team have bogged down.

"Negotiations aren't as smooth as they were, but it's not too bad," he said. "I want to play hockey and I want to play in Boston.

"I think I've made that clear, but we're still talking to the Saints."

Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association are reported to have made Orr a 10-year, multi-million dollar offer to jump leagues.

He has a year to go on his current Bruins' contract but expects to be out of action until mid-November after the surgery.

Earlier Saturday, the Boston Herald American said Orr was upset by an attempt by the Jacobs brothers of Buffalo, tentative new owners of the Bruins, to re-negotiate a verbal agreement they reached before the surgery.

The newspaper said Orr told a friend he "will never play for the Bruins if the Jacobs brothers are successful in their bid to purchase the team . .'

The sale of the Bruins to Jeremy, Max and Lawrence Jacobs by the Storer Broadcasting Co., has been held up because of tax problems.

Czechs Down Aussies

PRAGUE (AP) — Jan Kodes propelled Czechoslovakia into the final round of the 1975 Davis Cup against Sweden when he beat Australian veteran Tony Roche 6-3, 6-1, 6-4 Sunday.

That victory gave Czechoslovakia an insurmountable 3-1 lead in the best-of-five tennis series.

In the last singles match, John Alexander of Australia was leading Jiri Hrebec 8-6, 6-3, 1-6 and the fourth set was tied 6-6 when play was halted by darkness. Rather than re sume the match today, the team captains decided to call it off, making the final score of the series 3-1.

Czechoslovakia's victory sets up the first Davis Cup final ever between two countries from the European continent. The closest geographically was in 1933 when Britain beat France 3-2.

Sweden earned a berth in the final, to be played later this year, by beating Chile 4-1 one week ago.

Kodes and Hrebec had won the opening singles matches, but Australia kept its hopes alive when Alexander and Phil Dent won Saturday's doubles.

Belgium split its final two singles matches Sunday with the Netherlands for a 4-1 victory in a first-round European Zone series of 1976 DaVis Cup tennis.

Belgium had clinched the best-of-five series by winning Friday's two singles matches and Saturday's doubles at Brussels.

Belgium's No. 1 player, Parick Hombergen, made the score 4-0 Sunday by beating Fred Hemmes 6-4, 8-6, 6-3. Hemmes was playing in place of Dutch ace Tom Okker, who was sidelined by a pulled muscle.

At Copenhagen, Denmark completed its victory over Finland by splitting the closing singles matches, making the final score in the series 4-1.

Denmark had clinched the best-of-five European Zone first-round match by winning Friday's two singles matches and Saturday's doubles.

Montreal Keeps NLL Hopes Alive

MONTREAL (CP) —Team-captain John Davis scored three goals and assisted on two others Saturday night as Montreal Quebecois downed Quebec Caribous, 12-8, to prolong the best-of-seven National Lacrosse League final series.

The best-of-seven set for the Nations Cup resumes Monday in Quebec with the Caribous holding a 3-2 lead in the series.

Dave Titzenberger and Bill Sheehan each had two goals for Montreal with Dale MacKenzie, Serge Loiselle, Bruce Arena, John McKenna and John Sheffield getting the others.

Brian Evans, John Macdonald and Gord Osinchuk each had two goals for Quebec with Murray Cawker and Dave Durante getting the others.

Dave's Good Timing Brings First Win

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) Dave Marcis passed Benny Parsons with less than 40 laps left Sunday, held him off the rest of the way and won the 20th annual Old Dominion 500 for his first Grand National stock car victory of the season.

The Dodge driver outraced Parsons at a record speed of 75.819 miles per hour for the 262.5-mile race over the .525-mile Martinsville Speedway before a crowd of 32,000.

Marcis and Parsons went into their battle with more than 100 laps left when pole winner Gale Yarborough hit a wall on the back straightway in his Chevrolet while seemingly on his way to a comparatively easy victory.

Every time the two hit traffic, Parsons closed the gap, getting as close as Marcis' rear bumper on occasion, but Marcis pulled away as soon as the way was clear.

Trailing Marcis and Parsons were Bobby Allison in a Matador, Richard Childness in a Chevrolet and Richie Panse in a Chevrolet.

"I really didn't have any problems," said Marcis, whose speed broke the 73.681 m.p.h. record set in 1971 by Bobby Isaac. "I missed a couple of spinouts. I kinda laid back all day and took it easy."

Stakes Win To Forego

NEW YORK (AP) — Forego turned the tables on Wajima and won the $108,200 Woodward Stakes at Belmont Park on Saturday.

The five-year-old gelding who was beaten by a head by his three-year-old rival in the $250,000 Marlboro handicap two weeks ago, outran Wajima in another stretch duel, winning this time by 1¾ lengths.

Braulio Baeza, aboard Wajima, claimed foul against Heliodoro Gustines, on Forego, for alleged interference at the 16th pole, when Forego drew away. After a seven-minute wait to vie wthe videotape of the race, the stewards upheld Forego's victory.

Mariners Hold Back On Pay?

TORONTO (CP) — San Diego Mariners of the World Hockey Association still haven't passed on all-star and playoff payments to some of their players.

Norm Kaplan, a Montreal lawyer who represents Kevin Morrison, Joe Hardy, Kevin Devine and Doug Volmar, said he sent letters Friday to WHA director of hockey administration Bud Poile and Mariners' president Joe Schwartz complaining that his clients' contract obligations had not been fulfilled.

In Toronto, Poile said that all-star and playoff money had been sent to the Mariners and it was to be distributed.

"Schwartz assures me everything has been taken care of and I guess we have to believe him until we get complaints from players," Poile said.

L'ENJOLEUR LOSES BID FOR TRIPLE

TORONTO (CP) — Momigi, a three-year-old filly owned by Koichiro Hayata of Japan, won the $57,000 Breeders Stakes at Woodbine racetrack Saturday, ruining L'Enjoleur's attempt at being the first horse to win Ontario's Triple Crown of racing since 1963.

L'Enjoleur, winner of the Queen's Plate and the Prince of Wales, held the lead for most of the 1½-mile race, but was unable to hold off a drive by Momigi and finished third behind Pampas Host, owned by Canada West Ranches of Calgary.

Baker Macs' MVP

Kevin Alexander was presented with two trophies at the Victoria McDonalds' annual awards banquet Saturday night at Esquimalt Sports Centre but he didn't get the big one.

The big award was the club's most valuable player and that went to Norm Baker, who graduated this season from the Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League.

The two awards Alexander received were the league scoring trophy and the lacrosse ball he used in setting the Canadian scoring record.

Goaltender Al Radley and Steve Hepburn shared the rookie-of-the-year award while Larry Gloeckner and Dave Lowden tied for the "Unsung Hero" award.

In other presentations, Bob Cool was named best-conditioned athlete, Gerry Cadwallader the most inspirational player and Leigh Hegan the most improved performer.

Baker, Hegan and Kim Bowles were also presented special trophies as the team's only graduates.

WHO'LL REMEMBER days when goaltender Gary Smith skated over and beyond blueline while playing for Victoria Maple Leafs in old Western Hockey League? Now No. 1 with Vancouver Canucks, Smith stirred memories by coming well out of his crease on this play to beat California rookie Dennis Maruk (25) to puck during National Hockey League exhibition game at Memorial Arena on Sunday. Others in play are Vancouver's Tracy Pratt (5) and Mike Robitaille (2) and Seals' Dave Gardner (7).

Record Missed But Dave's Kick Topples Stamps

Times News Services

Dave Cutler missed a chance for a Canadian Football League field-goal record Sunday afternoon, but he and his clubmates didn't mind.

British Columbia Lions never appeared capable of taking advantage of an opportunity to climb into a tie for third place in the Western Conference and they care very much.

Saskatchewan Roughriders mauled the Lions 33-6 at regina to leave the Leos deadlocked with Calgary Stampeders in the conference cellar and considerably concerned over their fading chances of grabbing a playoff berth.

Cutler's bid for a record came from 14 yards out with 14 seconds remaining at Calgary. The Victoria resident missed the field goal but his kick produced a single point that gave Edmonton Eskimos a 37-36 victory in a violent clash with the Stampeders.

Previously, Cutler connected from 35 and 45 yards to tie the all-time CFL career mark of 171 field goals, set by Larry Robinson, former Calgary defensive back. He gets his next chance to establish a new mark Oct. 5, when Saskatchewan visits Edmonton.

Victory kept the Eskimos three points ahead of the Roughies with Winnipeg Blue Bombers another five points back in third place, two points in front of Calgary and B.C.

Cutler's winning point completed an Eskimo comeback that almost defied belief.

With running back Roy Bell and quarterback Tom Wilkinson on the sidelines because of injuries and defensive end Leroy Jones restricted to part-time duty because of an ailing knee and a doubtful punting game, the Eskimos overcame a 29-2 halftime deficit, to the dismay of a crowd of 27,188 and new Calgary head coach Bob Baker.

It was the sixth game this season Edmonton has won in the last minute.

Quarterback Bruce Lemmerman, going all the way because of an injury to fragile first-stringer Wilkinson, threw touchdown passes to Stuart Lang, John Konihowski and Calvin Harrell, who also counted on a 14-yard run.

Cutler converted two and added three singles besides his two field goals. Lemmerman ran over for a two-point conversion in the fourth quarter.

For Calgary, rushing star Willie Burden provided most of the offence. He scored twice on short plunges and took a short scoring pass from Joe Pisarcik, who also threw to Rudy Linterman for a touchdown. Pisarcik scored on a one-yard plunge.

At Regina, veteran quarterback Ron Lancaster combined with flanker Rhett Dawson for three touchdowns before a crowd of 19,302. Dawson, 26, had a brilliant afternoon with 152 yards on six receptions.

Lancaster gained 286 yards through the air, leaving him 202 yards short of the all-pro career passing mark of 40,239 yards held by former National Football League great Johnny Unitas.

Veteran fullback George Reed score on a one-yard run and gained 59 yards in 11 carries to surpass the 1,000 mark in rushing for the 11th time in his 13-year career with Saskatchewan. Despite his efforts, he lost ground in the rushing race to Burden, who compiled 131 yards in 21 carries.

Relief quarterback Eric Guthrie handed off to Lou Harris for a one-yard scoring plunge in the final minute as B.C. averted a shutout.

Guthrie missed the convert, the first imperfect convert attempt of the season in the CFL.

Lancaster had 19 of 33 completions, compared with 10 completions of 19 attempts for Peter Liske of B.C., who left after being dumped eight times for losses by the aggressive Saskatchewan defence. Guthrie completed four of six for 43 yards.

DOUG PEDEN - EDITOR

Pleased As Punch

New Westminster coach Ernie (Punch) McLean is starting to formulate an idea.

Now that his Bruins have sailed unbeaten through their last eight Western Canada Hockey League exhibitions, McLean thinks New Westminster will be strong contenders for first place in the Western Division.

Bruins' fourth straight victory over Victoria Cougars on Sunday raised McLean's optimism.

Bruins, getting away to a 4-1 lead in the opening period, defeated Victoria 5-2 in New Westminster after chalking up a 7-4 decision in Memorial Arena on Saturday. The Bruins previously defeated Victoria 4-1 and 5-2.

The Bruins lost only two of their 10 pre-season games, both to Edmonton Oil Kings.

Steve Clippingdale, Clay Pachal, Miles Zaharco, Kevin Schamehorn and Barry Beck scored for Bruins Sunday while Rick Durston and Al Hill countered for the Cougars.

Clippingdale, Fred Berry and Harold Phillipoff all connected twice Saturday while Stan Smyl fired the other goal before 1,205 fans at Memorial Arena. Hill, Jim Gustafson, Jef McDill and Kim Hilkewich replied for Victoria.

Berry missed Sunday's game because of a bruised ankle, suffered when he was hit by a shot Saturday.

In completing their exhibition schedule, the Cougars managed only one win and a tie in eight games against WCHL opposition.

Despite the record, Victoria coach Pat Ginnell sees "no panic."

"We outplayed Bruins in three of the four games," said Ginnell, "but one bad period always seemed to beat us."

Ginnell said he will have one new face in camp this week. Mark Perry, a six-foot-four defenceman from Smithers, is returning for a second trial with the Cougars. Perry hurt his hand earlier and returned home for treatment.

Cougars open regular season play Saturday by entertaining Calgary Centennials at Memorial Arena.

Calgary split a weekend series with Kamloops, defeating the Chiefs 6-4 Saturday in Kamloops, then losing 4-3 in Princeton on Sunday.

Medicine Hat Tigers and Regina Pats also won and lost. Jack Shupe's Tigers clouted the Pats 9-1 Saturday in Medicine Hat but lost 7-2 to the Broncos in Lethbridge. The Pats bounced back Sunday to defeat Brandon Wheat Kings 7-3 in Regina.

Canucks' Maloney Likes Boddy Game

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

You can play physical hockey without resorting to violence, and that's the style that apparently suits Greg Boddy.

Boddy and linemates Andre Boudrias and Dennis Ververgaert carried the scoring load Sunday as Vancouver Canucks defeated California Golden Seals 3-1 in a National Hockey League exhibition game before 3,625 fans at Memorial Arena.

Boudrias also connected for a goal and one assist while Ververgaert picked up three assists, but it was Boddy's play that delighted coach Phil Maloney.

"Boddy's most effective when he plays physical hockey," said Maloney. "I hope he got the message out there tonight."

The winger scored only 11 goals and 12 assists last season, and Maloney feels Boddy is capable of drastic improvement "if he makes up his mind about how he should play."

Defenceman John Grisdale scored Vancouver's other goal while Bruce Greig counted the Seals' only goal.

Canucks scored a goal in each period although outshot 38-35.

It was a comparatively tame affair, spiced by two fights, both involving holdover winger Al MacAdam of California. MacAdam first tangled with sophomore Harold Snepsts and then with rookie Brad Gassoff.

Apart from the four majors, referee Lloyd Gilmour called only five other penalties — all minors.

Canucks, who now have won three and lost one in four preseason starts, return to Memorial Arena Thursday to play Los Angeles Kings.

The Jack Evans-coached Seals scored their first preseason decision Saturday by defeating Salt Lake City Eagles, a Central League farm club, 4-1.

Elsewhere, defenceman Guy Lapointe scored three long-range power-play shots as Montreal Canadiens downed Chicago Black Hawks 5-1; Reggie Leach's fourth exhibition goal provided Philadelphia Flyers with a 2-1 victory over New York Rangers; Pittsburgh Penguins beat Buffalo Sabres 4-3 and Detroit Red Wings edged Atlanta Flames 4-3.

In Saturday's games, Boston Bruins edged Montreal 5-4, Philadelphia overwhelmed Pittsburgh 9-0, Atlanta shaded Minnesota North Stars 5-3, Kansas City Scouts tied St. Louis Blues 3-3 and New York Islanders nipped Los Angeles 3-2.

In games involving World Association teams, Cincinnati Stingers beat Quebec Nordiques 3-1 Saturday and made it two straight by overwhelming St. George de Beauce, Que., of the North American League 10-1; Brynas of Sweden beat Toronto Toros 7-4 in Sweden; Minnesota Fighting Saints clipped Indianapolis Racers 4-2 and Houston Aeros downed Denver Spurs 4-3.

Four in Row For Cowichan

Cowichan Timbermen won their fourth straight game Sunday, a 20-6 decision over Saanich Hornets in Vancouver Island Canadian Football League action at Royal Athletic Park.

The undefeated Timbermen never trailed in the game before about 300 fans. They led 10-0 after the first quarter and 19-6 at the half. They added their other point with less than three minutes left in the game.

Quarterback Ross McCauley led the Cowichan assault with 14 points on one touchdown, two field goals, one convert and one single on a missed field goal attempt.

Brian Bellis scored the other Cowichan points with a 98-yard touchdown run in the second quarter.

Dave Fletcher accounted for the Saanich points with a three-yard touchdown run in the second quarter.

Meanwhile, Victoria Dolphins ended their involvement in the B.C. Big Four Junior Football League for this season by bowing 33-6 to Renfrew Trojans at Vancouver's Empire Stadium.

Dolphins, who lost all eight scheduled games, received a touchdown from Bruce Vye.

In the other league game, Vancouver Blue Bombers tripped North Shore Cougars, 32-7.

Saanich Hornets mauled Juan de Fuca Tigers 65-0 and Oak Bay Invaders tumbled Saanich Vampires 29-9 in Vancouver Island Bantam League play at Cedar Hill Park.

Csonka Stopped Cold

By The Associated Press

It wasn't one of Larry Csonka's better performances.

The former Miami Dolphins star, who abandoned the National Football League in favor of a lucrative contract with the World Football League, was supposed to tear up WFL defences this season.

Sunday night, however, Csonka was less than overpowering, gaining only six yards on seven carries as his Memphis Grizzlies team met San Antonio Wings. Ex-Dolphin teammates Jim Kiick, 37 yards on eight carries, and Paul Warfield, three catches for 108 yards, didn't help much either as the Grizzlies, leaders in the East Division, were beaten 25 - 17 by the Wings, the Western Division leaders.

Shreveport beat the Hawaiians 32-25 in Sunday's other WFL game. Saturday, Southern California got by Charlotte 24-17 and Jacksonville dumped Birmingham 26-18.

Defensive back Larry Crowe set up a first-quarter touchdown for San Antonio with a 35-yard punt return and then ran back a kickoff 57 yards to set up a second-quarter TD. Billie Sadler got both scores with short runs.

Johnnie Walton's 15-yard pass to Dave Yaege accounted for the other Wings' TD. Memphis made it close in the second half when running back John Harvey threw a 49-yard touchdown pass to Ed Marshall and then ran eight yards for another score.

The announced attendance at San Antonio was 16,283.

Ed Hargett was the big gun for Shreveport against the Hawaiians, throwing for touchdowns of 69 yards to Ricky Scales, 16 yards to Jim Nance and 11 yards to John Odom.

Attendance was listed at 21,349.

Anthony Davis ran for 101 yards on 22 carries and caught seven passes for another 189 yards for Southern California. The Sun defence limited Charlotte to 63 yards on the ground.

Riders Join Als in First

OTTAWA (CP) — With the regular Eastern Football Conference season about to enter its final month, Ottawa Rough Riders and Montreal Alouettes appear on their way to a showdown for first place while Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats battle for the third playoff spot.

In the only weekend EFC game, Ottawa outlasted Toronto 13-9 in a defensive battle here Saturday.

The Riders thus got back into a first-place tie with the Alouettes, each with 14 points. The loss left Toronto with six points, one more than Hamilton.

Neither the Riders nor the Argos showed much offence before 28,810 fans with Ottawa's only touchdown of a fake field goal by defensive halfback Rod Woodward from the 10 yard line.

Gerry Organ kicked the convert and added a 12-yard field goal and two singles.

Toronto's only touchdown came when defensive half Larry Uteck intercepted a pass by Tom Clements and ran it 45 yards into the Ottawa end zone. Zenon Andrusyshyn converted and added a pair of singles, one on a wide 27-yard field goal attempt.

The interception was one of four picked off by an alert Toronto defence. Three of them were off Clements, who gave way in the third quarter to alternate quarterback Condredge Holloway.

Holloway gave up one interception, but played a key role for Ottawa with his scrambling — 64 yards on four carries including one for 51 yards.

The only other turnover by Toronto was an interception off quarterback Bill Bynum late in the game by Ottawa defender Wayne Tosh.

The Argos tried a fake field goal on their own in the second quarter, but Bynum's 30-yard toss to Dave Hadden at the Ottawa six-yard-line was called back because of offensive holding and the Argos were left with no points to show for their effort.

The victory was a costly one for Ottawa.

Two-way tackle Jim Coode was carried off the field early in the second half and Saturday night was operated on to relieve a cracked shin bone and ligament damage to his left ankle. He appears to be lost for the season.

NFL WAITING GAME

WASHINGTON (AP) — The leaders of the National Football League Players Association are taking a wait-and-see attitude on the impasse now reached in negotiations with the club owners over a new contract.

Kermit Alexander, union president, said he and other leaders have no idea how the 26 teams will react after the strike moratorium expires Wednesday and no settlement has been reached.

"If there is no bargaining by Wednesday," Alexander said, "we'll have to make a decision on whether to take a strike vote or some other sort of action.

The union leaders looked to Congress today as the association's potential salvation in its battle with the league's owners.

Alexander, union executive director Ed Garvey, New England Patriots player representative Randy Vataha, members of the Washington Redskins and some other NFL players appear today before the House labor-management relations subcommittee.

Meanwhile the NFL management council, the owners' bargaining agents, holds a meeting of its executive committee in Chicago today and will testify Thursday on Capitol Hill.

The union hopes to convince the subcommittee that there should be amendments to the National Labor Relations Act to take care of professional sports, said Gavey.

O.J. on the Run Again

By The Associated Press

O. J. Simpson tied one of Jim Brown's many National Football League records and Buffalo Bills tied the Pittsburgh Steelers up in knots.

Simpson, who made a habit two years ago of running for 200 yards or more in a game en route to his 2,003-yard total that shattered Brown's single-season record of 1,863 yards, got his act together Sunday for the second straight week.

He turned Pittsburgh's Steel Curtain defence into scrap iron, rambling for a 227 yards — 88 of them on a touchdown jaunt — for his fourth 200-yard game, matching a mark set by Brown.

Simpson's running and Joe Ferguson's touchdown passes of seven yards to Reuben Gant and 28 yards to Bob Chandler led the Bills to a 30-21 victory over the defending Super Bowl champions.

In the rest of the NFL it was Dallas Cowboys 37, St. Louis Cardinals 31 in overtime; Los Angeles Rams 23 San Francisco 49ers 14; Oakland Raiders 31 Baltimore Colts 20; New York Jets 30 Kansas City Chiefs 24; Washington Redskins 49, New York Giants 13; Miami Dolphins 22 New England Patriots 14; Minnesota Vikings 42 Cleveland Browns 10; Houston Oilers 33 San Diego Chargers 17; Cincinnati Bengals 21 New Orleans Saints 0; Chicago Bears 15 Philadelphia Eagles 13, and Detroit Lions 17 Atlanta Falcons 14. Green Bay Packers visit Denver Broncos tonight.

Simpson's big third-quarter run broke open the game, giving the Bills a 23-0 lead. They were bogged down on their own 12-yard line when he took a handoff on a third-and-one, swung to the outside and flitted down the right sideline.

Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach threw a three-yard scoring pass to Billy Joe Dupree with 7:53 gone in sudden death overtime to beat the Cards.

Tom Dempsey's 51-yard field goal and James Harris' 22-yard touchdown pass to Lawrence McCutcheon enabled Los Angeles to rally from a 14-3 halftime deficit and beat San Francisco.

Cornerback Neal Colzie returned four Baltimore punts for 104 yards, three of them setting up scores, and ran 38 yards with a fourth-quarter interception that helped Oakland beat the Colts.

John Riggins ran for 145 yards and two touchdowns and Carl Garrett tacked on 135 yards and a score in the Jets' victory over Kansas City.

A defensive line that sacked New York quarterbacks eight times and two touchdown strikes apiece by Billy Kilmer and Randy Johnson highlighted Washington's win over the Giants.

Don Nottingham broke loose for 120 yards all but 15 of them in the second half, to lead the Dolphins, who spotted New England a 14-0 lead on a pair of Neil Graff touchdown passes.

Fran Tarkenton passed for two touchdowns — 29 yards to John Gilliam and 13 yards to Chuck Foreman — and ran two yards for another score in Minnesota's romp against the Browns.

Defensive lineman Curley Culp scored his first pro touchdown in eight years, running 38 yards with a Jesse Freitas fumble on the opening play of the fourth quarter to lock up the Oilers' victory over San Diego.

Bad Way To Start A Season

By The Canadian Press

The British Columbia Junior Hockey League regular season got off to a bad start for the Nanaimo Clippers who lost two games during the weekend.

Merritt Centennials beat visiting Nanaimo 6-3 on Saturday and Clippers were edged 8-7 by Kelowna Buckaroos Sunday in Penticton.

In other BCJHL games, Maple Ridge Blazers beat Vernon Vikings 5-4 Sunday after a 3-3 tie with Langley Lords on Saturday. Vernon beat Chilliwack Bruins 7-4 Saturday.

In Penticton, Clippers were behind 3-0 after one period and 6-2 after two but outscored the Buckaroos 5-1 to tie up the game in the third period.

But Perry Schnarr's goal at the 33-second mark of sudden-death overtime gave the Buckaroos the victory.

Other Kelowna scorers were Mike Wills, with two, Jeff Norby, Mark Schnarr, John Uveges, Pat Severyn and Phil Logan.

Gary Lupul led the Clippers with two goals. Singles went to Brian Day, Terry Graf, Geordie Robertson, Mike Wilgress and Brad Horman.

Wilt Eyed By Knicks

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Los Angeles Lakers and New York Knicks of the National Basketball Association denied a report Saturday that the Knicks had been given permission to talk with seven-foot-two Wilt Chamberlain, the highest scorer in the league's history.

Jack Kent Cooke, the Lakers' owner, and a Knicks' spokesman both said the New York team had not yet been granted permission to talk with the 39-year-old Chamberlain, who has not played pro basketball since his last game with the Lakers in the 1972-73 season.

"I'm listening to Burke (New York owner Mike Burke), but I'm not impressed with what he is saying so far," said Cooke. "Negotiations are under way, but we are a long distance apart right now."

INTER-CITY TITLE WON BY ALCOS

Alcos captured the Tomalin Cup, emblematic of inter-city cricket supremacy, with a 29-run victory over Vancouver Rowing Club in the annual match between the Victoria and Vancouver association champions Sunday at Windsor Park.

The Victoria club batted first and reached 114 with John Schofield setting the pace at 54. Trevor Bagot added 29 and Stuart Paton chipped in 15. Greg Wallis of Vancouver took five wickets for the loss of 24 runs while Lloyd Jackson was the other top bowler with two for 22.

Vancouver was all out at 85. Ellis Jorssen led batsmen with 27 not out, while Jim Botwright added 26 and Dave Roper had 21.

Steve Hanson (three for five) and Bob McKay (six for 48) were the top Alco bowlers.

Lakers Trip Big Six Stars

Lake Cowichan Lakers got three goals from Ian Hunter and went on to a 5-3 victory over the South Island Big Six Hockey League all-star team Saturday at Pearkes Arena.

Lakers, last season's league champions, also got goals from Doug Hanna and Rick Boyd.

All-star marksmen were Perry Head of James Bay Canadians, Bill Harwood of Chemainus Blues and Bill Gidden of London Boxing Club.

Ali's Appeal Takes a Fall

MANILA (AP) — Gamblers' odds still favor Muhammad Ali, but local sentiment has taken a sharp shift to challenger Joe Frazier two days before their battle for the heavyweight boxing championship of the world.

This was evident both at Saturday's official weigh-in and at brief workouts Sunday where the usual "Ali, Ali, Ali" chants were drowned out by "Go, Go, Smokin' Joe."

Unquestionably, Ali's martial problems last week cut heavily into his popularity in this highly religious, family-oriented little country as well as perhaps in other parts of the world.

Ali continues a 2-to-1 choice with Las Vegas bookmakers but promoter Don King reported he has been informed these odds were almost certain to tighten before the 10:45 a.m. starting bell Wednesday (10:45 p.m., EDT, Tuesday).

Promoters expect the indoor coliseum to be a 25,567 sellout, with a gross of $1.8 million. Headquarters reports are of quickening interest in the 68 countries where closed circuit TV is being sold."

"Tragedy money is hard to take delight in," said King, admitting that Ali's problems with his wife, Belinda, conceivably could bolster the television gate, estimated at a likely $22 million.

Belinda left her husband in tears Friday, hours after flying across the Pacific to be at his side. She was reported to be distraught after an argument over "the other woman," Veronica Porsche of Los Angeles.

However, when she arrived in San Francisco, Belinda said there had been no argument and called the reports "just propaganda — I don't know what triggered it off."

As in previous fights dating back to the one in Kinshasa, Zaire, last October, when he won the title back from George Foreman, Ali had squired Miss Porsche around official functions, letting her be introduced as "Mrs. Ali."

At the weigh-in Saturday, Ali weighed in at 224½ pounds and Frazier at 215½, both heavyier than expected.

Addressing himself to last week's "triangle" developments and Ali's insensitivity to what happened — the champ showed up with a different pretty girl on his arm —a member of Muhammad's entourage said:

"Ali lives on crises. If there isn't a natural crisis before one of his fights, he always manages to create one."

Sneak Peek In Rugby

It proved to be an interesting preview of the talent which will represent British Columbia in the Canadian rugby championships.

The provincial reps had little trouble Saturday in crushing a B.C. Rugby Union President's XV 43-6 at Centennial Stadium during the inaugural Dick Ellis Memorial Day match.

B.C. opens defence of the national crown, symbolized by the Carling Cup, in Vancouver over the Thanksgiving Day weekend. Alberta tackles B.C. and Manitoba takes on Saskatchewan in opening matches with the winners meeting to decide a berth in the final against the Eastern Canadian champion in Halifax Nov. 25.

Robin Greig, a fullback from the University of British Columbia Thunderbirds, provided a major share of the B.C. points in a match watched by approximately 800 fans.

Greig kicked two penalty goals from the 40-yard line, scored a try and booted five conversions for a total of 20 points.

Rob Hindson, a former Brentwood College star now at UBC, and John Billingsley, also of UBC, each contributed two tries. Chuck Shergold of Victoria added another try and Pat Simmons of Cowichan kicked a drop goal.

Rick Couch of the University of Victoria and Barry Legh of Vancouver Ravens each booted a penalty goal for the President's XV.

B.C. led 6-3 at half time and pulled away after the break on some excellent forward play by Hindson, Hans De Goede of Victoria and Tony Scott of Vancouver while fly-half Billingsley set up the backs for some spectacular dashes.

UVic downed Cowichan 16-0 in the preliminary under-19 match. Dave Chambers led UVic with a try and drop goal. Dave Severide scored a try and Reg Moore kicked a penalty goal and conversion.

All proceeds from the match and a following dinner at UVic will go toward establishing a fund in memory of Ellis, a former national, provincial and Victoria Union executive who drowned while scuba diving in June, 1974.

Organizers are hoping to raise $10,000 and the Canadian Union will use the interest from the fund to help defray the cost of exchanging personnel between Canada and overseas rugby unions.

On Sunday, selectors from the Victoria Union made a preliminary pick of 24 players to represent Victoria on the Crimson Tide side in the annual inter-city McKechnie Cup competition. Crimson Tide will visit Vancouver for the opening match, Nov. 11.

Player selections and results of two Sunday exhibition matches:

Massengale Submerged

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Veteran Dave Hill, who had to shake off the potential disaster of a double bogey to gain a tie, won a sudden-death playoff for the Sahara Invitational golf tournament Sunday when Rik Massengale hit his second shot into the water on the first extra hole.

Hill scored the 12th victory of his 17-year career with a eight-foot birdie putt on the first playoff hole. The disappointed Massengale made bogey.

Hill appeared to have shot himself out of it in the multiple-man scramble when he left it in a fairway bunker on the ninth hole, scored a double bogey six and dropped two strokes back.

But he rallied with a back nine 32, finished with a gritty, scrambly, hard-won 69, two under par, and caught Massengale for the lead with a 270 total at the end of the regulation 72 holes.

Massengale, seeking his second title of the season, birdied the 72nd hole to go 14 under par and force the brief playoff. Hill, playing behind him, had a chance to win it outright on the final hole, but couldn't covert the long putt and they went to the first hole at the Sahara-Nevada Country Club course for the playoff that really lasted only until Massengale pumped his second shot in the lake.

A's Join in $5 No-Hitter

Times News Services

Vida Blue, Glenn Abbott, Paul Lindblad and Rollie Fingers made baseball history Sunday by teaming up to pitch a no-hitter for Oakland A's.

But the only one who seemed to care about it was Fingers — and not for the obvious reason.

Fingers finished up the 5-0 no-hitter over California Angels in an American League baseball game and confessed later that he was concerned about a $5 bet he had made with teammate Ken Holtzman.

"The only thing on my mind was that I had made a friendly little bet with Holtzman that I would finish it up," said Oakland's premier relief pitcher. "I tried not to think about the no-hitter too much."

Blue seemed just as unconcerned about being attached to a piece of baseball history. It was the first time that more than two pitchers teamed up to pitch a no-hitter in the majors.

"I knew I was only going to go five innings," said the lefthander. "Besides, I just wanted to come into the dressing room and watch the Sunday football games.

"I didn't even know who had pitched after me."

Lindblad said he "wasn't aware of the no-hitter. I was just concerned about pitching an inning and getting out of there."

Blue, gaining credit for his 22nd victory, pitched the first five innings. Oakland manager Alvin Dark had announced after the A's recently clinched their fifth successive West Division championship that his starters would not work more than five innings.

True to his word, he yanked Blue. Abbott pitched the sixth inning, Lindblad worked the seventh and Fingers pitched the last two innings.

Reggie Jackson hit two homers for the A's, his 35th and 36th of the season, tying Milwaukee's George Scott for the league home run title.

Scott failed to connect as the Brewers beat Detroit 7-0, a short time after Del Crandall had been dismissed as Milwaukee manager.

Minnesota manager Frank Quilici also was fired after the Twins dropped a 6-4, 10-inning decision to Chicago White Sox.

Crandall's firing gave rise to speculation that Hank Aaron, baseball's all-time home run king, would succeed him.

Aaron said no one in the Brewers' front office had talked with him about managing the team or about whether he would like the job.

"Until somebody discusses it with me, I can't say. I haven't thought about it," he said.

There are a few things you should know about the rent increase limit.

THE RULES:

- Effective January 1, 1975, residential rent increases are limited to 10.6% of the rent presently being charged. This rule applies to any dwelling containing two or more rented units, and will be administered by the Rent Review Commission. The rule also applies to single family dwellings.
- Tenants can legally refuse to pay any rent increase over the 10.6% limit, subject to the exceptions specified in the legislation. Tenants cannot be evicted for non payment of illegal rent increases.
- There must be at least a twelve month interval between one rent increase and the next, and tenants must be given at least three months' notice of any rent increase.
- Notice of Rent Increase forms, supplied to landlords by the Rent Review Commission, must be used. These are the only valid forms for notice of any residential rent increase.

Questions relating to landlord-tenant matters other than rent increases should be directed to the Office of the Rentalsman, 525 Seymour Street, Vancouver, B.C. V6B 3H7. Telephone: 689-0511. Out of town, call collect.

SOME EXCEPTIONS:

- Half a duplex, when the owner lives in the other half (or basement suite, when the owner lives in the remainder of the house) is exempt from the 10.6% limit.
- Certain major renovations may entitle an owner to increase rents over the 10.6% limit. These improvements must have been started since May 3, 1974, and do not include normal maintenance and repairs. Landlords may consult the Rent Review Commission for details, particularly if planning renovations which might justify rent increases.
- Residential premises, except mobile home pads, being rented for the first time on or after January 1, 1974, are exempt from the 10.6% rent increase limit for a period of five years.
- Premises renting for more than $500 per month are exempt from the 10.6% increase limit.
- Mobile home pad rent increases may exceed 10.6%, but only if prior approval is received from the Rent Review Commission.

A brochure titled The Rent Increase Limit and its Exceptions is available upon request, from the Rent Review Commission office, or from your nearest Government Agent office.

Your new Dodge Pickup.

We put a lot into it. You'll get a lot out of it.

Take the way we designed our three-man cab. When we say "three-man", we mean three big men will fit inside—and in comfort.

Then there's the way we put it together. Cab seams are welded to make a solid, tight unit that'll take years of on-the-job pounding.

There's the special seven-stage rust-proofing treatment that helps make sure your new Dodge not only keeps on lasting like new, but also keeps on looking like new.

Under the hood we give you the Electronic Ignition System for fast, sure starts. And you've got a wide choice of engines, the standard 225 CID Slant Six, the standard 318 CID V-8 and the optional 360 CID V-8 and 440 CID V-8.

It all rides on a tough Dodge chassis with a fully-independent front suspension and semi-elliptic leaf springs out back where the business end is.

We put a lot into your new Dodge Pickup, and we also give you a lot to put on it.

For instance, there's the super-luxurious Adventurer SE trim option. There are special trailer-towing packages, a choice of two box lengths (6½' and 8'), four-wheel drive, air conditioning, and this year, there's a new factory-installed camper cap that's the lowest priced going among the big three.

See the complete line of Dodge Pickups, from the big three-man cab through the Club Cab and Crew Cab at your Dodge and Plymouth Dealer's or at your Chrysler Truck Centre. You'll like the way we put 'em together.

Johnson Didn't Need a Trade-In

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

Gary Kershaw came up with the expected Saturday in the final night of stock car racing at Western Speedway, but Tony Johnson came up with the unexpected and wound up with the driver points championship for the season.

Johnson, who went into Saturday's wrapup show with a 153-point lead over the only man who could catch him, Neil Montgomery, discovered he had a clutch problem in his 1964 Ford.

So he swapped cars with Al Wade, driving Wade's 1967 Plymouth in the time trials where he failed to qualify for the fast super-stock heat or trophy dash but did make it into the 75-lap feature, worth double points.

That move raisd a few eyebrows in the crowd of 1,959, but it was all perfectly legal.

Vancouver Island Track Racing Association rules state only that a driver must use the car in which he qualifies in time trials.

In any case, the first-place point money, expected to amount to about $600, is split evenly between the driver and owner. Second place is worth approximately $500 with the same split. Johnson and Montgomery both own their own cars.

As it turned out, the whole thing was academic anyway as Montgomery failed to finish the feature and wound up 15th in the starting field of 21.

Johnson finished eighth in Wade's car and the irony of it all was that Wade finished second in Johnson's car.

Who drove what car made absolutely no difference to Kershaw, who ran away from the field for his 10th straight super-stock main event victory. He wasn't beaten in any of his local super-stock appearances this season, although two of his wins were forfeited last May because of an improperly installed engine. He ended up the season with eight victories officially.

The only thing Kershaw didn't win Saturday was the trophy dash, which went to Montgomery. Otherwise, he took everything in sight, including the fast heat, the most-popular driver award for the night and the most-popular driver honors for the year. He also set a super-stock lap record in the time trials of 18.59 seconds.

TONY JOHNSON
. . . 1975 driver champ

Johnson ended up the driver champion by 218 points, finishing with 1,526 to 1,318 for Montgomery. Kershaw, who could do no better than third regardless of his performance Saturday, finished only eight points behind Montgomery.

Montgomery had a rough ride. He was involved in two pileups on successive laps early in the feature race, both of them on turn three and both involving Wade.

He also tangled in a third-turn pileup in the fast heat. In the end, his car just didn't have enough to survive it all despite a yeomen effort by his crew to keep it running.

Six claimer drivers went into Saturday's show with a chance for the driver points crown, but Bill Bartley hung onto first place by finishing fifth in the 25-lap feature, also worth double points.

A series of mishaps involving the claimers scrambled the order of finish among the rest of the points contenders. The most spectacular accident involved Ernie Schoor, who was third in points going into the claimer dash but lost control coming out of turn two and punched a hole in a billboard on the backstretch. He got his car back together for the feature and finished sixth.

Jim Smith won the claimer main while Bill Bartley took the claimer heat and Rick Haskell the trophy dash.

That left Bartley with 1,145 points followed by Smith with 1,142, Bill Hitchcox with 1,066, Schoor with 1,039 and Rick Carlson with 997.

Marshall Rehired

CHICAGO (AP) — Manager Jim Marshall of Chicago Cubs was signed to a 1976 contract Saturday for a second season. Marshall took over the team from Whitey Lockman on July 24, 1974, after managing in the Cubs' organization for six years.

Chicago finished with 66-96 record and was last in the national League East last year. With one game to go this year, the club has a 74-87 record. Marshall invited all of his coaches to return next season, but third-base coach Irv Noren has decided to retire from baseball.

Flower Children Back

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — They came to Golden Gate Park Sunday by the tens of thousands, decked out in everything from swaddling clothes to aluminum foil.

It was a musical reincarnation of the flower-children spirit of the 1960s.

The Grateful Dead and Jefferson Starship filled the park with rock music.

Organizers of the concert, a coalition of religious, political and community groups staging a "Unity Fair," estimated the crowd at 40,000 to 50,000 persons.

Soap bubbles, balloons and marijuana smoke floated above a sea of bobbing heads, and Frisbees sailed through the fog-wet air.

"If every day were like this, we wouldn't have anything to worry about," said Steve Severdia, 26, of nearby San Anselmo.

Free concerts in the park became a symbol of the San Francisco flower-child days in the 1960s. But there have been few in the 1970s.

Public Notice

Ottawa, September 19, 1975.

REQUEST FOR APPLICATIONS FOR CABLE TELEVISION SERVICE TO CERTAIN AREAS OF NORTHERN ONTARIO

The Canadian Radio-Television Commission announces that it is perpared to receive applications to provide cable television service to locations within the area of the overlapping Grade B contours of:

1) CKNC-TV and CKSO-TV Sudbury;
2) CKNC-TV-1 and CKSO-TV-1 Elliot Lake,
3) CFCL-TV-3 and CKSO-TV-4 Kapuskasing.

All applications must be filed with the Director-General of Licensing on or before December 15, 1975.

All applicants planning the use of micro-wave must submit details of routes and costs. In particular applicants should submit the following:

a) Where microwave is to be provided by a common carrier, a copy of an agreement in principle between the common carrier and the applicant should be submitted. Details of any proposals by common carriers for the use of microwave, the cost of the service and charges levied by the common carrier should also be included. In the event that the application pertains to an existing or proposed microwave network all details relating to cost sharing arrangements with other applicants or licensees which participate, or propose to participate, in the network must be provided.

b) Where microwave is to be provided by an applicant, or the applicant proposes the use of privately owned non-common carrier microwave facilities, the application must include detailed information on all microwave costs. In the event that such a proposal involves more than one cable television undertaking or proposed undertaking all details relating to cost sharing arrangements with other applicants or licensees which participate, or propose to participate, in the arrangement must be provided.

c) The applications must include full details as to the site of the distant head-end and the proposed microwave routing. Detailed costs relating to the establishment and/or use of the distant head-end facility, as well as any agreements pertaining to the establishment and/or use of the facility must be provided.

d) All applications must indicate the monthly subscriber fee including the cost of microwave service.

The Commission will not consider any cable television applications which are predicated on the video-taping of television signals unless all of the necessary authorizations have been received in writing and filed with the Commission.

Persons wishing to apply are reminded of the eligibility requirements laid down by the Governor General in Council in Directions to the Commission, Orders in Council, P.C. 1969-2229 as amended and P.C. 1972-1569.

Potential applicants are also reminded that in the Commission's past decisions and policy announcements the Commission has required that licensees have effective ownership and control of at least local head-ends, amplifiers and drops in their cable television undertakings.

The Commission firmly believes that cable television must complement existing broadcasting services in Northern Ontario and should not jeopardize their present or future capability. Hence, cable television applications must outline specific measures for introducing cable television into areas in a manner that will assist and strengthen these services and help to achieve the broadcasting objectives set out in the Broadcasting Act.

As well, upon hearing applications for the locations in question, the Commission will request:

a) the licensees of the local television broadcasting stations whose A or B contours fall within the territories applied for pursuant to this announcement to file such documentary evidence and to make such representations as they consider necessary concerning the probable effect of the licensing of cable television undertakings within these service contours on the continued viability of such stations, and

b) the licensees of local television stations and each cable applicant to explain the actions taken or proposed to be taken individually and cooperatively to ensure the continuing availability and quality of "off air" television service.

The Commission will announce at a later date the time and place of the Public Hearing where these applications will be considered and where they may be examined by the public. The particulars of each application will also be published in the newspapers of the area proposed to be served.

The public will then have the opportunity to submit comments on any application by filing a written intervention with the undersigned and by giving a copy to the applicant at least fifteen (15) days before the Hearing.

Indian-Only Courts Urged

REGINA (CP) — A city policeman plans to suggest at a meeting of Indian groups tonight that separate courts be established to handle cases involving natives — a suggestion designed to head off serious racial tension here.

Patrol Sgt. Rolly Stoneham, a 20-year veteran of the city police force, mentioned the proposal briefly at a meeting of Indian groups last week. The community relations officer said he believes the stage is set for racial confrontation in this city of 145,000.

"I don't think it's that far down the line," he said in an interview. "All you'd need is one unfortunate incident and it would be with us."

City officials, Indian leaders and hotelmen have been meeting for a month to discuss increased violence in the city's downtown core — particularly beverage-room brawls. Some native leaders have suggested organizing native street patrols as mediators and advisors to help defuse potentially-violent situations.

Sgt. Stoneham believes more far-reaching measures are necessary.

He said his proposal is a personal and unofficial one that will go nowhere without the support of Indian groups. It also involves hiring Indian patrolmen and social workers to help remove alienation between the city's rapidly-increasing Indian population and officialdom.

The city police force has about the same proportion of ethnic groups as there are in the city, but there are few Indian policemen, he said. The social worker situation is better, but still inadequate.

Sgt. Stoneham said the separate courts could act as magistrate's courts which deal generally with lesser offences not involving jury trials. The accused could choose between a justice of the peace versed in tribal practices and one versed in conventional law.

One shortcoming is that "in large urban communities there isn't the tribal pressure to obey the ruling," he said.

Tribal law, rather than concentrating on punishment, would have a wrongdoer perform work for his victim or make restitution in another form, he explained. This concept is being used experimentally in some conventional courts.

Sgt. Stoneham said he thought of separate courts as an interim measure until Indian law students now in training move into responsible positions among the judiciary.

He said there is an increasingly urgent need for action because Indians were moving in larger numbers to the city from reserves and running into trouble.

At the moment, he said, the crime is generally related to economic status and the frustrations of trying to cope with inflation while on welfare.

Some estimates place the city's Indian and Metis population as high as 25,000.

Sgt. Stoneham said the danger of racial tension and violence still may be averted, although this summer's much-publicized violence "is nothing new."

Civic officials and reserve-based Indian organizations have recognized the problem of native movement to cities and the resulting alienation, but have beeen slow to recognize the need for urgent action, he said.

The basic problem is not lack of understanding of the problem, he added, but "typical difficulty in changing the direction of large organizations."

Tanker Ban Rapped

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Washington's new law banning large oil tankers from Puget Sound will increase rather than decrease tanker-movement hazards on the sound, says a Seattle naval architect.

Philip Spaulding told members of the Tacoma area Chamber of Commerce that the law is a disastrous piece of legislation, hastily enacted by legislators who were "brainwashed by environmentalists."

He said the law is unnecessary because "Puget Sound probably is the safest waterway in the world."

The sound is a wide body of water, with mostly sand and mud on the bottom and a Coast Guard-operated vessel traffic system, backed by bridge - to - bridge communication and Puget Sound pilots aboard each ship, said Spaulding.

Because tankers carrying more than 125,000 tons of oil are barred from entering the sound, more smaller vessels are needed to bring the oil to refineries in Tacoma, Anacortes and Ferndale, increasing the possibility of collisions, he said.

The requirement that many smaller tankers be escorted by tugboats also "compounds the danger of collision" should the tanker suddenly need to change course, Spaulding said.

The law, which went into effect Sept. 8, requires tankers capable of carrying more than 40,000 tons to be a tug-escorted from Port Angeles if they do not have such features as twin screws, double bottoms and shaft horsepower in the ratio of one horsepower to each 2½ deadweight tons.

Spaulding also said a double bottom can increase the possibility of an oil spill if the tanker runs aground. If the bottom is ripped open and the void between the skin and the inner hull fills with seawater, the ship would sink deeper and would be more likely to break apart and spill its oil, he said.

SOLAR FUEL HOUSES NEED CMHC AID: PROF

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation should free low interest loans to cover the renovation costs of tapping solar energy to heat existing houses, according to a University of B.C. solar expert.

"There needs to be a change in the official attitude," Dr. John F. Hay said Saturday.

Pilot projects across Canada have proven that solar energy can be tapped and used for 65 per cent of central and water heating, but the systems are largely too expensive for the homeowner interested in converting.

Hay was in Victoria with two other energy experts to give a workshop on the problems and possibilities of utilizing the renewable resource for heating and cooling buildings. Attendance at the workshop consisted mainly of developers and designers.

Interest in solar energy, said Hay, has spiralled especially in the last two years.

"It used to be considered ivory tower university research, but in the last two years everybody wants to talk about this. About this we can be thankful to the Arabs, because research grants are now larger," said Hay.

Price tag for utilizing solar energy in central and water heating in the average home is about $10,000, which covers installation of a complex system of glass and waterpipes, usually located on the roof.

Plated glass covers a black heat conductor and warms the water circulated in a series of pipes.

Solar energy heating processes currently make use of some electricity to maintain the water temperature, said Hay, but the amount used is drastically cut down.

Climatic conditions necessary for effectiveness of the process are best in the Gulf Islands, Hay said. But Canada is behind in development of solar energy, because it has always been an energy rich country.

There are a few roadblocks to overcome before the use of solar energy becomes widespread and publicity and general education of people is perhaps the biggest obstacle, said Hay.

Although the federal government has sponsored conferences on the subject, the general public must be told about solar energy as a supplementary alternative for heating.

Conversion systems, currently designed individually by solar energy enthusiasts, will have to be manufactured on a broader scale before they catch on, he said.

The provincial government, he suggests, could become involved in public education programs, with B.C. Hydro staging demonstrations of the power source. In the meantime research will continue to perfect the systems.

Also speaking at the all-day workshop were Dr. Muhammad Iqbal in UBC's faculty of mechanical engineering and Dr. Kudret Selcuk of the California Institute of Technology.

No Changes, Says Bourassa

MONTREAL (UPI) — Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa has re-affirmed his controversial French education policy will remain unchanged despite the abrupt resignation of Jerome Choquette.

"To us the law is good and should not be amended," Bourassa said in an interview with Montreal radio station CJAD.

Bourassa indicated Choquette, 47, had pressed cabinet colleagues to eliminate ambiguities in the law and bring in a hard-line amendment forcing all but children of English parents into the French school system.

"The cabinet could not agree with him and that's why he quit," Bourassa said.

"I don't expect any other cabinet minister to quit," the premier said. "If another one will, it will be totally unexpected."

Finance minister Raymond Garneau was named Choquette's successor.

Bourassa admitted surprise at Choquette's decison to bolt both his job and the Liberal party. Choquette said sitting as an Independent member would allow his to provoke public debate on the Official Language Act.

"We could have tolerated his disagreement with Bill 22," Bourassa said.

"This is a matter of principle. One has to live with one's conscience, Choquette said in quitting.

Choquette particularly opposed one section permitting enrollment in English schools if children of non-English parents — chiefly immigrant — passed language proficiency tests, although last year, he had supported the same tests.

But during his brief role in education, he approved denial of English enrollment to some children who passed the tests and insisted freedom of choice was not a constitutional right.

The resulting furore has centred on the Montreal district of St. Leonard, scene of violent rioting eight years ago over immigrant demands for freedom to enrol their children in English schools.

Rather than bowing to Choquette and enrolling children in the French system, many immigrant families have kept them out of schools altogether.

Bourassa denied some speculation he had moved Choquette from justice to education with the purpose of putting a potential party leadership rival on the hot-seat.

Choquette has been one of Bourassa's most visible minister for more than five years.

He vaulted into national limelight during Canada's worst peacetime crisis, the 1970 kidnapping of a British diplomat and the subsequent abduction and murder of a Quebec cabinet minster by extremist Quebec separatists.

Choquette and Bourassa pressured the federal government to impose a state of emergency which suspended civil rights and led to the arrest of more than 400 persons.

U.S. Milk Running Out: Farmer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A national farm leader says the United States is running short of milk and consumers will face "nutritional disaster" unless Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz quickly increases dairy price supports.

Tony Dechant, head of the National Farmers Union, told Butz in a letter released Sunday that the situation can be avoided only if the support for manufacturing grade milk is increased by about 12 cents a gallon.

That would push the support price up to the legal ceiling of 90 per cent of "fair earning power" parity.

Dechant said milk production this year is estimated at about 115 billion pounds — lowest since 1952 — and the shortage is being masked temporarily by a drop in demand due to high unemployment.

Cowichan Eyes CPR Takeover

DUNCAN — Lands acquired by the Canadian Pacific Railway under terms of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway land grant should be annexed back to the Crown if a provincial government investigation shows the company has not lived up to its commitments.

The Cowichan Valley Regional Board has made that proposal to the government, following a recent discussion with CPR representatives on regional opposition to the company's removal of railway agents from several Vancouver Island communities.

Main topic of discussion at the meeting between board chairman Ralph Kier and members of the CPR planning department was a strongly-worded letter to the Canadian Transport Commission, in which the board questioned CTC approval of the company's application to remove agents from Duncan, Lake Cowichan, Chemainus, Ladysmith and other centres.

Kier later told his colleagues on the board it became obvious from the CPR representatives' statements that the company is interested in "profit not service."

He said they claim the land now owned by CPR could not be called a land grant as such, for it was purchased from the E & N when CPR bought the railway.

Dentists Shown Up In Criticized Study

BOSTON (UPI) — Results of an experimental program shows specially trained dental hygienists made six times fewer mistakes than dentists in a comparable study.

Additionally, the study said, the hygienists worked at 70 per cent of the cost of regular dentists.

The final results of the study were scheduled to be released later this week amid a growing debate in the state legislature over proposals which would bar such experimental programs.

The study, done more than a year ago by Boston's Forsyth Dental Centre, showed the hygienists made errors in drilling and filling teeth in only 5.1 per cent of the cases. A comparable study of practicing dentists conducted in 1967 showed a 30 per cent error rate.

A bill submitted by the State Board of Dental Examiners would bar such experimental programs, limiting hygienists, even in a school setting, to cleaning teeth and providing routine assistance to dentists.

The Forsyth study was forced to halt due to actions by the State Board of Dental Examiners, which threatended to go to court in an effort to block continuation of the program.

The forsyth experiment involved regular hygienists who were given another year of training and then were allowed to drill and fill teeth under laboratory supervision. About 2,500 volunteer patients were treated.

"The work was certainly equal and somewhat superior," said a member of the Forsyth staff.

When Cinderella Escapes —A Secret for Husbands

I am often asked to divulge my secret formula for 40-odd years of wedded bliss and readily respond with my theory that there's no discord that can't be cured by a hotel room.

This isn't quite true. I'm not often asked at all — about anything — but my secret formula is, nevertheless, worth passing on to any husbands, new or old, so pay attention.

I always know when the time has come to give my wife the change and the relief that hotel accommodations mean to her.

Sometimes she will make broad hints, like saying "Why don't we go and stay at a hotel for a few days?" Sometimes, as in this most recent case, she'll clip out an advertisement that offers some package deal and leave it in a place where I am sure to see it, the bottom of a bowl of porridge, maybe, or pasted to the screen of the TV set. Either way I know that the time has arrived to get her out of the pumpkin and into the golden coach.

This latest example was a three-day "Unwinders" stay at Qualicum Beach in a certain hotel that offers a sauna, a whirlpool bath, a heated swimming pool, gourmet dining (this always means "Cherries Jubilee" with the flame), golfing, fishing, walks on the beach and all like that.

I knew it was going to cost me an awful lot more than the magic figure in the advertisement, as it did. I also knew that it was going to rejuvenate my wife for at least another six months, which it did.

Younger husbands, I suppose, may be inclined to think it a mystery that a woman should be so different when transported from the home to the home-away-from-home. This is because it generally takes 20 years or more for the realization to sink in that the average woman lives the life of a caged beast, that inside every patient, uncomplaining, dutiful woman there is a frivolous, carefree woman dying to get out.

Some husbands never do understand this. When you live next door to a resort, as we do, you often see wives who have come from the city for two or three weeks by the seashore. They have the supervision of the children, the meals, the laundry, the dirty dishes, the cleaning up. All that is different, really, is that they do it without any labor-saving devices. They are, of course, absolutely miserable, have a perfectly wretched time and are ripe for running off with Fuller Brush Men.

The hotel roof solves all this. I see it reflected in my wife's face from the very moment we walk toward the reception desk. What is this radiance, this sudden lightness of spirit, that is so apparent? It is the promise of being totally free from any kind of drudgery, the knowledge that for at least three days people will be waiting on her. It means little or nothing to the husband. That's what he gets every day of the week. For a wife it may be a ticket to Shangri-la.

The hotel room solves all this. I see it reflected in my before my wife is luxuriating in these new surroundings. She tests the bed, pronounces it ideal for sleeping until noon, which she has every intention of doing. She inspects the view and finds it to her liking. She gives the once over to the bathroom and lays out a variety of beautifiers normally kept in closed drawers. In short, she takes over this room, though it may be nothing very special, and makes it her own. If you are a husband with even half a brain you find yourself thinking that it may be just the best investment you ever made.

My wife has a very special way of looking at the dial of the telephone. It has a little sign saying "Room Service." This is probably the way Alexander Graham Bell looked at the first one he ever built. Here is the ultimate miracle. You just pick up that phone, dial the number, and the whole world is yours, the Cinderella's slipper of every married woman's desire.

Now you are going down to dinner, your wife having spent a leisurely two hours preparing for it, looking really quite marvellous. Again you speculate on depth of pleasure that this is going to bring. It is a very nice meal, sure. But what is so special about it? The answer, of course, is that somebody else is going to be doing it, somebody else is going to be serving it, somebody else is going to look after all those little chores that go with it. Symbolically, the blue flames from the Cherries Jubilee are the warm light of a housewife's freedom.

Now we are at the pool. I marvel at her utter relaxation, this uncharacteristic capacity for "unwinding", as the advertisement has promised. There are no plans to be made, no major issues to be decided, no tomorrow. If there is any decision to be made at all it is whether to try the sauna or the whirlpool and that can wait awhile.

Well, it is as simple as that. All you have to do is make the reservation. The rest will take care of itself and, believe me, I ought to know with 40 years in the ring and no visible scars.

Staff Cutbacks Part of College Gloom

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Camosun College has opened its gloomiest fall with a staff reduced by 41 employees.

Firing of all 30 part-time and 11 full-time teachers has forced the college to curtail or drop offerings in many liberal arts subjects and to postpone the start of new programs such as the early childhood education course which was in great demand.

Classes have been enlarged and administrative staff have been given teaching assignments along with their regular work but still, many students had to be turned away.

The picture is the same throughout the provincial community college system.

After years of rapid growth, since the system started in the 1960s, a painful retrenchment is taking places as colleges struggle to live within provincial government clamps on spending.

"There is great consternation in the colleges over their budgets," says Frank Beinder, executive director of the B.C. Association of Colleges.

All the colleges are feeling the pinch, but especially the larger ones like Vancouver Community College and Camosun.

Camosun's 1975-76 operating budget was cut from the $7.8 requested by the college council to $5.9 million by the government this spring in an attempt to hold college budgets across the province to around an 18 per cent increase.

Appeals by the college for extra funding so that more students could be accepted were turned down by the provincial cabinet.

The situation at Vancouver Community College, largest of the 14 British Columbia colleges and oldest community college in Canada, is just as serious.

"Everybody's terribly upset," said information officer Geoff Spencer.

"We're a pretty big fish and we've been grievously wounded."

VCC's budget was set following the report in July of the Stuart Commission of Public Inquiry, which recommended a budget for the year of $25.2 million. This was $4.3 million less than the college estimated it needed.

The college is closing 11 of its 19 English language training programs and drastically cutting the others. Seventeen instructors have been dropped.

Other staff have been cut, such as the native studies instructor, a financial aid officer, and several program assistants.

The Outreach program for Vancouver's east end has been terminated. Everywhere classes are larger, and course offerings fewer.

VCC has fought hard to get more funding, said Spencer, but the situation is now a stalemate with Education Minister Eileen Dailly.

Douglas College in the Lower Mainland made a 19 per cent reduction in classes across the board, affecting all courses equally. A total of 50 course sections have been dropped.

"What's left are absolutely packed," said director of instruction Don Porter. "We've got just about standing room only."

Other colleges, like Malaspina in Nanaimo, haven't been hit as hard.

"We're pretty well okay," said Peter McMullan, assistant to the president at Malaspina.

The college has a status quo budget this year which doesn't allow for great expansion but doesn't force closure of any classes either, he said.

The B.C. Association of Colleges is collecting reports from all the colleges on how this year's budget restrictions have affected them.

Association president Jim Macdonald, a councillor at Capilano Collge, said once the information is gathered the association will make a presentation to Dailly.

The association also hopes to meet with the cabinet, he said.

Beinder said that both inflation and the growth in student enrolments each year make it hard for colleges to live within the hold-the-line budgets set by the education department.

Also, the new money-conscious government attitude "came out of the blue. The colleges were not prepared for it," he said.

Taxmen Offer An Out

The income tax department will not prosecute anyone who makes a voluntary confession of income tax evasion, a spokesman for the Victoria branch of Revenue Canada said today.

Public relations officer Betty Chalmers said the Victoria tax office receives a number of enquiries from citizens whenever there is a news item of someone being fined for tax evasion.

She was commenting on the case of city businessman Llewellyn MacDonald, who along with his store, MacDonald's Ltd., was fined $5,000 Friday for tax evasion.

She said MacDonald made a disclosure only after an investigation had been launched and therefore he was liable to prosecution. An auditor had been in his store two days checking his records before the first disclosure was made.

The department spent $10,000 and worked for 950 hours to complete the single investigation in hopes of encouraging voluntary declarations from other taxpayers, she said.

If a taxpayer makes a full voluntary declaration, he is liable only for the back taxes owing plus 6 per cent simple interest per year. There is no further civil penalty or criminal prosecution.

Conversely, if the declaration is not voluntary, or if a voluntary declaration is incomplete, the taxpayer is liable for both civil penalty and criminal prosecution. In the case of an incomplete voluntary declaration, there would be criminal charges only if the report was deliberately incomplete.

Where charges are laid, a taxpayer found guilty faces a civil levy amounting to 25 per cent of all back provincial and federal income taxes owing plus a criminal court fine of up to double the federal tax owing and two years in jail.

Greek-Style Open Theatre At Pearson

Students and staff of Pearson College of the Pacific have built at Greek-style open air theatre.

The stage was constructed in a natural trough surrounded by a gallery built in a 90-degree arch on the hillside. Trees were felled by the students, split and cut in six-foot lengths to serve as benches. The back of the stage faces Pedder Bay.

The architect of the theatre is the college's history and music professor, Edgar Samuel.

"The theatre is designed to create an intimate audience-acting rapport and because the seating plan is circular, all the audience will be close to the stage," Samuel said.

He said another advantage of having a Greek-style theatre is that the performers will have a much greater affinity to nature.

"To be completely cut off from the outside world, yet to be surrounded by all that is natural in the wilderness — the trees, the birds and other animals — is very inspiring for amateur performers," he said.

"The acoustics are excellent . . . if only you could have heard the music we've rehearsed on the stage, the way it floats up the hillside — it's amost as if you're in another world."

Samuel said painted scenes will not be used. Rather, the performers will have to create their own scenes.

"It offers greater freedom, flexibility and excitment, an opportunity for the students to express themselves."

Swartz Bay Parking Expansion?

B.C. Ferry authorities have recommended to the government expansion of parking facilities at Swartz Bay to deal with heavy traffic loads on weekends and during the summer.

The recommendation is now before Transport Minister Bob Strachan and ferry officials hope for an answer soon so that construction can begin.

A spokesman said he did not know how parking facilities would be expanded but the government might either buy surrounding property or create new land by dredging as they have done at Tswassen Terminal.

There are now 300 parking spaces at Swartz Bay but on weekends and during the summer cars often have to park on the roadside because the lot is full.

Expansion of the parking facilities is part of the government's policy to encourage people not to take their cars on the ferries.

It now costs 50 cents to park for up to 48 hours in the ferry lot.

30s Level Jobless Rate —Banker

Unemployment in 1976 could be at the highest level since the depression unless there is a dramatic change in economic conditions, says Roger Hemeon, Vancouver Island regional manager of The Royal Bank of Canada.

The government has the difficult chore of trying to deal with both inflation and unemployment at the same time but it may choke off an economic recovery if its monetary policy is too restrictive, he told a meeting of the western division of the Steel Founders Society of America at the Empress during the weekend.

"There is no doubt the government is seriously concerned about inflation — some people would say overly concerned," Hemeon said.

"While there is no sign yet of any moderation in labor's position on wage settlements, in the United States the continuing high rates of unemployment eventually brought wage demands into line. The same could happen here."

However, there are political and economic dangers in permitting unemployment to rise that cannot be ignored.

"By choosing to maintain the exchange rate (on the Canadian dollar), the government has in fact opted to postpone a reduction in the unemployment rate so it can go all out in its battle against inflation.

"The danger is that if unemployment gets too high, it may become an overriding political issue which would force Ottawa into excessive stimulation of the economy, starting off another round of double-digit inflation."

The two problems leave Ottawa with some very difficult choices but its present policy of restricting credit could prove counterproductive, he said.

There could be some reduction in unemployment if the economy were permitted to expand.

The outlook for 1976 at the present time is for inflation of about 11 per cent (the same as at present) and unemployment above seven per cent.

A. The new Spectrum high school being built at Burnside and Acorn is due to open in September 1976. Colquitz will remain a junior high school, and the future of the Mount View building now housing Spectrum school is still uncertain.

'Check, Make Sure' Camper's Insured

Many British Columbians may be driving around in campers which they believe are fully insured but which the Insurance Corporation of B.C. denies having any record of, a Saanich woman said today.

Mrs. S. A. McKinty, of 1285 Fairlane Terrace, said her own frustrating attempts to claim on a $4,000 camper which was destroyed in a fire should act as a warning to other owners to "phone, check and make absolutely sure" that their campers are covered — with the papers to prove it.

The wife of a building contractor, Mrs. McKinty said she and her husband kept their camper at a summer property in Ladysmith, occupying it while they were building a cottage.

During their absence last July some children broke into the camper and set fire to it, destroying the unit itself and the partly-completed home.

Ever since she and her insurance agents, P. R. Brown and Sons Ltd., have been trying through a series of letters and telephone calls to get ICBC's Vancouver office to process her claim but the corporation says it has nothing to show the camper was insured, she said.

Yet when the Victoria agents asked ICBC for its 1974 records on vehicle insurance taken out for the family, the official reply was that "that has nothing to do with it."

Agent Jim Spice said in Victoria today: "They told her the 1974 files are deadwood, which is just baloney."

Mrs. McKinty said when ICBC took over from private insurance in March, 1974, Brown's were asked as ICBC agents to arrange identical coverage to that previously provided — for the family's pickup truck, camper and car.

The amount of the premium was about the same as it had been under the private insurers, and "we understood it covered everything as it did before."

However, she said, ICBC insists there should have been a separate document showing the camper coverage, whereas their agent believes the truck and camper may have been lumped together under the regular vehicle insurance certificate.

They can't prove that, though, because they are denied access to the relevant records.

Mrs. McKinty said it's obvious that ICBC has misplaced their file, because the corporation representative she has been dealing with in Vancouve also admits there is no record of any insurance on the truck.

When the truck's licence and registration numbers were fed into the computer the result was a blank, and when the family's name was fed in "it came back with the fact that we own a 1967 car, which we do."

So it's more than likely that if their truck is wrecked in an accident they would have a similar hassle in getting anyone to accept liability, Mrs. McKinty said.

Spice said the key to the camper claim is whether the unit's value was added to that of the truck and shown under the "declared value" portion of the insurance certificate.

"I know there was no separate policy but I'm not sure if the declared value was or was not shown," Spice said. "If it wasn't then she's out of luck."

But until ICBC opens up its files no one will know. And meanwhile Mrs. McKinty has been told she can initiate a claim at the Victoria claims centre. If that fails her only recourse will be to a claims appeal committee in Vancouver.

Marguerite Completes Summer Schedule

The Princess Marguerite returns to Victoria today at 6:30 p.m. to complete her first season under the provincial government flag.

Sunday she brought 1,400 Seattle cyclists and 900 Seattle Post-Intelligencer carriers to the city for a one-day excusion and returned to Seattle Sunday evening.

She will sit in harbor for face-lift in preparation for next summer, when she will be joined by the former CNR vessel Prince Rupert for excursions.

Tonight, the Marguerite crew will be treated to a smorgasbord dinner with Premier Dave Barrett and Resources Minister Bob Williams.

Fruit-Filled Pancakes Make Sweet, Savoury Meal

HILDA BEASTALL

According to Hamlyn's Illustrated Cook's Dictionary a pancake is a thin batter of flour, eggs and milk, cooked on both sides in a thick frying pan to form very thin flat cakes. They are then sprinkled with sugar and lemon or orange juice, rolled up and served hot.

A more substantial dish results when the cakes are filled with a savory or sweet mixture.

Fritters, with which pancakes are sometimes confused, are, according to the same authority "pieces of food dipped in batter and fried in deep fat."

For those of us who were confused — that settles it. This column will be on pancakes, savory and otherwise, and all worthy of making into a meal.

Fruit pancakes to suit the season, come first. The last blackberries may still be found, or you may have sweet apples. Later in the year, substitute either frozen berries or well-drained canned fruits, omitting the sugar from the recipe.

The cooking oil will be the one you like best, probably either sunflower, soy, corn or olive, for these are preferred today.

Fruit Pancakes

½ cup wholewheat flour
1 tbsp. brewer's yeast
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. sugar (optional)
¼ tsp. salt
one-third cup cooked brown rice
2 small eggs, separated
¾ cup skim milk from powder
2 tbsp. cooking oil
½ cup ½-inch diced apples or berries

In a bowl, measure and mix flour, brewer's yeast, baking powder, salt and sugar (if used).

Beat egg yolks, add oil and milk; stir in the cooked brown rice (break it up first), mixing it well.

Add this liquid mixture to the dry, stirring only enough to blend. Do not beat.

Beat egg whites until stiff; fold into mixture. Then add prepared fruit, stirring only enough to coat all pieces.

Cook in 7-inch oiled pan, either as three separate or three or four small ones each time.

Cook until lightly brown; turn and brown second side. Serve warm. They need nothing except a squeeze of lemon or orange juice if you wish, or a spoonful of homemade fat-free yogurt. Serves 3 or 4.

Potato pancakes have been an oldtime favorite with many Canadian families. They used to be served with homemade pork sausages wrapped inside and covered with gravy, made in the sausage pan. Or, sometimes with thin maple syrup.

Today we get our protein by adding eggs, nuts and non-instant skim milk to other good ingredients.

Potato Pancakes

3 medium potatoes, cooked and mashed
2 tbsp. skim milk from non-instant powder
2 tbsp. soft margarine
2 small eggs beaten — in 2 portions
¼ tsp. salt
½ cup ground raw peanuts
cooking oil

Mash cooked potatoes without using any other ingredients. Then add the liquid skim milk (use plenty of non-instant powder for the 2 tablespoons of liquid), margarine, half the beaten eggs, salt.

Form into flat cakes; brush with remainder of beaten egg and coat both sides with ground nuts.

Lift with spatula into hot oiled pan, cook one side, turn and brown second side. Keep hot on hot plate until all done.

These will be a great favorite; serve with cut green beans and sliced red tomatoes. Serves 3 or 4.

In place of nuts, add 2 tablespoons of brewer's yeast for a rich flavor and protein.

Now for a savory filled pancake let us go back to the basic mixture of fruit pancakes above with minor changes.

For convenience, it is repeated below for the new recipe.

Savory Filled Pancakes

½ cup wholewheat flour
1 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
one-third cup cooked brown rice
2 small eggs
¾ cup skim milk from powder
2 tbsp. soy oil

Filling:

1 tbsp. soy oil
1 medium sweet onion, thinly cut
1 medium ripe tomato
1 tbsp. chopped parsley
1 chopped mint leaf and 1 sweet basil leaf
2 tbsp. brewer's yeast
3 tbsp. wheat germ
½ tsp. curry powder (optional)

Measure and mix flour, baking powder and salt into mixing bowl; beat eggs in another bowl; mix with milk and oil; add cooked rice and mix well again.

Add moist mixture to dry mixture, stirring only to combine. Mixture should be lumpy.

Cook in 7-inch oiled frypan, making three large pancakes. Brown one side. Spread one half with some filling; fold over and cook 2 minutes longer. Remove to warm plate.

To cook filling: Cook sliced onion in oil until yellow. Add chopped parsley. Cook 2 minutes covered; add tomato cut into small pieces; cook 2 minutes more, covered. Stir all together; when bubbling well, stir in brewer's yeast, wheat germ and curry powder.

Remove from heat before boiling point. Keep in pan, warm.

The filling can be prepared before making pancakes, so that the cakes are really hot when served. Divide filling into 3 portions; use as filling for pancakes; fold over and cook for 2 minutes longer as directed above. Serves 3.

dear abby

Bullish Boyfriend

DEAR ABBY: I am living with my boyfriend, sharing expenses 50-50, and so far it's worked out well with one exception.

Before we moved in together I had a beautiful set of expensive dishes, and also service for 12 in very fine crystal.

Well, in four months, Andy has broken four dinner plates, two soup bowls, two cups and five glasses!

I haven't gotten too uptight at him because I know it was accidental.

I've asked him to please be more careful in the future because I can't afford much more of this.

Should I ask him to pay for what he broke? What do I do if he says no?

SHATTERED

DEAR SHATTERED: Ask him. And if he says no, you'll have to choose between the bull and the china shop.

DEAR ABBY: What would you do if you knew that your husband's ex-wife was still in love with him and wanted him back very much?

She is trying every way she knows to get him to go back with her.

She is married, but she is not in love with her husband. I think she would like to swap husbands with me. Should I give my husband up for her or not?

TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: A man is not a sack of salt to be possessed or handed over. How does your husband feel about HER? Ask him. If he says he wants to go back to her, then let him go. Otherwise, continue your marriage, and don't worry about her.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with a very nice girl for two years, and I want to marry her, but here's the problem:

When we first met, I lied to her about my job, and I've been lying about it ever since.

You see, I am a garbage collector, but I was afraid if I told her what I did for a living she wouldn't go out with me. So I told her that I worked for the city as an inspector in the sanitation department. I even lied to her parents about it.

What am I going to do? Should I tell her that I have changed jobs, and now I'm a garbage collector? I'm afraid if I tell her I've been lying to her for two years she'll never believe me again.

Please help me, Abby. She's the only girl I've ever loved, and she says she loves me. I am so afraid if I tell her the truth now, I'll lose her.

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: Tell her the truth! If she loves you, you won't lose her. And please get over that hangup about your job. It's honest, respectable and necessary work. And certainly nothing to be ashamed of.

DEAR ABBY: When are men going to smell like real he-men again?

I'm a 20-year-old single girl who's dating no one special, but all the men I date smell like happy hookers. Real nauseating.

Whatever happened to that natural masculine scent men used to have? Makes me wonder if maybe they aren't using a lot of sweet-smelling stuff to cover up the unpleasant odor that comes from not showering.

LIKES REAL MEN

DEAR LIKES: If you like the man, but don't like the way he smells, spend a couple of bucks for a scent you like better and ask him to use it — especially for you.

Christine Smith does her own shoeing

Slender Smith a Nova Scotia First family

CHESTER, N.S. (CP) — Blacksmiths are not a dead breed. Neither do they have to be big and brawny.

Slender, five-foot-five Christine Smith is proving this daily in her father's wrought-iron shop located in this Nova Scotia village.

"I was finding it impossible to find anyone to shoe my horse Flash," said the 23-year-old Smith.

So she qualified as an advanced farrier in two six-week courses at the Nova Scotia Agricultural College in Truro.

Now she is the only qualified female blacksmith in the province.

"My father is in the wrought-iron business," she said. Consequently the tools of the trade are readily available.

Christine's love for horses goes back a long time. "So it is a great convenience to be able to do my own shoeing."

The blacksmith trade has remained virtually unchanged by time or technology. Christine's tools are similar to those of her great-great grandfather, Robert Smith, who built the first blacksmith shop in the village in 1856 when the area was known as Shoreham. It had been settled by families from New England.

Christine's father, Stuart Smith worked the same forge from 1945 until last year when the quaint, almost fairy-tale-like structure, so much a part of Chester's heritage, was demolished by a runaway truck.

Undaunted by the loss, Stuart built another forge beside their tidy, wooden frame house, which is adjacent to the old Chester railway station.

The term blacksmith comes from England and is thought to signify the grime resulting from his occupation, or the black metal he works with, which was compared with the polished metals of the silversmith and goldsmith.

The village smith once was one of the most important members of the community. For his work included making and repairing all sorts of necessary tools, equipment and hardware, from nails to sled runners, and almost any item which could be fashioned from iron by forging.

Many specialized industries such as shipyards, mining companies, lumbering firms, painting trades, gunmaking shops and railway lines still require the services of blacksmiths.

About 100 years ago the blacksmith took over the job of horseshoeing from the farrier, who also acted as a veterinarian. The farrier lately served solely as a veterinary, and both the blacksmith's and the farrier's work was done by the blacksmith.

In the 1850s, there were more than 1,500 blacksmith shops in Nova Scotia. The Industrial Revolution proved unkind to the trade and today few smiths remain, they are scattered in mostly rural areas.

Christine Smith is helping keep the blacksmith trade alive and well.

Christine feels that a "second coming" of the trade is imminent. "More and more people own horses today and, like automobiles, they need constant attention," she states.

Since 1971, a total of 83 students have successfully completed 13 farrier courses at the N.S. Agricultural College and received certificates.

"The first thing we did was learn to make our own tools," Christine said. "And basic training taught us to shape and fit various standard-design horseshoes. The advanced training course instructed us in making shoes to fit horses with abnormally shaped hoofs.

As the first female in Nova Scotia to take the blacksmith's course, Christine's presence naturally fostered a degree of initial disbelief.

"The men at the college were a little suspicious when they first heard that a woman was coming to take the farrier's course," Chris said.

UVic Med School: Onus on Victoria

elizabeth forbes

A short time ago, Dr. Howard Petch, president of the University of British Columbia stated at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon that pressure is building from several groups outside th university for erection of a school of medicine on the campus.

He also said that studies indicated by the year 1985 there will be a definite need for an additional school of medicine in this province and that if it is to be located at Victoria, the university must know at once.

Those statements sent me along to talk to Judge Joseph B. Clearihue, former chancellor of the university, whom I knew as an ardent and long-time advocate of placing a medical school there.

He suggested taht Dr. Petch was stating "a new medical school must be built at an early date in British Columbia, that it is a matter that must be settled not by respective universities but by the provincial government, and if Victoria is not to be left out, we must advocate for it now."

It was only after citizens of Victoria organized themselves to create Victoria College into a full university, he reminded me, tthat the University of Victoria became a fact.

Then he produced a copy of a report written in 1964 by a federal royal commission on health services chaired by Chief Justice Emmett M. Hall, that recommended establishment of "at least five new medical schools and 10 new schools of nursing in various places across Canada —one medical school to be a faculty of the University of Victoria at Victoria."

All the medical schools have been built, Clearihue said, "except the one in Victoria."

Quoting from the report he said the commission believed education of physicians is a matter of national concern. It showed that immigration of medical doctors into Canada, over the five years prior to the report, had been equal to the combined graduating classes of the three largest schools in Canada.

It reported that "the loss to Canada by emigration of Canadian doctors had been equal to the graduated classes of two of these schools."

Here Judge Clearihue reminded me that because there is only one medical school in British Columbia at University of British Columbia, "the province has relied for years in attracting medical doctors from other provinces and countries to meet the needs of an expanding population."

He read me a statement made by the dean of the medical school at McGill University, when he was in Victoria, in which he said it was becoming more and more difficult to admit medical students into McGill outside those from the province of Quebec.

"The same applies to all the other provinces," Clerihue said. "This means that prospective students in British Columbia are now unable to find a university which can accept them, even at UBC, no matter how high their qualifications may be."

Here he produced another statement, made by Health Minister Cocke in the legislature, that the University of British Columbia could not handle the student demand for medical training, nor the number of doctors needed to practise in British Columbia.

He said he was negotiating an arrnagement with the University of Calgary to admit 30 B.C. medical students for training there next year.

Clearihue spoke of Royal Roads Military College "now given full university rank with power to grant university degrees."

Also the fact that the federal government must supply an increasing number of medical doctors for its military, aeronautical and other services "and to do so it pays the fees of its students and gives them allowances and employment during the summer condition of their employment as medical doctors for a period of usually five years."

This suggested to him the possibility of "a closer co-operation between Royal Roads Military College and the University of Victoria in the training of a regualr number of the federal medical students.

CLEARIHUE
. . . . 'advocate now'

"They could be created cadets and given all necessary pre-medical training at Royal Roads in co-operating with UVic, receiving in due course its bachelor of science degrees. They might even continue as residents of the college, at least for part of the time, whilst taking their medical degree at the university."

The provincial government is faced, right now, with need for increased medical services in northern and other locations of the province.

If there was a medical school at UVic "a number of student reservations could be set aside for that purpose there," Clearihue suggests, "with the province paying fees and other assistance during medical training, such as the federal government is now doing."

The federal government is "Pretty well bound to carry out the recommendations of the Hall commission to provide for one-half the cost required for new medical schools," he beleives.

"It has already helped to build four of the schools recommended . . . it cannot refuse to help complete the fifth (hopefully) in Victoria."

He also suggest that lying east of the Paul Building off Foul Bay Road, the University of Victoria has approximately 31 acres of land, which is an ideal site for a university hospital and medical school.

Close at hand is the Royal Jubilee Hospital that now includes the old Veterans' Hospital, also the Eric Martin Institute for psychiatric treatment of patients.

Not too far away is the Victoria General Hospital "all of which would be of great assistance to the medical school hospital."

Dr. Petch said at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon he would need a 400-bed teaching hospital if he establisbed a medical school.

Judge Clearihue beleieves "the citizens of Victoria will provide it as requried . . . as they did the university some years ago."

He conceedes it would take work and organization. Then he says that already the Chamber of Commerce has endorsed the erection of a medical school at the university in Victoria "and that is a good start."

Finally he predicts "if Victorians fail to act and help Dr. Petch, the new medical school will at once be built by Simon Fraser University and it will be lost to Victoria."

Citizens of Victoria—are you going to let that happen? I wonder!

WHEELS

By MICHAEL LAMM

Dear Mike:

The right headlight of my 1971 Maverick only goes about a quarter on when I pull out the switch. It's very dim — sort of a weak yellow. It's that way on both high and low beams. I had the headlight unit replaced, but that didn't help. Why won't it come on all the way?

Pale Moon

Dear Pale:

Because of a poor ground connection. One of the three wires leading to the plug at the back of your headlight unit is the ground. The ground wire runs to the body. That wire apparently has a poor connection.

Dear Mike:

My 1972 Plymouth has an inside hood release. Sometimes it doesn't pop the hood when I pull it. Other times it's fine. How can I fix it so it's on target every time?

No Hood

Dear No:

Your cable is probably a little longer than it needs to be, or the release mechanism up front might be slightly bent or out of adjustment. The cable, so far as I know, cannot be shortened, so you might have to replace it. But before you do, check for bent hardware, loose bolts, and misalignments at the latch.

Dear Mike:

Whenever it rains there's a puddle that forms on the right front floor of my 1968 Buick Electra 225. The body has absolutely no rust holes, of that I'm sure. I can see no place where water can come in, but it surely does. Please give me some clues.

Wet Feet

Dear Wet:

Check the base of your radio antenna — the rubber base — first. If that's all right, check your fresh air vent at the cowl. You'll probably have to remove the sheet-metal grille at the base of the windshield to see if the mastic is sealing the plenum chamber. And the third place to check is the windshield rubber seal, underneath the chrome surround.

Dear Mike:

My father and uncle were talking about cars, and my uncle said he knows a fellow who drives his car 50,000 miles and then sells it. During those 50,000 miles he never changes the oil or filter. Is that possible?

Dubious

Dear Dub:

With conventional motor oils, no; with synthetic oils, maybe. Either way, I pity the next owner of this car.

Disease Kept in the Family

OAKLAND, Calif. — Descendants of an early Californian named Antone Joseph have learned that the incurable degenerative disease that has killed 48 of their relatives in the past 130 years is unique to their family.

Eighty of the 125 known surviving members of the family ranging in age from 18 to 80 gathered in Oakland during the weekend and heard the neurological ailment officially named "the Joseph Disease."

They came from as far away as Texas to meet with genetics specialists Dr. William Nyhan of the University of California at San Diego and Dr. Roger Rosenberg of Southwestern Texas University of Dallas.

The doctors said the first sign of the disease always occurred when the victim is between the ages of 18 and 42 with death occurring 10 to 30 years later. There is no known cure and that the only way to detect it is by careful neurological examination.

Dr. Nyhan said victims become spastic and invariably become bedridden or confined to wheelchairs. Victims become unable to control their muscles and as their condition deteriorates, they become suseptible to all kinds of other ailments, such as pneumonia.

The meeting was not all somber as the relatives matched family albums, wedding pictures and mementos. Most had never met many of the others.

He Arrested Al Capone

MARATHON, Fla. — L. G. Crews, a former policeman credited with thwarting the assassination of Franklin Roosevelt and who arrested Al Capone six times, is dead at 74.

A quiet funeral was held Sunday for Crews, whose 25-year career as a Miami policeman earned him numerous honors and the late president's thanks. He died Friday in a local hospital.

Crews, an expert marksman proud of his record of never firing a fatal bullet, arrested Capone six times after the gang leader moved to Miami from Chicago. He made all the arrests, on various charges, alone and unarmed.

Just Too Much Red Goodwill

VOLGOGRAD — U.S. astronaut Donald Slayton complained Sunday that there is so much goodwill on the goodwill tour American and Soviet spacemen are making in the Soviet Union that it is getting out of hand. "I will sign an autograph for anybody who wants one, but only under controlled conditions," Slayton said. "It has now become a physical impossibility." Crowds of up to 3,000 people have waited on street corners and at airports for up to four hours to cheer the three U.S. astronauts and two Russian cosmonauts.

CLEVELAND — Phillip Braff, operator of a mobile home company, is trying to sell a 10-by-40-foot trailer used by the Beatles as a dressingroom during a 1966 concert. "It's worth maybe $35,000 to $50,000," said Braff, who has ignored hundred of letters from Beatles fans who claim the trailer is a shrine. "I have no concept. I never was a Beatles fan." He had it on display for a time, but souvenir hunters kept stealing parts of the furnishings.

NEW YORK — Joseph Feldman has turned himself in after learning from newspaper reports that police were looking for the person who forgot to return 15,000 books borrowed from the New York public library. It took 20 men, seven trucks and three days to clear out the books, valued at between $100,000 and $150,000, from Feldman's four-room Greenwich Village apartment, police said. Feldman, 58, was charged with criminal possession of stolen property. He faces up to seven years in prison, and the library said he may owe a maximum late-return penalty of $5 a book — $75,000.

NORFOLK, Mass. — Mark Frechette, who starred in the motion picture, Zabriski Point, died in prison during the weekend. Frechette, star of the 1970 film, was found dead in the recreation room at Norfolk state prison. A weight bar was across his neck. Officials said it apparently fell while he was exercising. Frechette was an unknown when he was picked by Michaelangelo Antonioni to star in a film about America's alienated youth. Frechette returned to Boston in 1973 to live in a commune. He was arrested Aug. 29, 1973 during a holdup at a bank.

NASHVILLE — Two of Elvis Presley's four luxury jet liners are up for sale. An advertisement in the Wall Street Journal valued the Jet Commander and Gulfstream I at $550,000 and $750,000, respectively. Presley will still be able to fly in style, retaining an $850,000 Jetstar with two bedrooms, two baths, dining room, club room and three color televisions. He'll also keep his personal plane, a $1.2-million Convair 880 equipped with club room, dining room, lounge and library.

The Bridge Expert

As a general principle, when a declarer is playing some trump contract, he makes haste to gather in the defenders' trumps, lest one of his winners be ruffed. But situations arise where it is incorrect to gather in all of their trumps immediately. The latter was the case in today's deal, which was played in a rubber-bridge game.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♦.

East played the queen of diamonds on West's opening diamond lead, and South won the trick with the ace. South couldn't afford to allow the queen to win, for fear that East would shift to a club (as he would have). The defenders would then have been en route to winning two club tricks.

Declarer next cashed the king and queen of trumps, East discarding a diamond on the second trump lead. If declarer now led another trump to the board's ace, picking up West's remaining trump en route, he would be entering dummy for the first and last time. He would then take the 50-50 spade finesse, in the hope that East possessed the king.

On this given day, however, West had the spade king. Upon winning with that card, West would exit with a diamond, declarer ruffing. Eventually declarer would lose two club tricks, and his contract.

After cashing the king and queen of trumps, our declarer discontinued playing the trump suit, leaving West with the nine and dummy with the ace. He next laid down the ace of spades and followed up by leading his remaining spade, West taking his king. It didn't matter what West now returned, for declarer was home safely. Actually West cashed the club ace, hoping his partner possessed the king, and contained with a club, South's queen winning. South then led a trump to dummy's ace, after which he claimed his contract.

As an aside, this is one of those unusual deals where it is better to have a king rather than an ace. If South had the K-6 of spades; instead of the A-6, he would have no option: he would draw only two rounds of trumps, and then lead the spade king. It is only when he holds the spade ace that he has the opportunity to choose the inferior play of finessing in spades.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR

For Tuesday, Sept. 30

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You may feel "cut off at the pass." Key is to garner forces, gain allies, get best possible buys, know when to draw line. Lovers' quarrel should not be blown out of proportion. Slight financial squeeze should not be transformed into panic. It's temporary!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Conclusions are reached, deals closed, thoughts completed, finishing touches put on manuscript, format. Build on solid base. Relate to those with "track records." Means stick with quality, experience.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be more independent in dealings with neighbors, relatives. New contacts now prove fruitful, our creative abilities can be successfully utilized. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. Employment or special services picture is subject to unusual change.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Money comes your way. This time, practice "conservation". Yes, you get proverbial second chance. Will you repeat mistakes? That question soon will be answered. Give yourself a chance — protect assets, follow through on "safety program".

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Highlight ability to make material at hand "work for you". Means be flexible, versatile, willing to laugh at your own foibles. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. Cycle is such that, despite minor controversy, popularity builds and you emerge victorious.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23): Be specific. Read between the lines. If you "do your homework", benefits can be enormous. Aquarius, Leo and Taurus figure in picture. One who works backstage or behind the camera — or in hospital — asks for "equitable trade". Message will become clear!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Perspective improves. You not only are aware that "something happened", but you learn why it occurred. Member of opposite sex is involved. Some of your hopes, wishes may be on the line. A friend talks about making a change.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Home, security, basic costs are featured. Be diplomatic, not weak. Get point across without being overly aggressive. Make intelligent concession without abandoning principles. You are going to make a significant advance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): See beyond the immediate. Avoid self-deception. Streamline procedures, methods. Land deal — and what it costs — could be high on agenda. One you "care for" is troubled and wants to confide. Be available, sympathetic.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Organize. Accept added responsibility. Adjust cost factors. Don't sell yourself short. Taxes, leases, protective policies are featured. You get nothing for nothing — despite what a very persuasive person has to say.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Finish what you start — avoid hanging on to outmoded concepts. Accent is on cooperative efforts, competition, partnerssip and a "legal tie", including marriage. You make a mark. Superior says you should be promoted.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be direct, independent and get to heart of matters. Eschew red-tape procedures. Your work, efforts can have far-reaching effects. Leo, Aquarius and Scorpio persons figure in picture. One who is attracted to you makes no secret of it.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY in October, you regain strength, get more responsibility and feel more alive. You recover from emotional blow which has been sapping your strength. You have sense of humor and a weight problem. Gemini, Saggitarius persons play important roles in your life.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

Joe was at the window. "There go the three Lang girls," he said. "A funny lot, they all look the same to me. Always in red or blue."

"Eve, Ann, and Carol. Nice kids, but they do have a thing about those two colors," Susan told him. "Ann wears blue if and only if Eve is in red, and you never see Eve and Carole both in blue. That's Carol or Ann in the red mini, but they wouldn't both wear red."

Which of the three was in blue?

(Answer tomorrow)

Friday's answer: Ladder top was 204 kells up the wall.

GARDENING
hilda beastall

Don't Write Garden Off Yet

The trend to lower temperatures, though still without a ground frost reading at dawn (as of Sept. 26) does not mean the end of the gardening year. It brings changes to be sure, but the year continues with new interests in the vegetable section of the garden no less than among ornamentals.

Allotment gardeners too will notice the same transition.

Tomato plants, squash, and cucumber plants will be among the first to succumb to frost but hardy vegetables sown or planted with late fall and early winter crops as the objective, will be quite unaffected.

On the day you find the leaves of squash and tomato definitely browned off (sunshine on frosted foliage is the culprit at this time of year), pick every tomato and cut every squash fruit.

Handle the fruits carefully. The perfect ones will keep but damaged ones will not. Arrange to use the imperfects within a few days. Processing even a jar or two of tomatoes will make them usable around Thanksgiving if kept in a really cold place.

Perfect squash and tomatoes, ripe and near ripe, will need to be kept at cool house temperature so that their use can be spread over as long a period as possible.

The surplus of good vegetables should be distributed among neighbors and other friends while it is still as perfect as you like it yourself. Senior citizen groups and "disadvantaged" groups have members who are unable to grow their own but need the benefits of fresh food as much as you do.

The beans will need watching too. Our last sowings made July 12 are bearing well now; the variety Harvester (green) will still be producing (if no ground frost) after Stringless Greenpod and Wax Puregold have finished. They are bearing first pickings now.

This makes a nice succession for early fall.

When pulling out either pea or bean plants, take the time to strip off every pod. Even though some are more mature than normally liked, you may find enough for several mixtures of beans, peas, an onion, and a handful of oat or wheat flakes to go into a healthy soup. Press through a strainer if bean pods are likely to be a little tough.

Carrots, when well thinned (minimum two inches between) and well watered, continue to grow in root size from a July 9 sowing; beets sown the same day are over an inch in diameter with tender texture when cooked. Grated raw, they make a colorful, though messy to prepare, mound for a salad plate.

Both carrots and beets of this late sowing will stay in the ground while they show signs of still growing. Use one or two at intervals as a check on condition.

Mature carrots and beets (from early sowings) should be lifted for storage or general use. Beets become woody; carrots split in cold wet soil.

Vegetables to be left in the ground for use after frost and through early winter need watering well until a series of fall rains takes over. Included are leeks, Jerusalem artichokes, parsnips, Brussels sprouts, kale, savoy and other winter cabbage, endive, corn salad, Chinese winter radish and the latest sowings of lettuce.

If you grow all these plus a half dozen hardy herbs, you are dollars and meals ahead of the "summer only" vegetable gardener. If you have only a half dozen kinds of the list, you still have the makings for unique meals since no two people are likely to use the same combination. When some vegetables must be bought, you enliven them with a selection of fresh home grown.

Cultivate and care for the vegetables you leave in the ground after frost. They are as vital to your meals as the first lettuce and peas of early summer.

American Named Head Of College

An American college official, Dr. Dennis Wing, has been appointed principal of North Island College, on the northern end of Vancouver Island.

The college, which will offer courses credited by University of Victoria, has been without a principal since it was set up early this spring by the provincial government.

UVic officials had expressed concern about the transfer system which would give students university credit this year when the principal's post was not filled.

Wing, a news release from the college says, has extensive experience in continuing education and has been assistant to the president at Lower Columbia College in Washington State. He received his PhD degree from University of Colorado.

Emergency Landing For Brass

SEATTLE (AP) — A Northwest Orient 747 carrying the governors of Oregon and Washington to a trade mission to Japan made an emergency landing at Sea-Tac airport Saturday after losing one engine.

Among the 350 passengers were Governor Bob Straub of Oregon, Governor Dan Evans of Washington, their wives and trade delegation members from both states.

Ken Forbes, Straub's press aide, said the occupants were shaken but unhurt.

The jumbo jet circled for an hour to get rid of unnecessary fuel before landing.

All Eyes On U.K. Labor Session

By DAVID MacDONALD
Times London Bureau

BLACKPOOL, England — Absent friends will be closely watching this week's probably-rambunctious annual conference of the ruling Labor Party.

The non-attenders in question are the Arab oil potentates, whose huge deposits in London banks support the pound, the tight-lipped bureaucrats of the International Monetary Fund, to whom Britain may appeal for a large loan in the months to come, and the international financial and business community, which has such influence on whether the pound stays steady or continues its decline.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Denis Healey, Chancellor of the Exchequer, will be thinking hard about the state of the pound, now hovering close to the two-dollar exchange mark, as fiery speeches are made by those seeking the kind of changes in government fiscal policy that would send the pound decisively downwards.

Rising unemployment and continuing inflation will be the centre of almost every argument. Both the right and left wings of the party have been spoiling for a knockdown, dragout fight for months and these two problems will give them an extra chance to have a go at each other.

The recently-formed Social Democratic Alliance, organized by moderate and right-wing labor party supports to counter the left-wing Tribune group in the parliamentary party, is trying to get conference support to overthrow a decision by a constituency party to dismiss Cabinet Minister Reg Prentice as its candidate at the next general election.

Prentice began proceedings before the conference opening by attacking what he calls the extreme left and its domination of the agenda in a blistering speech.

He, and others like him, will be supporting the government's current economic policies, including the $350-million plan to reduce unemployment and the six-pound-a-week pay increase ceiling.

Those on the left of the party want no cuts in public spending, especially not in the social services.

They also seek selective import controls to protect Britain's automobile, textile and electrical component industries from fierce Far East competition.

The government opposes such controls, except in cases of dumping, fearing retaliation and a trade war.

General deflation is their answer to the country's economic crisis, while the prime minister is following a policy of selective deflation.

Wilson is in no danger of a challenge to his leadership but economic policy is the core of the challenge that will be made to Healey's position on the national executive committee of the party.

The militant left, in the person of sacked junior minister Eric Heffer, has been gunning for Healey's seat on the committee and came very close at the last conference.

Since this committee is already left-dominated by a two-to-one margin, defeat of Healey would be unwelcome to the prime minister and the moderate wing of the party.

A key figure in support of Mr. Wilson's economic policies will be Jack Jones, with one million card votes in his pocket from his Transport and General Workers' Union.

His firm support was a strong factor in the decision of the Trades Union Congress annual conference last month to support the pay ceiling.

Noisy clashes are guaranteed over a radical document dealing with Britain's industrial problems that has been drawn up by the left-wing dominated home policy committee that is chaired by Anthony Wedgwood Benn.

NOW Strike Support Growing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Members of the National Organization for Women say they have received thousands of letters and telephone calls from people across the country who want to join a one-day women's strike Oct. 29.

The nationwide strike was announced two weeks ago by NOW members who believe it will show how much the country depends on women.

"The response in the last week has been fantastic," said Cindy Clark, a strike leader, in a telephone interview from San Jose, Calif., "We have heard from women in the military, women on capitol hill, nurses, business and professional women, factory workers ... and men, too."

Ms. Clark said she has received about 2,000 letters and phone calls in the past week, and a number of the other strike organizers are getting a similar response.

She said the strike — which has been named "Alice doesn't ..." — is for "every woman — not just the feminists. We want them to show how much they do support the system — that women provide 51 per cent of the support."

She said NOW is getting many inquiries about the event from people who ordinarily might not be expected to get involved in a women's protest.

"Whenever the word 'strike' is mentioned, a lot of people say, 'oh ... that's too militant for me, that's radical feminist.' But once we tell them ... that it's simply a one-day thing to show non-support, they are interested and want more information."

Based on the theme of the movie "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore," the strike literature urges women to refuse to work Oct. 29, either inside or outside the home. It also advises women to refuse to buy anything or volunteer for anything that day.

"If they can do it without fear of losing their jobs, they should not go to work," Ms. Clark said. "If they have to work, we will have buttons and armbands for them to wear."

U.S. 'DROWNING IN INFORMATION'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The intelligence community is not giving the U.S. taxpayer his money's worth and its red tape might prevent advance warning of an enemy attack, according to the chairman of the House intelligence committee.

"We are drowning in information in intelligence which we are not absorbing," said rep. Otis Pike (Dem.—N.Y.)

He also accused Secretary of State Henry Kissinger of Engineering the administration's refusal to provide information the committee considers essential to its investigation of intelligence operations.

Pike made the comments Sunday in advance of a meeting today with his select committee on intelligence to decide whether assistance of the full house will be requested to obtain testimony and classified documents being withheld by the White House and the CIA.

The panel's counterpart in the senate, meanwhile, called a closed meeting today to map out further open hearings this week on the CIA's interception of mail involving some of the nation's top officials.

Pike, interviewed Sunday, said he believes Kissinger "has been the one who's been trying the hardest to block the investigation in the first place."

If the house is asked to back up the committee's demands, Pike said, it would be the first step toward a contempt of Congress resolution if no solution to the impasse can be reached.

Asked for an over-all assessment of the nation's many and varied intelligence operations, Pike said:

"I think that there are thousands of dedicated men risking their lives to get intelligence. I think that there are other thousands of brilcent scientific techniques for getting intelligence.

"Above the gathering level, however, it just bogs down every single time. It is not absorbed, it is not delivered. As far as our getting our money's worth out it — no way are we getting our money's worth out of it ...

"If an attack were to be launched on America in the very near future, it is my belief that America would not know that the attack were about to be launched."

Death Squad Attacked

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuter) — Brazilian security officials declared war Sunday on the country's notorious death squad, held responsible for the killing of about 3,000 alleged petty criminals during almost two decades.

Rio de Janeiro citizens were even given a special telephone number where they could anonymously give information about the organization — believed to consist of policemen taking the law into their own hands.

The new drive launched by Rio de Janeiro security chief Gen. Osvaldo Inacio Domingues, follows the discovery in recent weeks of an increasing number of bullet-ridden bodies bearing the trademarks of death squad executions — signs of torture, cigarette burns and marks of strangulation.

In the Rio area, where the deaths squad first appeared in 1956, more than 1,000 bodies have been found in the last 10 years.

Peking's National Games Play Down Competitive Angles

By ROSS H. MUNRO
Special to the Times

PEKING — The stadiums had booths selling the works of Marx and Mao. A losing women's basketball team was given a berth in the finals because of its advanced political consciousness. Weightlifters competed in railway yards and table tennis players at a housisg complex.

It was all part of China's Third National Games which officially concluded Sunday with a closing ceremony at Peking Workers Stadium attended by most of the 7,000 competitors.

Adhering to the Chinese sports slogan of "Friendship First, Competition Second," there were no announcements indicating the final standings of the provincial, regional and municipal teams.

Although the Third National Games rival the Olympics and the Asian Games in size and scope, apparently only a tiny number of world records were broken during the two-week meet. Yet in a city with severaly limited diversions, tickets to any of the games events were highly prized. Single gates to many stadiums and gymnasiums were often manned by 20 or 30 persons whos job it was to prevent gate crashers.

Long after events had begun, scores of Chinese youths would be standing around outside the gates hoping somehow to obtain a spare ticket. It presented a dilemma to an early leaving foreigner with a still valid ticket. To make contact with a Chinese and openly hand him the ticket risked drawing embarrassing attention to the recipent wh would know he shouldn't take gifts of any sort from foreigners. The solution arrived at by one foreigner was casually to drop the ticket which was then scooped up by the closest bystander. The whole process took about three seconds.

One of the unique and atractive aspects of the games was the staging of many of the events away from the large stadiums and gymnasiums. Competitions were held in 165 locations such as factories, communes, army barracks and residential sites in and around Peking. Inexplicably, repeated requests by foreign journalists to cover such events were ignored by officials.

The staging of competitive events in places like factories, official Chinese news reports declared, was aimed at popularizing sports among the masses as well as exemplifying the call of Chairman Mao that sports "serve the laboring people."

Judging by the reporting of the Chinese press, political ideology permeated the national games. After the founding of the New China, one report declared, "Champion-it is" had been severely condemned. As an example of the new thinking, the report quoted a champion gymnast who was coaching her younger competitors.

"I want to help others so that they may overtake me. Skill and experience are not private property," said Chian Shao-yi.

"We learn from and help each other so as to raise the sports standards of our country as quickly as possible."

In line with that goal of fostering a new generation of world standard competitors, teams competing in some events were required to undergo what the Chinese call "age pruning." In basketball, for instance, 70 per cent of the competitors were required to be under 22.

It was in basketball that a women's team was given a finals berth because of their attitude rather than their standing. When the Kwangsi provincial team lost a game because of a referee's misjudgment, a Chinese news report declared, "the Kwangsi girls did not complain and their fine sportsmanship won the praises of all. So the organizing committee of the natioal games decided to make an exception and invited the Kwangsi team to the final stage competiton."

CANADIAN SCOTTISH Regiment (Princess Mary's) marched through Victoria Saturday afternoon to commemorate battle honors won in the First World War. The regiment was halted by Police Chief Jack Gregory outside the Empress Hotel at 3 p.m. and its right to march through the city "with bayonets fixed, drums beating and colors flying" was challenged by Mayor Peter Pollen as part of the ritual laid down so that the regiment can exercise its rights given with the freedom of the city on June 6, 1944. Having proven its right, the regiment then marched to the Legislative Buildings where it was inspected by Lieutenant-Governor Walter Owen. The regiment was marking the St. Julien Wood unit citation given their predecessors for their action in the battle of St. Julien Wood, April 22-24 in 1915, when the Canadian troops broke the German lines, saving the city of Calais.

Chlorine Search To Resume

Attempts to locate four chlorine-carrying railway tank cars which fell into Malaspina Strait from a barge in February will be renewed as soon as search vessels are available from the environment department, a government official said in Vancouver Saturday.

After an unsuccessful search by the submersible Pisces last June, the transport ministry said an intensive search would be resumed in the fall.

In the meantime residents of Campbell River, Texada Island and other neighboring communities have continued to express concern about the possibility that some of the dangerous substance may be leaking from the sunken rail cars.

The cars were on a 168-foot barge which overturned during the night when it was being towed by the tug Chieftain III from Squamish.

New Effort by Campora To Rally Disenchanted

BUENOS AIRES (WP) — Former president Hector Campora of Argentina flew back to Buenos Aires Saturday after a two-year stay in Mexico, in an apparent effort to become a rallying point for squabbling and leaderless Argentines.

Campora, 66, and his wife arrived on a delayed flight from Mexico City, where he has been administering a dental clinic. Asked why he had returned, Campora replied "I never have abandoned the political struggle ... I have always been a point of unity in Peronism."

He promised a press conference later this week to explain more fully his reasons for returning and left by car for his estate outside the city.

Campora may be trying to recreate the role he played in 1973, when he was elected president as a stand-in for Gen. Juan Domingo Peron, who had been exiled 18 years before.

Basing his campaign on unswerving devotion to Peron since 1944, Campora ran on a simple slogan of "loyalty" and the phrase "Campora in government, Peron in power."

Elected overwhelmingly, Campora served 49 days as president and then resigned to pave the way for Peron's ultimate return to Argentina and the presidency. Campora returns to Argentina at a time when many disillusioned Peronists are looking for another strong leader who can unite their many factions as Peron once did.

What the rotund, white-haired Campora lacks in charisma he perhaps compensates for in politkcal experience and in unflagging devotion to Peronism.

During his brief tenure as president, however, he granted total amnesty to all political prisoners and was strongly supported by the leftist Peronist Youth.

Peron at first praised him highly but then named him Ambassador to Mexico, some said to get him out of the way.

That was in December, 1973. Identified with the left that Peron finally drummed out of Peronism, Campora resigned as ambassador two days before Peron died in July, 1974.

Campora returned to Buenos Aires for the funeral but was threatened by the right-wing Argentine anti-Communist alliance and had not returned to Argentina since.

Gibson Vows Firm Course

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

VANCOUVER — Echoing the unsuccessful battle cries of his predecessors over the past 12 years, Gordon Gibson took the helm Sunday and promised to steer the Liberal Party on a steady course through the storms of political extremism in B.C.

The new Liberal leader is a spirited and skillful speaker and the party faithful responded to his election speech at the convention here this weekend with a wave of optimism and solidarity.

The Liberal party is alive and well in B.C., he said

The Liberal party will continue to be a moderate alternative for that large percentage of British Columbians who don't want the political hatreds and extremes of the NDP and the Social Credit

Liberals are not just pragmatists, he said. 'Liberalism is something that means something."

But the words are now familiar fare at B.C. Liberal conventions.

The litany began in 1953, just a year after the Liberal coalition government crumbled in the face of a Social Credit landslide, and Arthur Laing took over the party leadership

"Our party is not dead," said Laing. "It is full of life and vitality. Liberalism is a way of life."

Ray Perrault took over in 1959 and promised Liberals would remain true to their principles and not enter any coalition. Pat McGeer, in 1968 said the Liberals were about to find their way out of the wilderness, and David Anderson, elected leader just 3½ years ago, pledged that the party could soon be victorious if it stuck to its principles of moderation.

All the leaders have been able to do with their brave words so far is keep the party alive.

But the 450 voting delegates at the convention here were heartened to hear Gibson say

MARSALA, Sicily (AP) — A Carthaginian warship which sank off Sicily more than 2,000 years ago carried two bagloads of hashish, possibly to be used to heighten the morale of sailors in fierce wars against the North African city's archrival, Rome. British archeologists rescued the relics of the ship and its load

12 Nations Call Back Ambassadors to Spain

WEARING SHACKLES and traditional stripped uniforms, these five Drumheller Corrections Institute prisoners, members of an in-prison Jaycees group, trudged 88 miles from the prison to Calgary during the weekend to raise money for the Alberta Children's Hospital in Calgary. It took them about 50 hours. The shackles and uniforms have been outlawed in Canadian prisons and the walkers had to get special permission from the solicitor-general to wear the garb on the highway. The shackles, made by other prisoners, were lighter than the traditional leg irons. The prisoners were unguarded on their trek. It won't be known for about two weeks how much the walk actually brought in.

MADRID (AP) — Thousands of workers in Spain's northern Basque provinces began a 48-hour strike today to protest the execution of two Basque nationalists and three other terrorists convicted of killing policemen.

The death sentences, carried out at dawn Saturday despite appeals for mercy from leaders around the world, touched off violent demonstrations in Western Europe and prompted 12 nations to recall their ambassadors to Spain as a sign of displeasure with the regime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

The Spanish government in turn began recalling its envoys from European capitals.

Mexican President Luis Echeverria called for Spain's expulsion from the United Nations, and his government ordered all connections between Mexico and Spain broken. All flights between Mexico and Spain by Iberia, the Spanish airline, and Aeromexico were cancelled. Spain's official government representative, the correspondent of the Spanish news agency EFE and the representative of the Spanish tourism office were ordered out of the country, and the offices of all Mexican enterprises operating in Spain were ordered closed.

Reaction in Spain spread immediately through the Basque provinces of Alava, Guipuzcoa and Vizcaya. An estimated 30,000 persons stopped work Saturday when they learned of the executions. On Sunday civil guardsmen opened fire on a crowd of 2,000 persons in Algorta, a guerrilla stronghold on the northern coast, as the crowd poured through the streets shouting "Murderers, we will avenge our dead!" Six persons were reported wounded and scores were arrested.

The protests reflected widespread oppostion to the death penalty, but many were shocked by what philosopher-writer Jean-Paul Sarte described as a lack of due process of law during the trials of the five by military tribunals operating under emergency procedures.

Riot police in Madrid dispersed 1,500 young demonstrators who attempted Sunday to turn a mass into a requiem service for the five. Several persons were detained, but there was no violence.

From Scandinavia to Greece, thousands demonstrated against the Franco re-

Canada Wins Fight For Fishing Treaty

MONTREAL (CP) — Faced with a determined stand by the host nation, the 17-member International Commission for the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries agreed Sunday to accept a Canadian proposal for a 40-per-cent reduction in foreign fishing of groundfish stocks off the Atlantic Coast.

The Canadian proposal, first put forward at the last ICNAF conference at Edinburgh in June, called for a 40-per-cent reduction in foreign fishing in offshore areas stretching from the northern tip of Labrador, around Newfoundland and Nova Scotia and including areas off the coast of New Brunswick.

The vote was hailed as a victory for Canadian Fishermen by a jubilant Romeo LeBlanc, fisheries minister.

Canada also succeeded in convincing ICNAF members to accept more stringent catch limits on endangered species of fish and to grant Canadian fishermen a higher percentage of total catch allotments.

LeBlanc said the agreement, to take effect next year, should provide badly-needed relief for fishermen in the Atlantic provinces who have been faced with steadily-declining stocks.

The 40-per-cent reduction will be brought about in part by reducing the number of days foreign fleets will be permitted to fish off the Canadian Atlantic Coast each year. The 40-per-cent figure is an average as some zones will have larger reductions than others.

The reductions would apply to all ICNAF members except Canada and the United States, whose coasts are involved, and France, which controls the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon off the south Newfoundland coast.

Groundfish stocks include cod, haddock, plaice and redfish.

SPORTS

Victoria resident Dave Cutler undoubtedly will break the Canadian Football League record for field goals this season, but he failed to do it Sunday. Even in failure, however, Cutler turned out to be the hero. When his kick went wide, it fell in for a single point with 14 seconds left to give Edmonton Eskimos a come-from-behind 37-36 victory over Calgary Stampeders. Page 12.

DISMAY OVER OIL BOOST

Both rich and poor countries expressed dismay today over the 10-per-cent increase in oil prices agreed to Saturday by the world oil cartel.

In Toronto Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie said the rise will mean "steady upward pressure" for higher retail oil prices in Canada.

Gillespie, named to the energy portfolio last week by Prime Minister Trudeau, said in an interview there would not be an immediate increase in the price of gasoline but he could not say how long that would last.

"There are only two ways to cope with this," he said. "Either growing subsidies from the Consolidated Revenue fund . . . or the price of oil will have to inch upward."

Gillespie, calling the increase "bad news all around" for Canada said he could not estimate immediately how much it will cost Canadian taxpayers to increase the subsidy on imported oil.

"I'm meeting with my officials today to go over all aspects of the situation," he said.

Gillespie said the export tax on oil which Canada exports to the United States will have to be raised to offset the added cost of imported oil.

It would be up to the National Energy Board to set the amount.

Meanwhile, the British pound slumped to a new low, attributed largely to the price increase. The United States dollar strengthened.

Amir Jamal, Tanzania's minister of commerce and industry, said in Dar es Salaam that oil-trading countries were "apparently turning their backs on the developing countries, particularly the least developed."

He said the increase agreed upon in Vienna by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will cost Tanzania an extra $10 million in foreign exchange annually.

"For the least developed countries, petroleum products are not luxuries, they are necessities," he added.

United Way Kicks Off

United Way kicked off its canvassing of local businesses today with the introduction of a new lapel pin to be worn by all volunteer workers during their canvassing rounds.

The three-figure lapel pin represents the "people helping people" approach to meeting community needs, said campaign chairman Eric Dowell.

"It also symbolizes the three-way relationship between the United Way volunteers, the agency volunteers and the voluntary support by donors in the community," he said.

The goal for this year's over-all campaign is $750,000, approximately 11 per cent more than was raised last year.

Residential canvassing begins Oct. 15.

All monies collected will be allocated to 24 agencies serving more than 25,000 people.

The campaign is still in need of volunteer canvassers and interested persons can call 385-6708.

Gunmen Seek Plane from U.K.

LONDON (UPI) — Three gunmen demanded a plane and safe conduct out of Britain today as the price for sparing the lives of seven Italian employees taken as hostages during a botched robbery attempt at a London restaurant. One high-ranking police official said, however, "There will be no deals."

"I was told by the hostages they have made this demand," Italian consul general Mario Manca told newsmen after talking to the hostages through the locked door of the small storeroom where they are being held for a second day.

But assistant police commissioner Wilfred Gibson said "They have been told there will be no deals."

The gunmen, said to include two West Indians and a Nigerian, have held the hostages at the Spaghetti House restaurant in Knightsbridge since early Sunday.

An eighth hostage, Alfredo Olivelli, was released to how "good faith."

Mrs. Mary Olivelli, his wife, said her husband described the store room prison, measuring only 9 by 13 feet as "a hell hole."

"He said the stench is indescribable and the heat overpowering," she added.

During the morning police passed coffee, cigarettes and a portable chemical toilet into the storeroom.

There are no sanitary facilities in the room and their air conditioning was switched off in hope the heat would force the bandits out.

Mrs. Olivelli said her husband also told her the robbers wore knitted helmets covering most of their faces and that they told the hostages they belonged to the "Black Liberation Front."

But London police and spokesmen for Black community groups said they knew of no such organization.

Senior police officers said there are no political implications. It was just an armed robbery that went wrong because police arrived on the scene too quickly, they added.

Man Dynamites Himself

CAMPBELL RIVER — A man threatening to blow himself up with dynamite carried out his threat as a policeman tried to intervene Sunday night.

RCMP were called to 1970 16th Ave. shortly before the blast at 7:45 and a constable was approaching the house when the explosion went off, levelling the building and shattering neighbors' windows. The policeman's arms were cut by flying debris, but there were no other injuries.

Sgt. Ed Ackerman said the explosion was heard up to five miles away.

"We're still going through the ruins trying to pick up pieces of the guy and securing the rubble to make sure no one gets in as there could be more dynamite buried there," he said.

The dead man was alone in the house. He is believed to have been a powderman at Western Mines, Buttle Lake.

A demolition team from CFB Comox was making a search of the ruins in case there are other explosives.

Police withheld the man's name pending next of kin notification.

NEWS BRIEFS

Knifed to Death

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 65-year-old man was found fatally stabbed to death in his home Sunday night after an anonymous phone caller informed police about the incident. The man, whose name was not released, had been stabbed nine times and his naked body was found sprawled across a bed, police said. The house had not been ransacked and police said robbery was apparently not involved.

4 Years in Swindle

NAGOYA, Japan (Reuter) — A 38-year-old woman who mimicked former premier Kakuei Tanaka to swindle five persons out of more than $1 million was sentenced today to four years in prison. The woman phoned the five saying Tanaka needed political donations.

Plumber's Wife Wins Olympic Biggie

HULL, Que. (CP)—Mrs. Jacqueline St. Cyr, a 40-year-old housewife, has won $1 million in the Olympic Lottery.

"I plan to buy a new house, take a trip to Florida, and buy gifts for my husband," she said today.

Her husband Leo is a plumber.

Mrs. St. Cyr said she jumped up with joy as the numbers flashed on the television screen.

Her two youngest children were laughing and crying with joy.

She said she intends to share some of the money with her children Andre, 22, Jocelyne, 18, and Richard, 16.

She said she had three tickets, gifts from her husband. The tickets were bought in Montreal.

Three tickets bearing the number 1235174 in series A, B and C were drawn Sunday night for three $1-million winners.

Lottery officials said late Sunday they believe they know the general whereabouts of several major winners.

Two of the three tickets bearing the number 1484382 worth $500,000 each were said to have been sold in Vancouver and Moncton, N.B. One $100,000 ticket was believed to be in Winnipeg.

A total of 12 seven-digit numbers were selected at random by a Manitoba government computer Sunday night to determine the winners of the lottery from among the nearly 7.5 million tickets sold. Each number represents three winning tickets, one in each of three series of tickets.

Other winning numbers and the amounts won are:

$250,000—1570725
$200,000—2782441 and 2073287
$100,000—1953815; 2547758; and 2949225;
$50,000—3250409; 3261122; 1199662; and 3310131

A host of smaller prizes will be paid to holders of tickets with the final three, four or five digits identical to those of the 12 numbers selected.

The 864 tickets with five matching digits won $1,000 each and $1,000 with three matching digits will return $100 each.

In Vancouver Chiag-Chen teng, 45, an out-of-work plywood plant worker, said he would use the $50,000 he won to pay off debts and would send some of it to his parents in Taiwan.

He immigrated to Canada seven years ago and has three children — aged 20, 18 and 12.

Analysts pointed to concern that the federal government's borrowing needs to finance its budget deficit would exert further upward pressure on interest r

When Cinderella Escapes —A Secret for Husbands

I am often asked to divulge my secret formula for 40-odd years of wedded bliss and readily respond with my theory that there's no discord that can't be cured by a hotel room.

This isn't quite true. I'm not often asked at all — about anything — but my secret formula is, nevertheless, worth passing on to any husbands, new or old, so pay attention.

I always know when the time has come to give my wife the change and the relief that hotel accommodations mean to her.

Sometimes she will make broad hints, like saying "Why don't we go and stay at a hotel for a few days?" Sometimes, as in this most recent case, she'll clip out an advertisement that offers some package deal and leave it in a place where I am sure to see it, the bottom of a bowl of porridge, maybe, or pasted to the screen of the TV set. Either way I know that the time has arrived to get her out of the pumpkin and into the golden coach.

This latest example was a three-day "Unwinders" stay at Qualicum Beach in a certain hotel that offers a sauna, a whirlpool bath, a heated swimming pool, gourmet dining (this always means "Cherries Jubilee" with the flame), golfing, fishing, walks on the beach and all like that.

I knew it was going to cost me an awful lot more than the magic figure in the advertisement, as it did. I also knew that it was going to rejuvenate my wife for at least another six months, which it did.

Younger hubsands, I suppose, may be inclined to think it a mystery that a woman should be so difficult when transported from the home to the home-away-from-home. This is because it generally takes 20 years or more for the realization to sink in that the average woman lives the life of a caged beast, that inside every patient, uncomplaining, dutiful woman there is a frivolous, carefree woman dying to get out.

Some husbands never do understand this. When you live next door to a resort, as we do, you often see wives who have come from the city for two or three weeks by the seashore. They have the supervision of the children, the meals, the laundry, the dirty dishes, the cleaning up. All that is different, really, is that they do it without any labor-saving devices. They are, of course, absolutely miserable, have a perfectly wretched time and are ripe for running off with Fuller Brush Men.

The hotel roof solves all this. I see it reflected in my wife's face from the very moment we walk toward the reception desk. What is this radiance, this sudden lightness of spirit, that is so apparent? It is the promise of being totally free from any kind of drudgery, the knowledge that for at least three days people will be waiting on her. It means little or nothing to the husband. That's what he gets every day of the week. For a wife it may be a ticket to Shangri-la.

The hotel room door has hardly closed behind the porter before my wife is luxuriating in these new surroundings. She tests the bed, pronounces it ideal for sleeping until noon, which she has every intention of doing. She inspects the view and finds it to her liking. She gives the once over to the bathroom and lays out a variety of beautifiers normally kept in closed drawers. In short, she takes over this room, though it may be nothing very special, and makes it her own. If you are a husband with even half a brain you find yourself thinking that it may be just the best investment you ever made.

My wife has a very special way of looking at the dial of the telephone. It has a little sign saying "Room Service." This is probably the way Alexander Graham Bell looked at the first one he ever built. Here is the ultimate miracle. You just pick up that phone, dial the number, and the whole world is yours, the Cinderella's slipper of every married woman's desire.

Now you are going down to dinner, your wife having spent a leisurely two hours preparing for it, looking really quite marvellous. Again you speculate on depth of pleasure that this is going to bring. It is a very nice meal, sure. But what is so special about it? The answer, of course, is that somebody else is going to be doing it, somebody else is going to be serving it, somebody else is going to look after all those little chores that go with it. Symbolically, the blue flames from the Cherries Jubilee are the warm light of a housewife's freedom.

Now we are at the pool. I marvel at her utter relaxation, this uncharacteristic capacity for "unwinding", as the advertisement has promised. There are no plans to be made, no major issues to be decided, no tomorrow. If there is any decision to be made at all it is whether to try the sauna or the whirlpool and that can wait awhile.

Well, it is as simple as that. All you have to do is make the reservation. The rest will take care of itself and, believe me, I ought to know with 40 years in the ring and no visible scars.

Staff Cutbacks Part of College Gloom

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Camosun College has opened its gloomiest fall with a staff reduced by 41 employees.

Firing of all 30 part-time and 11 full-time teachers has forced the college to curtail or drop offerings in many liberal arts subjects and to postpone the start of new programs such as the early childhood education course which was in great demand.

Classes have been enlarged and administrative staff have been goven teaching assignments along with their regular work but still, many students had to be turned away.

The picture is the same throughout the provincial community college system.

After years of rapid growth, since the system started in the 1960s, a painful retrenchment is taking places as colleges struggle to live within provincial government clamps on spending.

"There is great consternation in the colleges over their budgets," says Frank Beinder, executive director of the B.C. Association of Colleges

All the colleges are feeling the pinch, but especially the larger ones like Vancouver Community College and Camosun.

Camosun's 1975-76 operating budget was cut from the $7.8 requested by the college council to $5.9 million by the government this spring in an attempt to hold college budgets across the province to around an 18 per cent increase.

Appeals by the college for extra funding so that more students could be accepted were turned down by the provincial cabinet.

The situation at Vancouver Community College, largest of the 14 British Columbia colleges and oldest community college in Canada, is just as serious.

"Everybody's terribly upset," sai dinformation officer Geoff Spencer.

"We're a pretty big fish and we've been grievously wounded."

VCC's budget was set following the report in July of the Stuart Commission of Public Inquiry, which reecommended a budget for the year of $26.2 million. This was $4.3 million less than the college estimated it needed.

The college is closing 11 of its 19 English language training programs and drastically cutting the others. Seventeen instructors have been dropped.

Other staff have been cut, such as the native studies instructor, a financial aid officer, and several program assistants.

The Outreach program for Vancouver's east end has been terminated. Everywhere classes are larger, and course offerings fewer.

VCC has fought hard to get more funding, said Spencer, but the situation is now a stalemate with Education Minister Eileen Dailly.

Douglas College in the Lower Mainland made a 10 per cent reduction in classes across the board, affecting all courses equally. A total of 50 course sections have been dropped.

"What's left are absolutely packed," said director of instruction Don Porter. "We've got just about standing room only."

Other colleges, like Malaspina in Nanaimo, haven't been hit as hard.

"We're pretty well okay," said Peter McMullan, assistant to the president at Malaspina.

The college has a status quo budget this year which doesn't allow for great expansion but doesn't force closure of any classes either, he said.

The B.C. Association of Colleges is collecting reports from all the colleges on how this year's budget restrictions have affected them.

Association president Jim Macdonald, a councillor at Capilano Collge, said once the information is gathered the association will make a presentation to Dailly.

The association also hopes to meet with the cabinet, he said.

Beinder said that both inflation and the growth in student enrolments each year make it hard for colleges to live within the hold-the-line budgets set by the education department.

Also, the new money-conscious government attitude "came out of the blue. The colleges were not prepared for it," he said.

Taxmen Offer An Out

The income tax department will not prosecute anyone who makes a voluntary confession of income tax evasion, a spokesman for the Victoria branch of Revenue Canada said today.

Public relations officer Betty Chalmers said the Victoria tax office receives a number of enquiries from citizens whenever there is a news item of someone being fined for tax evasion.

She was commenting on the case of city businessman Llewellyn MacDonald, who along with his store, MacDonald's Ltd., was fined $5,000 Friday for tax evasion.

She said MacDonald made a disclosure only after an investigation had been launched and therefore he was liable to prosecution. An auditor had been in his store two days checking his records before the first disclosure was made.

The department spent $10,000 and worked for 950 hours to complete the single investigation in hopes of encouraging voluntary declarations from other taxpayers, she said.

If a taxpayer makes a full voluntary declaration, he is liable only for the back taxes owing plus 6 per cent simple interest per year. There is no further civil penalty or criminal prosecution.

Conversely, if the declaration is not voluntary, or if a voluntary declaration is incomplete, the taxpayer is liable for both civil penalty and criminal prosecution. In the case of an incomplete voluntary declaration, there would be criminal charges only if the report was deliberately incomplete.

Where charges are laid, a taxpayer found guilty faces a civil levy amounting to 25 per cent of all back provincial and federal income taxes owing plus a criminal court fine of up to double the federal tax owing and two years in jail.

TEN MALAYSIAN youths have arrived in Victoria for a month-long Canada World Youth program in which they will become acquainted with the area by working with local young people on such projects as the recycling depot, Bi-hen Cridge centre, a food co-op, book store and a Y leadership program. Greek-Style Open Theatre At Pearson

Students and staff of Pearson College of the Pacific have built at Greek-style open air theatre.

The stage was constructed in a natural trough surrounded by a gallery built in a 90-degree arch on the hillside. Trees were felled by the students, split and cut in six-foot lengths to serve as benches. The back of the stage faces Pedder Bay.

The architect of the theatre is the college's history and music professor, Edgar Samuel.

"The theatre is designed to create an intimate audience-acting rapport and because the seating plan is circular, all the audience will be close to the stage," Samuel said.

He said another advantage of having a Greek-style theatre is that the performers will have a much greater affinity to nature.

"To be completely cut off from the outside world, yet to be surrounded by all that is natural in the wilderness — the trees, the birds and other animals — is very inspiring for amateur performers," he said.

"The acoustics are excellent . . . if only you could have heard the music we've rehearsed on the stage, the way it floats up the hillside — it's amost as if you're in another world."

Samuel said painted scenes will not be used. Rather, the performers will have to create their own scenes.

"It offers greater freedom, flexibility and excitment, an opportunity for the students to express themselves."

Swartz Bay Parking Expansion?

B.C. Ferry authorities have recommended to the government expansion of parking facilities at Swartz Bay to deal with heavy traffic loads on weekends and during the summer.

The recommendation is now before Transport Minister Bob Strachan and ferry officials hope for an answer soon so that construction can begin.

A spokesman said he did not know how parking facilities would be expanded but the government might either buy surrounding property or create new land by dredging as they have done at Tswassen Terminal.

There are now 300 parking spaces at Swartz Bay but on weekends and during the summer cars often have to park on the roadside because the lot is full.

Expansion of the parking facilities is part of the government's policy to encourage people not to take their cars on the ferries.

It now costs 50 cents to park for up to 48 hours in the ferry lot.

30s Level Jobless Rate —Banker

Unemployment in 1976 could be at the highest level since the depression unless there is a dramatic change in economic conditions, says Roger Hemeon, Vancouver Island regional manager of The Royal Bank of Canada.

The government has the difficult chore of trying to deal with both inflation and unemployment at the same time but it may choke off an economic recovery if its monetary policy is too restrictive, he told a meeting of the western division of the Steel Founders Society of America at the Empress during the weekend.

"There is no doubt the government is seriously concerned about inflation — some people would say overly concerned," Hemeon said.

"While there is no sign yet of any moderation in labor's position on wage settlements, in the United States the continuing high rates of unemployment eventually brought wage demands into line. The same could happen here."

However, there are political and economic dangers in permitting unemployment to rise that cannot be ignored.

"By choosing to maintain the exchange rate (on the Canadian dollar), the government has in-fact opted to postpone a reduction in the unemployment rate so it can go all out in its battle against inflation.

"The danger is that if unemployment gets too high, it may become an overriding political issue which would force Ottawa into excessive stimulation of the economy, starting off another round of double-digit inflation."

The two problems leave Ottawa with some very difficult choices but its present policy of restricting credit could prove counterproductive, he said.

There could be some reduction in unemployment if the economy were permitted to expand.

The outlook for 1976 at the present time is for inflation of about 11 per cent (the same as at present) and unemployment above seven per cent.

A. The new Spectrum high school being built at Burnside and Acorn is due to open in September 1976. Colquitz will remain a junior high school, and the future of the Mount View building now housing Spectrum school is still uncertain.

'Check, Make Sure' Camper's Insured

Many British Columbians may be driving around in campers which they believe are fully insured but which the Insurance Corporation of B.C. denies having any record of, a Saanich woman said today.

Mrs. S. A. McKinty, of 1285 Fairlane Terrace, said her own frustrating attempts to claim on a $4,000 camper which was destroyed in a fire should act as a warning to other owners to "phone, check and make absolutely sure" that their campers are covered — with the papers to prove it.

The wife of a building contractor, Mrs. McKinty said she and her husband kept their camper at a summer property in Ladysmith, occupying it while they were building a cottage.

During their absence last July some children broke into the camper and set fire to it, destroying the unit itself and the partly-completed home.

Ever since she and her insurance agents, P. R. Brown and Sons Ltd., have been trying through a series of letters and telephone calls to get ICBC's Vancouver office to process her claim but the corporation says it has nothing to show the camper was insured, she said.

Yet when the Victoria agents asked ICBC for its 1974 records on vehicle insurance taken out for the family, the official reply was that "that has nothing to do with it."

Agent Jim Spice said in Victoria today: "They told her the 1974 files are deadwood, which is just baloney."

Mrs. McKinty said when ICBC took over from private insurance in March, 1974, Brown's were asked as ICBC agents to arrange identical coverage to that previously provided — for the family's pickup truck, camper and car.

The amount of the premium was about the same as it had been under the private insurers, and "we understood it covered everything as it did before."

However, she said, ICBC insists there should have been a separate document showing the camper coverage, whereas their agent believes the truck and camper may have been lumped together under the regular vehicle insurance certificate.

They can't prove that, though, because they are denied access to the relevant records.

Mrs. McKinty said it's obvious that ICBC has misplaced their file, because the corporation representative she has been dealing with in Vancouve also admits there is no record of any insurance on the truck.

When the truck's licence and registration numbers were fed into the computer the result was a blank, and when the family's name was fed in "it came back with the fact that we own a 1967 car, which we do."

So it's more than likely that if their truck is wrecked in an accident they would have a similar hassle in getting anyone to accept liability, Mrs. McKinty said.

Spice said the key to the camper claim is whether the unit's value was added to that of the truck and shown under the "declared value" portion of the insurance certificate.

"I know there was no separate policy but I'm not sure if the declared value was or was not shown," Spice said. "If it wasn't then she's out of luck."

But until ICBC opens up its files no one will know. And meanwhile Mrs. McKinty has been told she can initiate a claim at the Victoria claims centre. If that fails her only recourse will be to a claims appeal committee in Vancouver.

HOLD-UP AT MOTEL

Victoria city police are looking for two men who escaped with about $180 Saturday after robbing the night clerk of a Gorge Road motel at gunpoint.

Police said the men entered the Charles Dickens Motor Inn at 241 Gorge at about 11:30 p.m., produced a handgun and asked for money.

She will sit in harbor for face-lift in preparation for next summer, when she will be joined by the former CNR vessel Prince Rupert for excursions.

Tonight, the Marguerite crew will be treated to a smorgasbord dinner with Premier Dave Barrett and Resources Minister Bob Williams.

Vancouver Pro Duncan Winner

DUNCAN — Fred Cotton of Vancouver fired a three-under-par 69 Saturday to win the 18-hole Village Green Open at the Cowichan Golf and Country Club.

Cotton beat Doug Reid of Vancouver by two strokes to win first money of $300.

Al MacLeod, who plays out of both Cowichan and Victoria Gorge Vale, was the low amateur with a 71. He finished a stroke ahead of Frank Bayuk of Campbell River while Jim Girard of Victoria was next at 73. Cec Ferguson, Marty Richards and Alex Forward tied at 74 and Gordie Rands shot a 75.

Vancouver veteran Bob Cox and Victoria's Mike Parker tied for third among the pros, each with 72, while host pro Bill Wakeham and Bryan Carbery of Victoria deadlocked at 73. Cowichan assistant pro Neil Murray followed with a 76.

Low net honors went to Tony Pisto of Courtenay, one of three at 67. Andy Baraniuk of Cowichan and D. Spence were second and third, respectively.

UNDER-18 B.C. SIDE LOSES FINAL

BURNABY — Ontario scored a 3-2 victory over the B.C. under-18 soccer team coached by Brian Hughes of Victoria in one of two Canadian soccer championship finals here Saturday.

The under-18 side also included Gord Reading: Peter Zachary, Mike Hardy and Gordie Horth, all of Victoria. Both B.C. goals came on second-half penalty kicks by Graham Carlson after Ontario had run up a 3-0 lead.

In the other final, the B.C. under-16 team downed Quebec 9-3. David McCullach, Doug Robinson and Kirby Graham each scored twice for the winners with Sam Saundh, Dan Lenarduzzi and Randy Ragan counting once each.

Dave's Good Timing Brings First Win

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Dave Marcis passed Benny Parsons with less than 40 laps left Sunday, held him off the rest of the way and won the 20th annual Old Dominion 500 for his first Grand National stock car victory of the season.

The Dodge driver outraced Parsons at a record speed of 75.819 miles per hour for the 262.5-mile race over the .525-mile Martinsville Speedway before a crowd of 32,000.

Marcis and Parsons went into their battle with more than 100 laps left when pole winner Gale Yarborough hit a wall on the back straightway in his Chevrolet while seemingly on his way to a comparatively easy victory.

Every time the two hit traffic, Parsons closed the gap, getting as close as Marcis' rear bumper on occasion, but Marcis pulled away as soon as the way was clear.

Trailing Marcis and Parsons were Bobby Allison in a Matador, Richard Childness in a Chevrolet and Richie Pance in a Chevrolet.

"I really didn't have any problems," said Marcis, whose speed broke the 73.681 m.p.h. record set in 1971 by Bobby Isaac. "I missed a couple of spinouts. I kinda laid back all day and took it easy."

Stakes Win To Forego

NEW YORK (AP) — Forego turned the tables on Wajima and won the $108,200 Woodward Stakes at Belmont Park on Saturday.

The five-year-old gelding who was beaten by a head by his three-year-old rival in the $250,000 Marlboro handicap two weeks ago, outran Wajima in another stretch duel, winning this time by 1¾ lengths.

Braulio Baeza, aboard Wajima, claimed foul against Heliodoro Gustines, on Forego, for alleged interference at the 16th pole, when Forego drew away. After a seven-minute wait to vie wthe videotape of the race, the stewards upheld Forego's victory.

Mariners Hold Back On Pay?

TORONTO (CP) — San Diego Mariners of the World Hockey Association still haven't passed on all-star and playoff payments to some of their players.

Norm Kaplan, a Montreal lawyer who represents Kevin Morrison, Joe Hardy, Kevin Devine and Doug Volmar, said he sent letters Friday to WHA director of hockey administration Bud Poile and Mariners' president Joe Schwartz complaining that his clients' contract obligations had not been fulfilled.

In Toronto, Poile said that all-star and playoff money had been sent to the Mariners and it was to be distributed.

"Schwartz assures me everything has been taken care of and I guess we have to believe him until we get complaints from players," Poile said.

ORR AGAIN EYES SAINTS

BOSTON (AP) — Defenceman Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins left hospital Saturday after knee surgery and said talks over a new contract with the National Hockey League team have bogged down.

"Negotiations aren't as smooth as they were, but it's not too bad," he said. "I want to play hockey and I want to play in Boston.

"I think I've made that clear, but we're still talking to the Saints."

Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association are reported to have made Orr a 10-year, multi-million dollar offer to jump leagues.

He has a year to go on his current Bruins' contract but expects to be out of action until mid-November after the surgery.

Earlier Saturday, the Boston Herald American said Orr was upset by an attempt by the Jacobs brothers of Buffalo, tentative new owners of the Bruins, to re-negotiate a verbal agreement they reached before the surgery.

The newspaper said Orr told a friend he "will never play for the Bruins if the Jacobs brothers are successful in their bid to purchase the team . .'

The sale of the Bruins to Jeremy, Max and Lawrence Jacobs by the Storer Broadcasting Co., has been held up because of tax problems.

Montreal Keeps NLL Hopes Alive

MONTREAL (CP) — Team-captain John Davis scored three goals and assisted on two others Saturday night as Montreal Quebecois downed Quebec Caribous, 12-8, to prolong the best-of-seven National Lacrosse League final series.

The best-of-seven set for the Nations Cup resumes Monday in Quebec with the Caribous holding a 3-2 lead in the series.

Dave Iitzenberger and Bill Sheehan each had two goals for Montreal with Dale MacKenzie, Serge Loiselle, Bruce Arena, John McKenna and John Sheffield getting the others.

Brian Evans, John Macdonald and Gord Osinchuk each had two goals for Quebec with Murray Cawker and Dave Durante getting the others.

Czechs Down Aussies

PRAGUE (AP) — Jan Kodes propelled Czechoslovakia into the final round of the 1975 Davis Cup against Sweden when he beat Australian veteran Tony Roche 6-3, 6-1, 6-4 Sunday.

That victory gave Czechoslovakia an insurmountable 3-1 lead in the best-of-five tennis series.

In the last singles match, John Alexander of Australia was leading Jiri Hrebec 8-6, 6-3, 1-6 and the fourth set was tied 6-6 when play was halted by darkness. Rather than resume the match today, the team captains decided to call it off, making the final score of the series 3-1.

Czechoslovakia's victory sets up the first Davis Cup final ever between two countries from the European continent. The closest geographically was in 1933 when Britain beat France 3-2.

Sweden earned a berth in the final, to be played later this year, by beating Chile 4-1 one week ago.

Kodes and Hrebec had won the opening singles matches, but Australia kept its hopes alive when Alexander and Phil Dent won Saturday's doubles.

Belgium split its final two singles matches Sunday with the Netherlands for a 4-1 victory in a first-round European Zone series of 1976 Davis Cup tennis.

Belgium had clinched the best-of-five series by winning Friday's two singles matches and Saturday's doubles at Brussels.

Belgium's No. 1 player, Patrick Hombergen, made the score 4-0 Sunday by beating Fred Hemmes 6-4, 8-6, 6-3. Hemmes was playing in place of Dutch ace Tom Okker, who was sidelined by a pulled muscle.

At Copenhagen, Denmark completed its victory over Finland by splitting the closing singles matches, making the final score in the series 4-1.

Denmark had clinched the best-of-five European Zone first-round match by winning Friday's two singles matches and Saturday's doubles.
